Road Board Wins Fight Against NRA Pay Scale

'PREVAILING WAGE' IS GIVEN APPROVAL OF CODE OFFICIAL

Wilburn Says Ruling Is Great Victory, Supporting Contentions of Talmadge, Commission; To Let Contracts This Week

WHITLEY CASE END SEEN BY OBSERVERS

Reports Are That Federal Action Against LaGrange Contractor Will Be Dismissed.

By L. A. FARRELL.

Governor Talmadge and the state highway board Saturday won their long fight to keep from paying NRA wages for labor on purely state aid road contracts.

The victory for the state came when Hugh Roberts, representing the divisional authority for the code for general contractors, announced that NRA officials in Washington had advised him that it would not be necessary for contractors to maintain the NRA scale in bidding on contracts to be let by the highway board and paid for out of state funds.

Three contracts are to be awarded Thursday and Mr. Roberts has informed all contractors that they may bid on the proposals, paying less than the NRA scale and still not imperil their Blue Eagles. The wage scale on the projects will be the prevailing wage in the community in which the work is done.

It is understood that all contractors will bid on a basis of paying about 20 cents an hour for common labor instead of the NRA minimum of 40 cents.

See End of Whitley Case.

The action of the code authority gave stimulus to reports that John E. Whitley, of LaGrange, head of the Whitley Construction Company, will never be tried on charges of violating the NRA code by paying less than the NRA scale. National recovery administration officials have filed accusations against the LaGrange contractor, a close personal and political friend of Governor Talmadge, in the middle Georgia district court at Macon and the trial is scheduled for November 5 at Macon.

There has been a feeling among close observers of the situation that the Whitley case would never be called for trial, the general opinion being that it would be continued and continued and finally dropped. However, the admission by the code authority Saturday that the contractors do not have to follow the code as long as contractors all are informed that as far as the state highway department is concerned they do not have to follow the code on state aid projects, was seen as ample ground for the federal government to drop prosecution of the charges against Whitley.

These reports also were given credence by the fact that the supreme court of the United States is expected to pass on the NRA, particularly as it pertains to highway contractors, at its present session.

The Whitley Company recently was enjoined by Circuit Judge Samuel H. Sibley from pursuing two contracts and paying less than the NRA scale, but at that time the highway board admitted that in its advertisements

Snow and Bitter Cold Strike New England

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Winter made an early invasion of the east today, blanketing New England with snow and lowering thermometers as far south as New York city to their lowest levels since 1875.

In Boston it was the coldest October 13 in 59 years, while down east in Maine's potato-growing Aroostook county a blizzard threatened disaster to the unharvested potato crop. As much as 14 inches of snow fell in the Aroostook country.

In the Berkshire hills of western Massachusetts snow fell and the temperature dropped as low as 20 degrees during the night. In the Adirondacks in New York state the same figure was reached for the second consecutive day.

COLLEGE SURVEY ON CO-ORDINATION READY IN 10 DAYS

Emory, Agnes Scott and Tech Would Be Aided in Establishing Educational Center.

A preliminary report of the survey committee which viewed the possibilities of co-ordinating the work of Agnes Scott College, Emory University and Georgia Tech is expected in the next two days, Dr. Harry W. Cox and Dr. J. R. McCain revealed Saturday.

How the higher educational work of Emory, Tech and Agnes Scott is set forth in the report of the committee of distinguished educators who investigated the situation last spring.

In the meantime the boards of trustees of Agnes Scott and Emory have approved the plan in general, Dr. Cox and Dr. McCain said. Faculty committees from the two institutions have been appointed to study possible co-ordinated courses beginning in the fall of 1935.

Identity to Remain Separate.

Separate identity would be maintained under the proposed plan, but the institutions involved would have the advantage of specializing in one field without fear of duplication. Such a scheme would result in greatly furthering Atlanta's place as an educational center since more advanced graduate work could be offered. The doctor of philosophy degree would doubtless be obtainable.

The scheme of co-ordination has great potentialities, Dr. McCain said Saturday in commenting on the possibilities of the coming report.

"With Emory, Georgia Tech and Agnes Scott functioning co-operatively as one great center of learning, not only would Atlanta and the state benefit hugely, but the necessary spark of life would be given."

Cambridge To Confer Honor on Bingham

CAMBRIDGE, England, Oct. 13.—(AP)—United States Ambassador Robert W. Hendon will be given an honorary degree of doctor of laws on October 22, on the occasion of the visit of King George and Queen Mary, who will open the university library.

Dr. L. J. Henderson, of Harvard University, and Dr. Karl Landsteiner, of Rockefeller Institute, will receive honorary degrees of doctors of science at the same time.

The Whitley Company recently was enjoined by Circuit Judge Samuel H. Sibley from pursuing two contracts and paying less than the NRA scale, but at that time the highway board admitted that in its advertisements

TERRORIST BAND WITH 'GUN GIRL' TRACED BY FRENCH

Two Confess Plot To Slay Yugoslav King; Drastic Cabinet Shakeup in Progress in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

Turmoil in the French cabinet, threatened action of the Little Entente against a Balkan terror gang with possible serious repercussions in Hungary and Italy, the burial of a martyred foreign minister in Paris and the seating of an 11-year-old monarch in Yugoslavia were yesterday's momentous developments in the assassination of King Alexander Tuesday at Marseille.

PARIS—Police of eight countries sought additional members of the mysterious Ustashi, Balkan organization of gunmen, including a beautiful young Slav woman and a mysterious "doctor," all implicated in the assassinations.

While the late Foreign Minister Barthou was accorded a martyr's burial the government was engaged in a cabinet shakeup complicated by the sudden resignation of Minister of Justice Cheron. Pierre Laval was named to succeed Barthou and Paul Marchandieu to replace the resignation of Minister of the Interior Albert Sarraun.

Persons close to Foreign Minister Edmond Bonis of Czechoslovakia, now in Paris, revealed a meeting of Little Entente foreign ministers scheduled next week to consider steps against the Balkan terrorists, whose activities must be halted to have been carried on with full knowledge of officials in Hungary and Italy. A meeting of the League of Nations to consider charges may be called.

BEIGRADE—King Peter II, son of Alexander, arrived with his mother and grandmother and became king, receiving the joyful acclamation of the populace.

ROME—Determined to prevent an outbreak with Yugoslavia, Italy confiscated newspapers publishing alarming news from the Balkan nation.

SPLIT, Yugoslavia.—Feeling against France, upon whose soil Alexander was killed, was widespread.

PIERCE CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Volunteer Dry Agent Gets Misdemeanor Verdict for Killing.

Fred Pierce, of Gainesville, former volunteer federal prohibition agent, Saturday was found guilty of "involuntary manslaughter in the commission of a lawful act without using due caution and circumspection" in connection with the two-year-old slaying of Clarence Densmore in Douglas county following a raid on a still.

Sentence was not immediately passed by Judge E. Marvin Underwood and no date for fixing of the punishment was set.

The crime for which Pierce was convicted is a misdemeanor, punishable with anything up to 12 months on the chain gang, six months in jail and a fine of up to $1,000. The court may give the convicted man any or all of the maximum sentences.

The jury deliberated about two hours before reaching a verdict. No formal motion was filed but it was expected that Pierce would appeal the verdict.

Case Given Jury.

The case was given to the jury at 12:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon after a trial which had lasted since Monday.

In his charge Judge Underwood told the jury that it could return one of five verdicts. He pointed out the state had charged Pierce with the murder, Densmore and said if the jury found the young Gainesville man guilty of murder it could either bring in a verdict carrying the death penalty or it could bring in a verdict carrying a recommendation for mercy which would mean a sentence of life imprisonment.

Judge Underwood did not charge involuntary manslaughter but he did charge involuntary manslaughter in the commission of a lawful act, the prosecution having contended Pierce was not a duly qualified federal officer and the defense having contended he was regularly summoned to protect the interests of the government. The court also charged the jury it could bring a verdict of acquittal which would automatically place the slaying of Densmore at Pierce's feet.

Four Atlantans Killed In Automobile Accidents

Three Die When Car Crashes Parked Truck on Snellville Road; F. A. Cassels Found Dying on Ponce de Leon.

Four Atlantans lost their lives and five others were injured in a series of automobile accidents in and near Atlanta Saturday, three of the dead being killed when the car in which they were en route to a funeral crashed into a stalled truck on the Snellville road in DeKalb county early Saturday night. Three of the injured were hurt in this accident, which occurred three miles from Stone Mountain.

The dead are Frederick A. Cassels, 21, of 259 Howard street, Kirkwood; J. Hubert Drummond, 47, of 417 Flat Shoals avenue, driver of the car which crashed near Stone Mountain; Miss Alice Jones, 21, of 393 Flat Shoals avenue, and J. W. Nabors, also of 393 Flat Shoals avenue, who were riding with Drummond.

Cassels, member of a prominent Kirkwood family, was killed shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday morning when his automobile crashed into a telephone pole on Ponce de Leon near Clifton road. His death brought the automobile fatality number inside the city limits of Atlanta this year to 43.

DeKalb county police reported that Drummond crashed into a stalled truck on the Snellville road while the truck driver was working on its lights.

Drummond, whose car was badly damaged and whose driver was badly lacerated hand; their son, Cecil, age

43 STAY OF BEER TAX

Judge Barrett Issues Order Against Collection of $1,000 License Fee.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Judge William H. Barrett today granted Augusta dealers a restraining order against W. E. Page, internal revenue collector, and J. T. Gordon, his Augusta deputy, preventing collection of the $1,000 excise tax on beer and liquor dealers.

The motion, filed through the office of the United States attorney, was granted.

TO DISMISS SUITS.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The government today filed a motion to dismiss suits filed by beer dealers here seeking an injunction against collection of a $1,000 excise tax by the internal revenue department.

The motion, filed through the office of the United States attorney, was granted.

ROOSEVELT, FRIENDS Cruising on Potomac

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(UP)—Favored by crisp, clear autumn weather, President Roosevelt and a small party of friends cruised today in Chesapeake bay and the lower reaches of the Potomac. They were believed to be discussing monetary problems.

Among the president's guests were Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. and Governor George L. Harrison, of the New York Federal Reserve bank. Their presence on the presidential yacht stirred lively curiosity in financial quarters despite indications from the president himself that no new monetary moves were imminent.

German Officials Renounce Trade Treaty With America

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The German government—despite two dramatic diplomatic gestures—failed today to achieve immediate clarification of its tangled economic and financial relations with the United States.

Dr. Hans Luther, the German ambassador, officially notified the state department that the reich would abrogate its unilateral most-favored-nation trade treaty with the United States on October 14, 1935. He suggested that a new treaty without the favored-nation clause be negotiated to take its place.

Undersecretary of State Phillips declined to comment on the ambassador's suggestion. It was indicated at the state department, however, that the United States still considered the most-favored-nation clause an integral part of American commercial policy. Plainly, there was no immediate prospect of the negotiating a new treaty with Germany.

The German government's proposal to pay American holders of Dawes loan bonds approximately 75 per cent of the interest due on October 15 through a joint foreign exchange reichsmark arrangement also failed to receive state department approval.

No official comment was made, but authoritative indication was given that the government still considers failure to pay Americans a full 100 per cent, as it is to be done for citizens.

GEORGIA'S DEFEAT HEADLINES UPSET DAY ON GRIDIRON

North Carolina Wins, 14-0; Tech Loses, 20-0, to Duke; Oglethorpe Beats Chattanooga, 18-0

By RALPH MCGILL.

Football experts, if any, wore brand-new figurative black eyes last night when all the football scores were in and results noted.

The south was stunned as Georgia moved on over to the mourner's bench along with Southern California, Purdue, Michigan and other football casualties of early October.

The Georgia Bulldogs, regarded as one of the five strongest teams in the south, lost 14 to 0, on their home football lot to the North Carolina Tarheels, who the week before were defeated, 17 to 9, by Tennessee.

Georgia threatened three times and another march was halted by the end of the second quarter but Georgia never came near scoring, failing on four tries from the 1-yard line.

North Carolina's victory was her first over Georgia. A hard-charging, good-blocking eleven caught Georgia looking forward to Tulane next week and made the most of it.

Other games in the south moved on about as expected. Georgia Tech lost, 20 to 0, to Duke, which was about one touchdown more than anticipated. Tennessee gained her remaining four points by beating Florida, 28 to 12.

Vanderbilt won a night game from Cincinnati, 32 to 0, and also remained in the running with the more powerful teams.

Kentucky had a difficult time beating Clemson, 7 and 0; Hunk Anderson's North Carolina State team made

BOARD APPROVES CUSTER OF EAVES

Longino's Dismissal of Engineer Is Backed at Stormy Session.

The wonted serenity of sessions of the board of county commissioners gave way Saturday to a stormy flurry when the members met to consider the dismissal by George F. Longino, chairman, of Frank Eaves, chief engineer of the courthouse.

Longino was supported in his stand that as chairman of the buildings and grounds committee he should be vested with dismissal authority by Walter C. Hendrix and A. L. Ragdale, while Dr. W. L. Gilbert took sides with Paul S. Etheridge, who had protested Longino's action and demanded a session of the board.

When called upon by Etheridge to present his grievances against Eaves, Longino replied that every member of the board knows the situation with regard to the engineer and that he did not intend to make any speech for or against Eaves or to prefer any charges.

Dr. W. L. Gilbert said that he did not believe that dismissal of an employee without a hearing is fair, and Etheridge cited the chairman to a resolution which he said has been passed by the board that no employee should be discharged without a hearing. Longino replied that there has been no precedent for a hearing in any such case.

Immediately after the roll call Longino called for a vote on the question of "reinstating him with authority to handle his department." Before a second to his motion was received Longino remarked that every member of the commission knows the situation regarding Eaves.

Mr. Etheridge: "I resent that. I consider it is unfair and below the belt. I rise to a point of order. In my deliberative body common decency forbids the chairman to offer motions."

The motion was seconded by Ragdale.

Mr. Etheridge: "Mr. Ragdale, you have done that in every motion Mr. Longino has ever made."

Speed Nearly 60 M. P. H. Made by Diesel Train

DENVER, Oct. 13.—(AP)—A speed of almost a mile a minute was made by the Union Pacific's new six-car, Diesel powered stream lined train, on a run from Los Angeles to Omaha, officials announced today.

N. A. Williams, general manager of the railroad, said the train made the 1,813 miles in 1,850 minutes. The train arrived in Omaha yesterday.

On October 22, the train will be sent from Los Angeles to New York on a schedule about 24 hours under regular passenger time, Williams said.

JURY COMMITTEE ASKED BY MAYOR TO PROBE SCHOOLS

Mayor Urges Grand Jury Investigation of Extravagance in Atlanta Schools.

Mayor James L. Key Saturday moved for grand jury backing of his contentions that Atlanta public schools are extravagant and are maintaining departments which are not needed, and it appeared that he may obtain the co-operation of a special grand jury committee which probed Fulton county schools.

The mayor directed a letter to F. M. Sprattling, foreman of the grand jury, asking that the same committee before the committee said his committee be authorized to conduct a similar probe of Atlanta schools, and requested the privilege of appearing before the grand jury to "give them the benefit of such investigations as have been made and also the conclusions that I have arrived at from long observation and study of the schools of the city."

Sprattling was out of the city, but George S. Lowman, advertising man, who is chairman of the grand jury school committee, said his committee had discussed the matter of a city school investigation prior to the writing of the letter by Key and that "it might be to commit himself further, however, in the absence of specific instructions from the grand jury. The matter probably will be considered by the grand jury as a whole at its meeting Tuesday."

Other members of the grand jury school committee are W. R. Whitaker, of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, and Harry B. McCash, of the Coca-Cola Company.

Several months ago Key had a survey made of the school departments and recommendations for economies amounting to $800,000 a year were made. Half-time operation of kindergarten and abolition of the visual education and testing and guidance departments as well as other economies

Gunmen Halt Removal Of Textile Machinery

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 13.—(UP)—A truck loaded with machinery from the Champion Knitting Mills here was halted near Ringgold, Ga., and the driver forced at pistol point to return the machinery to Chattanooga.

Trouble had occurred previously at the Champion mills when strikers attempted to block efforts of the management to remove part of the equipment from the main plant at Marietta, Georgia.

Carroll Goins, driver of the truck, said he was halted by seven heavily armed men riding in an automobile.

Schley Howard Jr. Hurt In Crash at Lavonia

LAVONIA, Ga., Oct. 13.—Schley Howard Jr., son of the Atlanta attorney, was injured here today in an automobile accident which also put five other persons in the Royston hospital.

Young Howard, employed by a contracting firm here, was riding with John E. Whitley when the collision with the car occupied by Frank Crider, Toccoa, a brother and his wife and child, occurred at about 2:15 p. m., darter standard time, on a hill about one mile from here. It was said that Howard and his companion were on their way to the football game at Athens.

Howard was released from the hospital after treatment for minor cuts and bruises. Crider suffered two broken legs and it is believed that his brother's wife also received a broken leg.

Howard is being removed from a hotel here to his father's residence in Atlanta.

Georgia Fights Before I. C. C. For Freight Rate Reductions

Utilities Board of State Seeks To Remove Discrimination Against Southern Shippers.

A battle to get railroad freight rates in the south as low as they are in the north was opened Saturday by the Georgia public service commission.

The commission, appointed and acting under orders of Governor Eugene Talmadge to cut transportation and utility rates in this state, is making its fight for lower rates in the south before the interstate commerce commission in Washington.

The fight on the higher rates in the south is occasioned by a defense of the Georgia commission's interstate rates, filed yesterday with the interstate commerce commission.

The Georgia commission contends that class freight rates in southern territory are 27 per cent higher than in official, or northern and eastern territory, and that "the difference in these levels is not justified by the difference in transportation conditions."

The immediate fight is a defense of a reduction which the Georgia commission ordered in intrastate rates, and to which the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce took sharp exception, saying the Georgia rates were discriminatory against Jacksonville business interests in Birmingham, Chattanooga, and Charleston joined Jacksonville in the fight on the Georgia rates, for the same reason.

Railroads in Georgia went into federal court to fight the rates and lost. They finally accepted and applied the rates. Most of the lines in Georgia then carried their fight to the interstate commerce commission, charging discrimination in interstate commerce.

The carriers said that discrimination existed and should be removed by raising the intrastate rates. The Jacksonville chamber merely said discrimination should be removed.

The man behind the guns in Georgia's defense of its own freight rate structure, and in opposition to the interstate rates in the south is John Gore, assistant attorney-general of Georgia, who is counsel for the Georgia public service commission. Gore has aided the commission in its numerous rates inquiries and then has fought for the subsequent rate reductions in the courts.

As for the interstate rates, Gore says:

"The Georgia commission takes the position that rate levels fixed prior to depression are no longer safe guides to follow in determining present reasonable rate levels, under changed conditions. The effort on the part of the carriers to maintain the maximum

Princess Cantacuzene Becomes Republican

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Princess Cantacuzene, born in the White House and baptized in its east room, who now has traded in her Russian title for a plain American "Mrs.," today cast her political lot with the G. O. P. of her grandfather, U. S. Grant.

The princess, every body hereabout still calls her that—sat today in the rich reception room of the Sulgrave Club and said that she has taken a place on the advisory council of the League of Republican Women. Further, she looks forward to voting in Florida, her permanent residence.

rate structure on such a high level as to prohibit traffic, and at the same time ask that they be given the right to apply competitive rates in an effort to hold traffic or regain lost traffic is simply a means of evading regulation." He said the Georgia commission takes the stand that there is no justification for the higher rates in the south and that studies of operating averages and transportation conditions bears out this idea.

Gore said "this effort on the part of the Georgia commission is the initial movement of its kind on the part of state commissions in the south to bring about a different relationship between class rate levels in southern and official territories."

Governor Talmadge, long an advocate of lower freight rates, says bluntly: "Railroad rates over the country as a whole are too high. They have got to come down."

Richmond Jail Deputy Shoots Self to Death

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 13.—(AP)—R. C. Duke, 35, a deputy at Richmond jail, shot himself through the head in the jail bookkeeper's office just before 6:30 tonight and died instantly. He had testified yesterday before the special grand jury investigating the escape of Robert and Walter Mays and Walter Legenza from the jail.

City Sergeant Saunders, Duke's superior officer, said the death was a suicide. Duke had been at the jail eight years, the sergeant said. He was one of the men on duty when Mays and Legenza shot their way out of confinement in a burst of gunfire which felled a policeman and two other deputies. The policeman has since died.

SENATOR DAVID REED ASSAILED BY FREED

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Assailing Senator David A. Reed's record in the senate, Postmaster-General James A. Farley today declared Reed, while serving in the Hoover administration, asked for a "Mussolini" and termed him a "poor loser." Farley's criticism of the Pennsylvanian, republican candidate for reelection against Joseph J. Guffey, democrat, came at the end of a prepared speech at ceremonies dedicating Pittsburgh's new $8,000,000 postoffice.

JEFFERSONVILLE MAN GIVEN PRISON TERM

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ga., Oct. 13.—(AP)—A jury in Twiggs county superior court today returned a verdict of involuntary manslaughter against John P. Moore, charged with killing Appleton Harrison. Judge Kent sentenced Moore to serve from one to three years, as recommended by the jury. Harrison was killed at a fishing camp on the Ocmulgee river in the southern part of the county on August 6. The case went to the jury on Thursday.

Oyster-Eating Thief Kills Pet at Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Augusta police are seeking another "meanest thief," but this one has a weakness for oysters. Someone ransacked two apartments here and in one the thief killed a pet kitten and crippled its Belian hare foster mother.

All the thief took from the other apartment was some oysters from a refrigerator.

Methodists Pledge Fight on War, Rum

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—(AP)—A resolution asking Methodists of the world to begin a session of special prayer for unification of the three branches of the church and for a liquorless, warless world was adopted today in the closing session of the Methodist sesquicentennial celebration here.

The resolution was contained in the report of the committee on findings, composed of senior prelates of the three branches of the church. The report reaffirmed the stand for Methodism on the liquor question; called upon the world to cease its warring and apply Christian principles to its difficulties; and requested ministers and laymen to engage in prayer for the eventual union of the church.

More than 2,000 delegates, representing every state in the Union and Canada, England, Japan, Korea and China, attended the sessions.

MRS. JAMES IS NAMED AS LANE COSMETICIAN

H. C. Naylor, president of Lane Drugstore, announces the appointment of Mrs. Arabelle James as cosmetician in the Lane drugstore located in the Henry Grady hotel.

"We are happy to be able to secure the services of Mrs. James, as

Mrs. James has studied and has been especially trained in the use of beauty treatments in the most famous New York salons. "In keeping with the high personnel standards we have established, we are particularly proud to have a woman of Mrs. James' high caliber available to our customers. She will be happy to give complete unbiased advice to the women of Atlanta and help with individual beauty problems."

PLANE RUSHES AID TO INJURED WORKER

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 13.—(AP)—To render aid to an unidentified workman reported to have lost an arm in an accident at Dry Tortugas, the United States coast guard service today dispatched a huge seaplane from here carrying medical assistance.

The plane, piloted by Lieutenant W. L. Clement and carrying a crew of two, will pick up a physician at Key West and transport him to the scene of the accident at Dry Tortugas, located west of that city. The victim will be taken to Key West for treatment.

COURTS BAR VIOLATION OF LUMBER PRICE CODE

MONROE, La., Oct. 13.—(AP)—In contrast to decisions given in nearby federal district courts, Judge Ben C. Dawkins, of the western district of Louisiana, granted an injunction temporarily restraining three Louisiana firms from violating minimum price provisions of the NRA lumber code. The decision of Judge Dawkins was given yesterday, but was made public only today after papers had been served on the firms proceeded against. Those named in the suits were the Roy O. Martin Company, of the Alexandria division, cited in two cases; the Shannon Brothers, of the Lake Charles division, and the Lendal Lumber Company, of the Monroe district.

The temporary order was set by Judge Dawkins for a hearing in Shreveport, La., on October 22. The judge called on the lumber company to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be issued.

BAPTIST FROM LONDON SPEAKS HERE FRIDAY

Dr. T. G. Dunning To Address Special Rally of B. Y. P. U.

Dr. T. G. Dunning, of London, England, director of young people's activities of Great Britain and Ireland, will be the principal speaker Friday night, in a special rally at the Druid Hills Baptist church under auspices of the Atlanta Association B. Y. P. U.

The rally is expected to be largely attended by friends of young people from Atlanta and other places in this section of the state, according to plans made and invitation extended by Arthur O. Hayes, associational president, who will preside at the meeting.

Dr. Dunning, who is chairman of the Baptist World Alliance committee on young people's work and a member of the Alliance executive committee, is in the United States for a series of addresses beginning at New York city, and climaxed with his messages at the All-Southern Baptist Student conference which is to be held at Memphis, October 25-28. Mr. Dunning is a graduate of Oxford University and author, editor, lecturer and is considered an international leader of Baptist youth.

LOUISIANAN ENDS LIFE AFTER SLAYING WIFE

SCHRIEVER, La., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Death today had ended a series of quarreling and separations between Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Use, of Schriever. Officers decided that their lives were ended by murder and suicide. Friends said that the Uses had been wedded 15 years and had been separated six times. Yesterday, officers reported, a double-barreled shotgun was used by the man to kill his wife and then to take his own in their home, just outside of Schriever.

Over Seas

By CHARLES E. HARNER.
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

When King Alexander, of Yugoslavia, was assassinated October 9, some of the more excitable observers of European affairs set up the cry: "War!"

They were mistaken. War did not ensue. The tragedy developed into an internal affair without the international repercussions which had been feared. For the assassin apparently was of Yugoslav origin.

European statesmen long have watched the Balkans, of which Yugoslavia is a part, always fearful that with international consequences may break out there.

France, as all the world knows, fears Germany; fears Hitlerism; fears the central powers—fears them as she feared them before the World War. And France, largely through Louis Barthou, her foreign minister, slain with Alexander at Marseille, has been doing her utmost to surround Germany with what she calls "a defensive ring of steel."

Yugoslavia has been and is a master link in that steel ring. A chain is as strong as its weakest link, and France has done her utmost to see to it that the link of Yugoslavia was firm.

Another link is Italy, whose power and militant spirit under Premier Benito Mussolini is mighty. But there lay the weakness—Italy and Yugoslavia were unfriendly.

So the French government invited King Alexander to visit France, preparatory to the formulation of bonds of close friendship between France and Italy.

King Alexander got as far as Marseille, and was shot down.

The immediate reaction of his subjects was brief which turned to anger, not at France, but at Italy.

The young Serb-Croat-Slovene kingdom—to give Yugoslavia its former name—has lived ever since its creation in uneasiness over three things.

First: Border hostility with fascist-organized, militarized Italy.

Second: The ever-present specter of a resurgence of the Austro-Hungarian empire, which might again envelope the Slav provinces torn away as a result of the World War.

Third: Dissatisfaction of the Croats of Yugoslavia with the fact that the Serbs have been running the country.

The first shells to burst in the World War 20 years ago were around Belgrade, as mighty Austria-Hungary overran the little Serbian kingdom.

The Russia, Germany, France and England rushed in and extended the fighting to a dozen fronts.

And when the central powers were humbled, a new country was marked out on the map of southeastern Europe, adding to Serbia the provinces where Slav people had been kept subjugated under the Hapsburg imperial machine—the people of Croatia, Dalmatia, Slavonia, Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Every member of the "suicide squad," it was disclosed, was outfitted with new clothing for his funeral, as was Kalemén, for they went prepared to die.

The maze of false passports, aliases and the rapid movements of the five men and the beautiful Balkan girl who supplied the weapons puzzled the police, but they were unraveling the skein of mystery with the aid of other countries.

Men Trained to Kill. Hungary, training at first there was an fugitive, within its borders, is now investigating what the French police disclosed—that the men in custody said they had held target practice on Hungarian soil to train their hands.

Italy was searching records, some of which were lost in the war, to determine if some of the band had been born in Italy. Yugoslavia, which has been busy buying passports carried by the band were falsified, while Belgium, Switzerland and Germany traced the actual movements of the gang in transit to France.

The woman accomplice was described as a pretty and brown-haired. Police gaffed her within a day, and she was taken to the police station.

Witnesses, who had seen her with other members of the gang described her as tall and very attractive, about 24, and a Czechoslovakian.

The sure national was certain the woman played an important role in the crime, she brought weapons into France in four valises going to Aix-Sudley night. These weapons were handed out at the last minute, she said.

Mysterious Deed. The first "mystery man" in the setup was "the doctor" who gave the gang instructions at Lausanne, a second mystery man was "the assassin," who was supposed to be a lieutenant of Dr. Ravich. There was also an old man who delivered the Hungarian passports at Lausanne.

They first picked up Kramer's trail at Aix-en-Provence the day of the assassination. He was identified from photographs as "the assassin" by the police as a member of the "suicide squad" who was supposed to have accompanied the gang to Aix, placing her in one hotel while he went to another.

But Kramer was one of those who escaped, along with a man named Chalmers and another named Nalis, who police said they were certain was the "suicide squad" leader.

King Peter Takes Place. BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Crown Prince Peter, the school boy, returned to his native land today as King Peter II, and with the dignity of the sovereign took his place at the first meeting of Yugoslavia's regency council.

Standing at the train between his state's grandmother, Queen Marie of Romania, and his regal but heart-broken mother, Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, the smiling, 11-year-old sovereign made an unforgettable impression of boyish charm and simplicity upon the thousands who came to cheer and welcome him.

The boy's own appearance helped vastly to dispel the gloom that was an inevitable part of the funeral.

War on Terrorism Planned By Little Entente Leaders

By Little Entente Leaders

PARIS, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Foreign ministers of the little entente are to meet Thursday at Belgrade, immediately after the burial of King Alexander, to consider steps to wipe out the gang of Balkan terrorists, lest they themselves be marked for death, it was learned today.

Persons close to Foreign Minister Pierre Benes, of Czechoslovakia, now in Paris, revealed the entente's considering demanding a special session of the League of Nations to air charges indirectly involving Hungary and Italy.

Those persons claimed that terrorist activities were aimed at "the destruction of three states carved by the treaty of Versailles."

Two terrorist camps are maintained on Italian soil, according to Yugoslav officials, with the full knowledge of authorities there, in addition to one in Hungary, formerly known as Janvarus, from whence came the assassins of Barthou and Alexander.

Foreign Minister Benes and Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu, of Rumania, both of whom were said to be marked for death by the terrorists, are going to Belgrade for King Alexander's funeral. There they will fight the "little entente" against the Yugoslavians, and decide what to do.

Benes, heavily guarded, marched today in Barthou's funeral procession. Thirty detectives are accompanying him constantly while he moves about Paris. He planned to remain here several days, going directly from here to Belgrade.

The "Croat terrorist band," "Ustashi," whose program, according to Yugoslav officials, calls for a division of the Yugoslav kingdom, is said by those to be led by "interests deriving the revision of the Versailles treaty."

The route taken by the royal automobile which bore Peter and his queen mother and grandmother from the station although they do not yet know what King Alexander's death may mean to the country, the school children were delighted that one of their country's former classmates jumped out of line and rushed toward the royal auto, shouting in Serbian "Long live the king!"

Today's meeting of the regency council was an informal one. Some of the members of the council had not even met the young sovereign. The meeting was designed to acquaint the council with the situation, and was quick to get over with.

King Carol, of Rumania, and King Boris, of Bulgaria, whose countries have been invaded by fear of a revolution of the Marseille assassination, decided today not to come to Belgrade for the funeral of King Alexander.

They feared they might be risking their own lives in the prevailing terrorist atmosphere, it was learned.

King Boris is sending in his place Foreign Minister Nikola Dimitroff, while King Carol is delegating Premier George Tarescu and Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu to act for him.

To Take Crown at 18. Although Peter's actual coronation will not take place until he is 18 years old, the boy, smiling school boy, is qualified under the constitution and a recent proclamation of parliament to sit as king. The actual royal functions, however, will be performed by the regency council until Peter reaches his majority.

Prince Paul, cousin of the late King Alexander, was first named and arrested. The council members in the king's will.

STRICT MEASURES TAKEN. AGAINST FURTHER TROUBLE. SPLIT: Yugoslavia, Oct. 13.—(AP) Yugoslav authorities, obsessed with the fear of another assassination, tonight ordered all windows facing the harbor to be tightly shuttered.

The measure was believed due to information received by police that terrorists might attempt to throw bombs at high French or Yugoslav naval officers accompanying the body.

LEAGUE MAY BE ASKED TO STAMP OUT TERRORISTS. GENEVA, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Attempts to call a special session of the League of Nations council to help stamp out the activities of Balkan terrorists appeared to be gaining strength tonight.

The international newspaper Journal des Nations, strongly criticized the opening of the question which Yugoslavia raised earlier in the year when she protested that Hungary was late in fighting terrorists near the Yugoslav frontier, and in her surveillance of terrorist activities.

GATHERINGS BANNED BY GERMAN GOVERNMENT. BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The government today prohibited gatherings of passersby along the Wilhelmstrasse, under the pretext of the anniversary of the death of Kaiser Wilhelm I, of Yugoslavia, and Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu, of France, at Marseille.

German newspapers, coincidentally, were forbidden to publish news of Reichspräsident Adolf Hitler's movements in advance.

PENNIES OF RELIEF DOLES CONTRIBUTE TO 'NUMBERS GAME'. Lottery operators are taking the pennies, nickels and dimes of families living on relief, according to information brought to the office of Solicitor General John A. Boykin Saturday by a gray-haired man in tattered clothing.

What is this here numbers game? the man inquired of Charlie Stewart, in charge of lottery investigations. Stewart explained what it is all about and how the man would keep an eye on the "little books" and would report to the lottery squad any information he could be able to pick up.

Stewart told the man's 15-year-old son was spending every penny he could get his hands on in trying to hit the elusive "big" and even the man's father was helping him.

It was said Saturday that although the operation of lotteries in this city has been checked by the raiding recently of several headquarters and numerous convictions with heavy fines, the squad expects to hear down on the operators with even more vigor in an attempt to stamp it out altogether.

Eight negroes pleaded guilty Saturday before Judge J. S. Howard to lottery offenses. Two men were fined $50 each and given 12 months suspended sentences, and six straight prison terms of 12 months were imposed.

Mass Suicide Is Threatened By 1,000 Striking Miners

PARIS, Oct. 13.—(AP)—More than 1,000 coal miners sent up from their workings tonight an ultimatum that they will kill themselves by shutting off air if their demands for higher wages are not met.

The miners had been underground more than 48 hours, refusing food and with six of their numbers standing at the entrance with axes permitting no one to go down.

"Rather than suffer the slow pain of death by starvation we will commit suicide by smothering ourselves unless you grant our demands within 12 hours," the ultimatum of the miners read.

But the Danube Steam Navigation Company, which owns the mine, refused to order a wage increase. The miners are receiving about $2 weekly. They ask $3.50.

The interpretation by some was that the miners were determined to shut off air to the shafts at midnight, half hour before that time there was no indication that any compromise was to be made.

He made Pierre Laval, his minister of colonies, successor to Barthou as minister of foreign affairs, placed Paul Marchandeau, a former minister of finance, in the chair vacated by Albert Sarraut, who resigned as head of the ministry of interior because of the assassinations at Marseille and replaced Laval, colonial minister with Louis Rollin, a former minister of marine.

At the close of the cabinet meeting, which had been attended by President Lebrun, Henry Cheron, minister of justice, climaxed the shakeup by turning to Premier Doumergue and tendering his resignation. The premier accepted it, although he had previously stated his opposition to Cheron's removal as a result of the Stavisky scandal and the closely linked murder of Judge Price. The premier named Senator Henry Roy as the new minister of justice.

France paid solemn tribute to Barthou, slain last Tuesday with King Alexander, of Yugoslavia, just when the latter had arrived on a visit which the foreign minister had continued on to help cement the peace of Europe.

A brief but impressive funeral address, Premier Doumergue told how Barthou had labored for peace "and died assassinated while welcoming a noble and wise ambassador, who came to France on the same errand."

The premier looked tired and haggard as he spoke to the solemn gathering of statesmen and dignitaries. The cabinet, Ambassador Jose J. Straus, of the United States; Sir John Simon, of Great Britain, and many other foreign ministers, were present.

Barthou's body lay tonight in Pere Lachaise cemetery at the side of his son Max, killed at the age of 18 while fighting with the French army. Leon Barthou, aged brother of the foreign minister, faintly at the cemetery after the burial and was given emergency treatment before going home.

Japanese Officials Expected To Demand Parity in Principle Among 3 Leading Powers.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Japan will seek advance notice that it intends to denounce the Washington treaty later this year and will reveal its proposals for a new agreement, to replace that treaty, when tri-power naval conversations between American, British, and Japanese representatives open here probably next Thursday.

Ambassador Tani and Rear Admiral Isokuro Yamamoto are expected to announce that Japan wishes the Washington pact to end December 31, 1935, and will propose a new scheme for naval regulation drawn on the following bases:

Parity in principle among the three main powers.

A global tonnage arrangement to replace the 5-5-3 ratio now in force, and abolition of the principle of ratio.

Reduction, looking toward eventual abolition, of "offensive" ships, meaning big battleships and aircraft carriers.

Unlimited authority for each of the three powers to build additional "defense ships" each may need, including cruisers and submarines.

Both Britain and the United States are expected to suggest the continuation of the battleship building holiday.

In addition, it is expected that the Americans will make an offer to cut 5-5-3 ratio for battleships and regulate tonnage at least 20 per cent, as has been hinted several times in the last few months. This is regarded as the possible counter move to Japanese proposals.

Britain likely will seek to act as an umpire in any dispute which may arise between the Americans and Japanese. It has been the continual policy of this government since the war to try to reconcile opposing views, and the British may assume that attitude in naval affairs of the big powers as well.

Some of the lesser powers want to be included in the 1935 conference, and these desires will have to be considered. It is possible that a general conference in 1935 may be approved.

Atlanta Music Notes

By MOZELLE HORTON.

Atlanta music lovers are excited over the opening of the All-Star Concert Series with Lucrezia Bori's concert in the city auditorium Thursday evening. Indeed, concert by Bori, famous prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, at any time during the season would be an auspicious occasion, but as the formal opening of Atlanta's concert season for 1934-35, naturally there is great excitement in the air. Bori, possessor of a glorious soprano voice and, because of her charm and artistry, called the "First Lady of the Metropolitan," has many times thrilled Atlanta audiences with her star performances in opera during the days of the Metropolitan season in Atlanta.

Her program is one of fine taste and artistic characteristics, opening with the recitative and aria, "Ne me sur l'ombre," from Handel's "Xerxes." "Un certo non so che," "Vivaldi," "Id Be a Butterfly," "Barry," and "Air," from "Comus," by Arne, arranged by Ernest Ince, the second group will be "Celle que je préfère," "Fountain," "Fantoches," and "Clair de lune," by Debussy, and "Gavotte," from Massenet's "Pierrot." Her English group includes "Pierrot," D. C. Rhymer; "I Heard a Piper Piping," Arnold Bax; "Lullaby," Cyril Scott, and "Love I Have Won You," London Ronald. Her outstanding operatic contribution will be "Micaela's aria from Bizet's 'Carmen.'" The last group lists "Carmen," "Tutina," "cantata," "Obradors," "El Vito," "Nin," and "Toto," by the same composer.

Miss Bori's accompanist, Frederick Brund, will also offer a group of piano solos, including "Polonaise," MacDowell; "Prelude, Opus 12, No. 7," Prokofiev; "Fugues, Opus 10, No. 1," and "Capriccio," Bartok.

Curtis String Quartet.
The first guest artist presentation of the Atlanta Music Club will be Wednesday evening, October 13, in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club, when the Curtis String Quartet will present a chamber music program. This ensemble organization has come into unusual prominence as an artistic unit during the past several seasons, and their first appearance in Atlanta will be a noteworthy event.

Their program offers the entire "Quartet in G major, Opus 7, No. 1," by Haydn; "La Oration," "Toreo," by Joaquín Turina; "Scherzo, Opus 30," by Tchaikovsky, and the entire "Quartet in E minor," by Smetana.

Membership may be had in the Music Club at any time. The Curtis String Quartet concert is the second program of the season, the first having been a morning musicale presented by Atlanta artists last Wednesday morning, a review of which was in Thursday's Constitution.

Poetry Classes.
The department of English and dramatic expression of the Atlanta Conservatory of Music, under the direction of Paula Causser, is forming classes in poetry reading and an analytical study of contemporary poetry. This course is open to both students in public speaking and lovers of poetry. The first Children's theater group held their first meeting Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at the conservatory.

Messner Rhyth-o-phone.
One of the modern innovations in the teaching world I discovered this summer while in Chicago, is the Messner "Rhyth-o-phone." This new mechanical rhythmic device, housed in a small portable black case, similar to a portable victrola, but smaller, has been invented and perfected by W. Otto Messner, famous musical authority, author of the "Melody Way," and author of many widely used music textbooks. It demonstrates rhythmic so simply and easily that it amazes you. Just as a conductor taps out a complex rhythm with his baton so that it may be observed and imitated, the Rhyth-o-phone sounds out any desired rhythm and repeats it until it is forced into the consciousness of the listener. He feels it, imitates it and finally plays or sings it, confidently and unerringly. It should be a joy to the teacher, making the problem of teaching rhythm no longer a problem. There is a system of key chords which makes it easy for one to transcribe any rhythm upon a paper record with a special punch, then the record is played on the Rhyth-o-phone, sounding out the rhythm exactly as recorded. There is no rhythm which cannot be demonstrated. The tempo may be the lowered cost of instruction have made it popular.

It is a well-known fact that classical work in piano and violin is past the experimental stage and is becoming an important part of instruction in all of the modern schools of music.

Mrs. Bryan's classes in theory and entertaining are proving of great value to the students of piano and violin who are taking advantage of them.

GIVES DALTON CONCERT.
Ben J. Potter, well-known Atlanta pianist and professor of organ at Brenau College in Gainesville, gave a recital last week in Dalton at the spacious home of Mrs. M. E. Judd, who has recently had installed in her home a beautiful two-manual Wicks organ.

The recital was given for the benefit of the Dalton public library. An enthusiastic and appreciative audience filled Mrs. Judd's home to greet Mr. Potter's performance. The recital at Trinity Methodist church presented by Mr. Potter last Sunday evening, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Duerlinger, vocal teachers of Brenau, was attended by a large audience and I am hearing fine reports of the recital. I am sorry I could not be present.

APPRECIATION OF SYMPHONY.
The second "Appreciation of the Symphony" evening will take place Monday at 8:30 o'clock at the Atlanta Conservatory of Music. Hugh Hodgson will discuss Mozart's contribution to the symphony, and, assisted by Irene Lettich, will play one entire symphony and movements from several of Mozart's most interesting symphonies.

DEVELOPING AMERICAN CONDUCTORS.
The following letter from the management of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra came to my desk this week and as it holds news of particular interest to musicians I am quoting parts of it:

"In entering, last week, upon the rehearsals of the Philadelphia orchestra for the approaching season, Leopold Stokowski announced an experiment in developing conductors which he believes might some day become significant in the musical life of America."

"In my work with the Philadelphia orchestra," Mr. Stokowski said, "I have been looking for the best person for conducting possessed by a number of the instrumentalists in our orchestra. I have been thinking what could be done to develop this talent and this year I have decided to initiate an experiment for a trial period of three months. That will give us time to test the idea."

"I am forming a group of players in the Philadelphia orchestra who seem to have talent and potentiality for conducting and the plan is to give these artists almost daily experience in conducting. The idea may ultimately deeply benefit and enrich the musical life of the country as a whole, and that is the motive of the present experiment."

"The time is perhaps not far distant when there will be in every city and town in the United States orchestras, staffed by partly of professional musicians and partly of amateurs and these organizations will offer constant and natural opportunities to American composers and American conductors."

"If the instrumentalists of the Philadelphia orchestra can aid in such a project, I feel that they will have made a contribution of direct significance to music everywhere, and to the artistic and social life of the United States."

College Park Club.
The College Park Music Club, Miss Eloise Olds, president, held its first meeting of the season Wednesday afternoon, with a large attendance. Several distinguished visitors were present, including Miss Evelyn Jackson, president of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs; Miss Helen Knox, state conductor; and Mr. Robert Guy, well-known baritone, in a brilliant program.

Announcement was made by Mrs. Bateman that under her direction the College Park Music Club chorus was ready to begin its twelfth year's work. Mrs. Eva L. Thornton to serve as chorus chairman, Mrs. E. Barrett will be hostess to the chorus during the year. Plans were announced for the study group by Mrs. Raymond Williams, chairman, who stated that "Our American Music" by Howard, had been selected for study.

Following the meeting a brief social hour was enjoyed. Miss Josephine Bowling presiding over the tea table.

An outline of the season's program is as follows: October, miscellaneous; Mrs. W. W. Bateman, chairman; November, violin music, Mrs. C. W. Wall, chairman; December, Christmas program, Mrs. Eva L. Thornton, chairman. January through May, correlation of the arts. January, the classical period, Miss Dixie Stephens, chairman; February, the romantic period, Mrs. H. L. Jacobs, chairman; March, the modern period, Mrs. Raymond Williams, chairman; April, the ultra-modern, Mrs. J. W. Stephens, chairman; May, American music, Mrs. Hugh Couch, chairman. Every program will feature outstanding artists. It is predicted that the program series will be the year's one of the most interesting ever sponsored by the club.

Sluggers' Victim Dies
Never Leaving Coma

In a coma at Grady hospital for nine days after he had been found slung and badly beaten in the front yard of his home, at 363 Cooper street, W. Ernest Keesee, 35, died shortly after noon Saturday, never regaining consciousness and with the identity of his assailants locked behind his death-stilled lips.

Since Keesee has been in the hospital Atlanta detectives have attempted to locate or identify his assailants without success. He was found, the morning of October 4, unconscious in the front yard of his home, taken to Grady hospital, where attendants resuscitated him and his hand which was broken between the wrist and fingers. At the hospital it was said his skull was decompressed.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Keesee, and three sisters, Mrs. C. L. Heister, Mrs. E. H. Harrington and Mrs. R. M. Miller, all of Atlanta. Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the chapel of J. A. Dill Company with the Rev. T. T. Davis officiating.

FUNERAL RITES TODAY

Bori To Open Concert Series At Auditorium on Thursday

LUCREZIA BORI.

Lucrezia Bori, Atlanta's favorite among Metropolitan Opera prima donnas, will give her first concert here at the city auditorium next Thursday evening as the first feature of the All-Star Concert Series presented by the Atlanta Music Club and the Atlanta Philharmonic Society.

Bori speaks of herself as being three different characters. There is the prima donna, the interpreter of the most difficult roles, and the singer who is forever giving the closest scrutiny and consideration to what most people would probably consider unworthy of an opera singer's close attention—the selection of appropriate costumes, libraries and museums have to be searched in order to satisfy her that the costume will be just right to help in creating the perfect illusion.

It is this "working woman" that has won her reputation of being the best dressed artist on the operatic stage.

DAIRY, FOOD, DRUG MEN MEET HERE THIS WEEK

National Association of Officials Hold Convention Monday to Thursday.

The thirty-eighth annual conference of the Association of Dairy, Food and Drug Officials of the United States will be held here this week, beginning Monday and continuing through Thursday. The sessions are to be held at the Henry Grady hotel. The first two days' sessions will be open to the public and the final two days will be executive, although all state, county and city officials interested are invited to attend an informal discussion of problems of the membership, scheduled for Wednesday afternoon.

Governor Talmadge and Mayor Key are on the opening program Monday, the latter appearing at the morning session, at which Dr. T. F. Abernethy, Georgia director of public health, and C. L. Clay, of New Orleans, president of the association, also are to speak. Governor Talmadge will address the conference at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Tuesday's program will include addresses by Dr. T. F. Sellers, of the state department of health, on "Food Storage and Typhus Fever;" Chicken "Chickens of the Future," a member of the National Association of Retail Druggists, on "The Trend of Drug Control," and Dr. Glenville Giddings, of Atlanta, on "Violet Ray Sterilization of Soda Fountain Glasses."

Reports of the various committees of the organization and election of officers for the ensuing year are on the program for Thursday morning.

This is the first time the association has ever met in Georgia. Dr. C. Reynolds Clark, former state chemist, is in charge of local arrangements.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURER SPEAKS

Stressing the necessity for exactness and correctness in the study and application of Christian Science, Professor Hermann S. Hering, a member of the board of lecturers of the Mother Church, Friday night lectured on "Christian Science: Some Rudimentary Applications" at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peachtree and Fifteenth streets.

"To understand the practice of Christian Science," Professor Hering explained, "one must acquire a knowledge of spiritual truth by turning thought from materialism toward divinity, and cultivating a spiritualized consciousness. Understanding of Christian Science is gained only through genuine study of the Bible and Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy's writings, coupled with prayer."

"As in all walks of life, it is the universal experience that the achievement of success in any direction requires application, so in Christian Science," he pointed out, "the application of the truth, as revealed in the Scriptures, is of vital importance, not only for the student's immediate welfare, but especially for spiritual progress."

LIONS TO CIRCULATE $5 BILL THIS WEEK

Members of the Atlanta Lions Club this week are going to determine just how many debts a $5 bill can absorb within five days.

The bill will be put in circulation at the club's luncheon at the Henry Grady hotel at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when it will be awarded to the chairman of the committee who has all members of his committee present at the luncheon. According to the rules, the chairman must spend the money with a member of the club who will, in turn, apply the $5 on an indebtedness with a fellow Lion, who also will apply it on an indebtedness, the procedure repeating itself until the week is expired.

BORAH BACKS TRUCKER AGAINST CODE ACT

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 13.—(AP)—For a second time, Senator William E. Borah, republican, Idaho, volunteered today to battle a code authority threatening, he said, to drive a small operator out of business.

Advised by Sam Bailey, of Layway, a small north Idaho town, that he had been ordered to comply with the code of operation for his trucking business, Senator Borah urged him to go ahead in his usual way and predicted the truck authority would attempt to enforce the code against him.

JOHNSON RETURNS TO PRIVATE LIFE

Friends Predict General Will Become Special Adviser on NRA Issues.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, blazing meteor of President Roosevelt's industrial recovery drive, steps back tomorrow into private life.

Ahead of the 52-year-old retired general is a business career of still unknown proportions. Close friends predict the blunt-spoken Blue Eagle creator will become a special adviser on new problems with his services available to labor and industry alike.

Behind him was an indelible record of gigantic achievement—the codifying of American business on a little more than a year by a law he largely wrote himself. In the place of his one-man bossdom at NRA, a seven-man board now rules.

Johnson's reflections on his whirlwind months of welding business into fair competition agreements were kept to himself. But if intimate associates know the general's views, he considered these things as accomplished and regarded them with pride.

Outstanding child labor. The re-employment of 3,000,000 workers by shortening the work week.

Boosting the national income $3,000,000,000 by raising wage scales. As for short-comings in the recovery program, those knowing his thoughts stressed two:

A below-schedule spending of actual cash in the public works program; and

A lack of firmer understanding of purposes of the recovery act.

Miss Shepperson praised the work of the Community Chest here, and re-emphasized the point that federal relief in no manner relieves local communities, which has been cited as a "public fallacy" since the federal agencies were set up.

Need For Chest Funds. "Private agencies do not receive public funds," said Miss Shepperson. "Under the law, federal funds can not be used for the care of dependent children in institutions and foster homes or other essential services performed by your local welfare agencies. As heretofore, the support of this work is placed squarely upon the citizens of Atlanta and Fulton and DeKalb counties."

"There has never been a time when we needed to provide more thorough facilities in our communities which tend toward building up the morale of our young boys and girls, many of them unemployed, their families on relief and their morale shaken. I refer particularly to the need for continued development of our character-building agencies."

"The government is helping and will help the able-bodied unemployed, but it can not and will not assume tasks which rightfully belong to the citizens of the local community."

"The chest must not fail at this critical time. No one is warranted in using government relief as an alibi for not making a donation to the chest."

SIMMERS FACES ROBBERY CHARGES

Boykin To Demand 101 Years More for Youth Given Life in Murder.

The state of Georgia is not through with Hoyt Summers.

Given a life sentence Friday for his part in the slaying of Max Sjoblom, Iowa salesman shot down at Spring and Marietta streets three weeks ago, Summers is facing further prosecutions for sundry robberies charged to him and confessed to by his accomplice Robert Riley, now under indictment.

Total penalties of 101 years will be asked by the state, according to Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, in order that the man's record may be known if at any time clemency is sought for him. The solicitor has requested that the record in the case be printed for permanent preservation.

In commenting on the case Saturday, Boykin called upon the public to bring pressure to bear upon the law-making body of the state to bring about a change in the parole laws. "Nothing illustrates the necessity of our parole laws being changed," Boykin said, "more than a case like this. Under the laws of Georgia such a person is eligible for parole for any term of murder, at any time, after he has served three years."

"Such a condition ought to prompt the legislature to change this law at once. Most states fix the time of such a system as we have in this case, but it is some very obscure case, no murderer ever serves more than 10 years. The prison commission is always flooded with a host of applications for parole in which there is no basis for a result of our lax parole laws."

"Why should the criminal hesitate to commit premeditated murder, to rob, to kidnap, when it is estimated in the United States the chances are six to one that he will never be arrested, 12 to one that he will never be convicted, 120 to one that he will never die for the crime—if sentenced to the penitentiary for life, he will serve less than 10 years?"

In addition to the charges pending against Summers in Fulton county, Summers probably will face prosecution in DeKalb county as well. Calvin Cole, who assisted Boykin in the prosecution of Summers, said that he has requested Claude Smith, solicitor-general of DeKalb county, to bring before the grand jury the case of E. Harkins, one of the alleged hold-up victims of Riley and Summers, who appeared as a witness in the two cases.

Riley and Summers are credited by investigators with having performed the major part of the recent string of hold-up robberies which has terrorized motorists throughout the district. According to Cole, Riley told officers that he and Summers had committed no other hold-ups, but could not begin to remember all of them.

In addition to the instances in which indictments have been returned against the pair, Boykin said that other cases may be brought before the grand jury.

Besides facing prosecution for robbing H. G. Turner, D. W. Record and R. F. Smith, each of whom lost an automobile and whose lives were threatened by Summers, Riley has been charged with intent to rob E. H. Griggs, who testified during the two trials that the pair attempted to rob him and that Riley hit him on the head with a pistol.

Mrs. Thomas Seidell, church organist, dies.

Mrs. Thomas Grayson Seidell, widely known Atlanta musician and church organist, died Saturday after an illness of several years. She resided at 20 Exeter road.

Since she came here to live in 1922, Mrs. Seidell gained a wide reputation as an organist of exceptional ability. She was organist of the Episcopal church of St. Luke Episcopal church, of which she was a member. Previously she had been organist of the Second Baptist church and of All Saints Episcopal church.

Her husband, who survives her, is professor of electrical engineering at the Georgia School of Technology and she was well known in educational circles here.

During the World War Mrs. Seidell took an active part in the work of the Y. W. C. A. and was secretary of the hostess house at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. Previously she had been active in the affairs of the Episcopal church here and was diocesan president of the junior auxiliary of the Episcopal church in Atlanta.

She was the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Duck, of Decatur, and in addition to her parents survived by two sisters, Miss Bertha Duck, of Decatur, and Mrs. Lyman Aulls, of Tampa.

Mrs. Seidell had studied widely in music and attended Syracuse University, where she majored in that subject. She also studied under well-known teachers in Buffalo, N. Y., Washington, D. C., and Chicago, Ill. She was a native of New York state.

Funeral services are to be conducted by Dean Raimundo de Ories at 10 o'clock Monday morning at St. Luke's Episcopal church and interment will be in West View cemetery. A. S. Turner, funeral director, is in charge of the arrangements.

News of STAGE and SCREEN

EDITED BY RALPH T. JONES

"Wagon Wheels" by Zane Grey Stars Randolph Scott at Fox

One of the most stirring adventures in the history of the conquest of the west came to the screen of the Fox theater Friday in the Paramount film of Zane Grey's "Wagon Wheels," featuring Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick, Monte Blue and Raymond Hatton. Scott is well known in Atlanta, as he played football at Georgia Tech in 1919 and was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Adapted from the well-known novel, "Fighting Caravans," by Zane Grey, the picture is a stirring account of the famous trip by the covered wagon caravan from Independence, Mo., to Oregon in 1844, when the sturdy, adventurous American pioneers first went out to homestead the new country.

At the opening of the picture the frontier scouts, headed by Scott, Hatton and Olin Howland, are preparing to guide the caravan across the country, when it is joined by a lovely widow, Gail Patrick and her little boy, fleeing from her husband's pursuers. In the wagon train is a half-breed renegade Indian, played by Monte Blue, who hopes to prevent the pioneers from reaching their goal.

Before half the journey is accomplished the pioneers lose many of their number to the Indians who are being secretly stirred up by Blue. As they descend the western slope of the Rockies, however, the Indians, with Blue leading them, strike in what seems to be a crushing onslaught. The hard-pressed pioneers are about to give up their fight when Scott, by a clever ruse, turns the tide of battle and the Indians flee, leaving the pioneers to pursue their peaceful way. Needless to say, Scott wins the girl's love and her little son is promised a new father.

The natural scenery of the Rockies and the forest backgrounds are among the most impressive and beautiful ever brought to the screen. There is a great deal of wholesome comedy furnished by the romance between Jan Duggan, who was seen with W. C. Fields in "The Old-Fashioned Way," and Olin Howland, as middle-aged lovers, and by 4-year-old Billy Lee, the latest of the juvenile film discoveries.

The short subjects include a musical novelty featuring Jack Denny and his band, a comedy titled "Coni on the Cop," a cartoon titled "Rhythm With the Bow," and the regular bi-weekly Fox News.

"Scandals" on Capitol Stage, "Return of Terror" on Screen

The new stage show starting at the Capitol theater today comes billed as Marlene K. Moore's "Scandals" with an additional billing announcing it as the World's Fair edition. Dancing, comedy and vaudeville novelties are featured in the revue. The screen program for the week will be the much talked about Warner Brothers production, "Return of the Terror" with Mary Astor, Lyle Talbot, Frank McHugh, Irving Pichel and many others.

"The Four Bars of Harmony," nationally famous quartet, which has scored a tremendous hit for the past two weeks, is again being held over. It was announced, however, that because of a stage contract, this will be the final week the quartet can appear at the Capitol.

Among the stars of the stage show will be found, Phil Phillips, famous master of comedies and trick trap drummer; Jan Deane, Harlem dancer; Sally Ryan and her artistic fan dance; Sidney Del Doss, billed as "Miss Personality"; the Three Stooges, kings of laughter; Ewell Ratliff, prince of taps; California stage band and the Scandal Girls, a line of talented and well-trained girls.

More thrills and chills than have been packed into a single picture in many a long day are promised in the mystery drama, "Return of the Terror."

The startling plot of the screen play is credited to an exciting novel by one of the greatest of all mystery writers, Edgar Wallace.

There is not just one mystery but many, beginning with a series of arsenic poisonings at a private sanatorium for which the superintendent is convicted and sent to an insane asylum and culminating with three more killings and two attempted murders at the same institution in a night of terror after the superintendent has escaped from the asylum.

The picture is stated to be just as interesting as two other mystery pictures made within the past year by Warner, namely, "Dr. X" and "Mystery of the Wax Museum." The new Capitol picture was recently presented in one of New York's largest theaters and played a hold-over engagement.

Because of the strange nature of the story, the Capitol management has issued a statement advising all prospective Capitol patrons to make plans to see the picture from the beginning. Starting time of the feature daily can be secured by calling the cashier of the theater or referring to the theater programs published in The Constitution.

Other featured performers will be Vic Hellam, Donnie Williams, Al Pharr and, returning by popular demand, Ral Rathbun, among the comedians. Then there will be Ray King, the Bowers sisters, Beulah Beyer, Peggy Phillips, etc.

The opening number for the show will be a boogie of roses arrangement based on Rubinoff's "Rose Song" arrangement. Another big number will be a Russian dock scene, with a silver love boat formed by the girls of the ensemble. The first act finale will be laid in Cairo, with the posing girls representing various cigarettes and with a surprise tableau for the finish.

Something different in burlesque will be seen in excerpts from "Little Jesse James," featuring the Bowers sisters, while Beulah Beyer will do a "out" number and another big scene will be a feature built around "Little Women."

The new show will be offered for the first time this afternoon at 2:30 and tonight at 8:30. Two performances will be given every day during the entire week through Friday, with another new production scheduled for first opening next Saturday matinee.

Box office opened daily at 11 a. m. for sale of reserved seats.

Atlanta Offers New Burlesque Starting Today

An entirely new show, with several new people in the featured spots and with all the old favorites retained, will be presented at the Atlanta theater today, at the matinee at 2:30 and the night show at 8:30. The theater, only burlesque house in the city, is operated on Sundays by Atlanta Post No. 1 of the American Legion.

The title of the new show, which has been produced by Pierre Dale is "Rare Facts of 1934." It is a swinging, snappy, stumpy burlesque, filled with color and spectacular stage settings, with clever songs and hilarious comedy.

A new strip woman, Mary Jane, will be the feminine star of the performance. She arrived here last week from New York, where she has been one of the outstanding hits of Gotham's burlesque patrons. She was acclaimed by critics and audiences alike as the sensation of the New York runways and she ought to be an even greater sensation in Atlanta.

Other featured performers will be Vic Hellam, Donnie Williams, Al Pharr and, returning by popular demand, Ral Rathbun, among the comedians. Then there will be Ray King, the Bowers sisters, Beulah Beyer, Peggy Phillips, etc.

The opening number for the show will be a boogie of roses arrangement based on Rubinoff's "Rose Song" arrangement. Constance Bennett at Grand As Iris Marsh in 'Outcast Lady'

Again Michael Arlen's green-hatted heroine, Iris Marsh, "fair and frail," comes to the screen, this time impersonated by Constance Bennett. Katharine Cornell played this role on the stage and Greta Garbo was seen in a silent film version. In this role Constance Bennett, supported by an excellent cast, adds new laurels to her achievements as a screen actress. This film, "Outcast Lady," now at Loew's Grand, was produced by Irving Thalberg and directed by Robert Z. Leonard.

Modern England, with its problems and its age-old gallantry, is the scene of "Outcast Lady." Iris Marsh has been in love with Napier since they were both children. The story opens in rural England, where Iris awaits to greet Napier. He has been for several years in India, and he is home for a few weeks' vacation.

Napier is a promising member of the diplomatic corps. With a wealthy marriage, he is likely to become one of England's great political leaders in the days to come. Iris, realizing this, is well enough, and being poor herself, refuses to marry Napier. Instead, she accepts the proposal of her brother's best friend, Boy Fenwick. Boy and Iris are married. When, on their wedding night, Iris accidentally discovers a black scandal about her bridegroom, Boy, unable to face her, kills himself.

Iris, always gallant, refuses to tell why Boy killed himself. Every one, even her brother, believing Boy to be of untarnished reputation, think that some revelation of the bride caused Boy to kill himself. Her name blackened by this scandal, Iris goes abroad, where her recklessness makes her a notorious woman. She is called back to London by her brother's illness, and here she again encounters Napier. He is about to be married, but with circumstances conspiring, they are swept together in a tempestuous, brief love affair.

Constance Bennett contributes a stunning impersonation of Iris; Herbert Marshall is Napier; Ralph Forbes is Boy Fenwick; Elizabeth Allan is Venice, Napier's wife, and Hugh Williams is Iris' brother.

Pete Smith's current Oddier demonstrates the intricacies of football maneuvers and adds considerably to the program.

Music Romance Brings New Star To 4 Theaters

Guy Robertson, Broadway light opera and musical comedy star, makes his local screen debut today in "King Kelly of the U. S. A.," a clever, tuneful and delightfully funny comedy romance which has its first run presentation today at the Buckhead, Hilan and Madison theaters and tomorrow at the College Park.

This is the third of the first-run productions being offered Atlanta under the new system whereby a group of community houses combine to bring the best of screen entertainment to their patrons, screen entertainment never seen before in any local theater, either the large uptown houses or the neighborhoods. And they are shown at no advance in prices, despite the added advantage of being able to see and enjoy them at the most convenient, for you, of our comfortable, delightfully intimate, perfectly equipped houses and altogether free of traffic and auto parking worries.

Robertson is the possessor of a splendid baritone voice as well as a personality that is sure to keep him on the top rung of screen popularity. He starred on Broadway in such productions as "Student Prince," "All the King's Horses," etc. It is quite probable that his work in this, his first picture, will make him even greater on the screen than he was on the stage.

The picture is lightest comedy, with a clever plot burlesquing a small European kingdom, its king and officials and the American who goes there to pull it out of a deep financial hole. You must see the king, played by Ferdinand Gottschalk, selling hot dogs and souvenir photos in the palace to crowds of tourists walk through and the way in which the American sells the king's only asset, a half million mops, is a scream.

Irene Ware, "Miss America" of several years ago, is one of the loveliest heroines seen in a long time and there are also plenty of other good-looking girls in the cast. Edgar Kennedy handles most of the comedy, while Frankie Pangborn has another important role.

At least three songs destined to be popular hits are sung by Robertson in the production, including a delightful ballad, "Next Door to Love."

The picture plays the four theaters named for the first half of this week. It is a delightful, hilariously funny romance and one that everyone will talk about for a long time after they have enjoyed its comedy, love and music.

Will Rogers in "Judge Priest" Is Held Over at Paramount

Playing to capacity crowds all last week, Will Rogers in his latest picture, "Judge Priest," will continue the record-breaking run at the Paramount until next Thursday. This extended run was arranged by the management for the benefit of thousands who were unable to find seats during last week's showing.

A sleepy Kentucky town of the early nineties supplies the background for this newest Rogers' vehicle, fashioned from the famous Irvin S. Cobb stories of the small-town judge and his Civil War cronies. The film gives Rogers probably the finest opportunity of his screen career.

Richer in flavor even than the shrewd Yankee horse trader of "David Harum," the Iowa farmer of "State Fair" or the wise and patient westerner of "They Had to See Paris," the drawing but quick-witted southern jurist is a memorable addition to the Rogers gallery of "representative Americans."

The star's portrayal of Judge Priest has the mark of authenticity upon it. It is a notable folk portrait, just as his characterizations have been; the blending of a splendid talent with a rich and splendid role. But more than that, it stands alone for its sheer dramatic power. Irvin S. Cobb's stories seem to have been written for no one but Rogers.

Rogers is supported by one of the best all-round companies that has reached a local screen in months. Henry B. Walthall has an important role. Anita Louise, Tom Brown and Rochelle Hudson form a romantic and youthful love triangle. David Landau, Stepin Fetchit, Charley Grapewin, Bertone Churchill and Roger Imhof are other players assigned to leading roles. Sol M. Wurtzel is listed as producer of "Judge Priest," which Dudley Nichols and Lamar Trotti adapted to the screen from the Irvin S. Cobb stories.

On the short feature program are "The Girl at the Ironing Board," a cartoon, and "Rhythm on the Roof," featuring Anson Weeks and his orchestra and Bob Crosby, brother of the famous Bing, with the Paramount News.

The story deals with the romance of Ann Sothorn as "Kitty Taylor," a telephone operator who, because she is the sole support of her somewhat lazy family, is forced to postpone her own marriage to Bill (Paul Kelly), a kind-hearted though rough sort of automobile mechanic.

Kitty is incensed with Bill when, because of his efforts to build up a small business, he breaks several engagements with her. She accepts a girl friend's offer to make a "blind date" for her and this way meets Bob Hartwell (Neil Hamilton), son of a wealthy department store owner.

This meeting blossoms into romance, but Bob's father, trying to break up the affair, sends Bob to Florida. And the world's most beautiful girls, in the Kitty and her family fall on harder times than before. Bill then helps out by giving Kitty's father a job in his garage, but the old man's carelessness results in an accident that sends Bill to the hospital.

Bob returns, only to find Kitty feeling so obligated to Bill that she must marry him. How the story works out provides a surprising and entirely satisfactory climax to a piece of utterly modern, clean and fascinating screen entertainment.

"Blind Date" will remain at the Rialto today and tomorrow, to be followed on Tuesday by the big musical film, "Wonder Bar," with Al Jolson, Dick Powell, Ricardo Cortez, Kay Francis and a host of other popular players, as well as a handful of the world's most beautiful girls, in the cast.

Carefully selected short subjects complete both programs of the week.

Government Credit Strength Termed Favorable by C. of C.

Effort To Force States and Localities To Take Larger Share of Relief Burden Forecast.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP)—A "favorable indication of the strength of government credit" was found in the success of the treasury's huge bond conversion program today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

In addition, the organization, which repeatedly has opposed large governmental expenditures, forecast in its fortnightly review an effort for the coming winter to "force states and localities to assume a larger share of the relief burden."

Such action, it said, if accompanied by a "marked upswing in business," with a resulting increased federal tax yield, "would make budget balancing a simpler problem." However, it said that "relief will continue on a wide scale so long as there is country-wide unemployment."

Of the recent resurgence of inflationary reports and yesterday's general denial that immediate steps in this direction were planned, the chamber had nothing to say. It took note, nevertheless, of President Roosevelt's assertion of mid-week that prices were still too low for monetary stabilization.

Official expressions of a desire to see a further rise in prices have not given a clear-cut idea as to just what is intended or how it is going to be brought about," the review said.

"It is believed the administration does not have in mind any general price rise, such as was talked about some time ago, but rather would like to see a better balancing of prices."

with price increases in commodities and values that fell most and which have not responded proportionally."

The president, meanwhile, is not revealing just what he did mean by his reference to prices and he is not binding himself against further inflationary moves such as another devaluation of the gold dollar.

His laughing reply of yesterday that he was "neither a prestidigitator nor an astrologer," when asked if more devaluation was planned, was generally interpreted as ample evidence of that. It was considered to mean, too, that inflation was out of the program for the near future.

Nevertheless, keeping in close touch with financial and monetary matters, the chief executive cruised upon sun-flooded Chesapeake Bay today with Secretary Morgenthau and Governor George L. Harrison, of the New York Federal Reserve bank, as his guests. He will sail up the Potomac river tomorrow, returning to the White House probably after midnight.

Morgenthau, just before departing last night, announced the latest move in the treasury's bond conversion campaign, calling in $1,670,000,000 in Fourth Liberty bonds for redemption in cash or exchange for government securities bearing an interest rate below the 4-1/4 per cent paid on the Liberties.

It was the third call for a portion of the Fourth Liberty issue and will bring to more than five billion dollars the total of that issue redeemed or exchanged within the year. By substituting bonds bearing 3-1/4 and 2-1/2 per cent, an annual saving of more than $30,000,000 in interest charges on the public debt has been effected.

Federal reserve system figures, meanwhile, showed that the country's banks have increased their holdings

Cuba Asks Education For Traffic Safety

Law enforcement and a program of education must be employed co-operatively in attaining safety in traffic, according to Mrs. Cuba, councilman from the second ward, in a statement made Saturday night in behalf of the traffic safety campaign now under way in Atlanta.

"Law enforcement and a wholesome program of education must work hand in hand to the end that driving sanity will be restored and the law respected by all," said Mrs. Cuba. "Our traffic faults in the main cannot be corrected by law enforcement and penalties properly begin where the exercise of common sense, caution and respect for law ends."

"The most aggravated traffic disease," she continued, "that we contend with today is the complete disregard by automobile drivers of the simple and fundamental rules of the road. These include disregard for laws of right-of-way, signaling when turning or stopping, violating electric-controlled stations, stop signs, excessive speed and general recklessness."

Of government bonds to the highest point in history, absorbing more than half of the last year's $4,000,000,000 increase in the public debt. Their total holdings, combined with those of the reserve banks, were estimated at more than half the entire public debt of $27,000,000,000.

In this connection, the United States chamber, continuing the current comparisons of American and British recovery methods, noted that British banks were paid a commission of one-eighth to one-quarter of one per cent for handling the London government's large refunding operations of late 1932.

It found a "marked contrast" in the participation of American banks in the current program and said that "similar services on the part of the American banks have been repeatedly rendered without cost to the government."

In another monetary outgrowth, Undersecretary Phillips, of the state department, today announced the dispatch of a reply to China's protest that the administration's silver purchasing program threatened to destroy that country's trade and its monetary stability.

The contents of the note were not announced, but it was learned that the treasury intends to go ahead with its silver buying in compliance with the orders of congress. An effort will be made to prevent any resulting severe drain on China's silver holdings, however. The country is on a silver standard.

Giant Anteaters Strangest Of Creatures in Circus Zoo

Some of the giant anteaters recently added to the menagerie of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus.

Of all the strange and unusual animals in the mammoth menagerie of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circuits, a group of giant anteaters are most remarkable in appearance.

Several of these edentate mammals from South America, declared by zoologists to be the largest and most perfect specimens ever exhibited, are attracting wide attention this season in the big show's great traveling university of natural history.

From an educational standpoint these animals, recently added to the superb zoo of the huge amusement organization, are an exceptional feature.

With its nose and jaws prolonged into a long, narrow tubular snout, with a small circular toothless mouth at the end, the anteater thrusts out its slender elongated tongue about 18 inches in length, covered with glutinous saliva to gather its insect food. These peculiarities of its structure, together with the spectacular black and white markings on its furry body, its immense bushy tail three feet long

LABOR TO ENLIST WALLS MORE

Workers Heretofore Un- organized Will Be Aided by Federation, Says Lewis.

By JOHN L. LEWIS,
President of the United Mine Workers.
(Written for the Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—The action of the convention of the American Federation of Labor on industry unions represents a major change in policy.

The convention specifically ordered issuance of charters to national or international unions in the automotive, cement and aluminum industries; in addition, the enlarged executive council of the federation is instructed to charter unions of the same type in other mass production and miscellaneous industries at will.

Thus the federation adapts itself to the changed requirements of modern industry and undertakes in a practical way the definite task of bringing into the federation some millions of workers heretofore unorganized.

This change of policy does not betoken any change in form or structure of the existing national or international unions affiliated with the federation and organized along craft lines.

It must not be forgotten that the skilled artisans in America were the first of all workmen to organize and to establish craft unions; the craftsmen in these unions were men of ambition and character, and they laid the foundation and erected the structure of the organized labor movement in America. Without the leadership of these men, the membership of the craft organizations it is extremely doubtful that the workers in mass production industries would have established the right to organize.

New Policy's Effect.
The new policy of the American Federation of Labor in no manner affects or disturbs the established and efficient craft unions in such skilled groups as the allied printing trades, the building trades, or the eighteen craft organizations in the railway industry.

This policy is one devised to organize the unorganized, and by no means is it intended to disrupt, fully the immediate organizations of the established unions in the skilled trades.

The enlargement of the governing body of the American Federation of Labor gives assurance of an efficient administration of the new policy; the enlarged executive council may be relied upon to supervise successfully the immediate organizations of the workers in our modern industries as well as to protect the rights of our craft unions to continue to exist and prosper in the skilled trades heretofore organized.

The delegates to the San Francisco convention of the American Federation of Labor exercised commendable statesmanship in the difficult task of formulation and enactment of this new policy.

Leaders Adjust Selves.
As a whole, the leaders of the American Federation of Labor have already adjusted themselves to the change, a fact exemplified by the unanimous vote in the convention when the policy was approved.

There will be, of course, individuals here and there who may attempt to retard the effectuation of the policy, but the vast majority of the workers in our modern industries as well as to protect the rights of our craft unions to continue to exist and prosper in the skilled trades heretofore organized.

The delegates to the San Francisco convention of the American Federation of Labor exercised commendable statesmanship in the difficult task of formulation and enactment of this new policy.

This Georgia Play Gained 45 Yards

This play, one of the outstanding ones of Saturday's game at Athens in which North Carolina defeated Georgia, 14 to 0, shows the greatest pass of the day. In the extreme left, just ahead of two Carolina players, Al Minot, Georgia halfback, may be seen racing down the field, looking over his shoulder at the ball, which is seen above and a bit behind him. It was thrown by John Bond, with the ball being passed back to him from the Georgia 47-yard line. He threw it to Minot, who caught it 16 yards from the goal line with a magnificent leaping catch a second or so after this picture was snapped. He got it to the 8-yard line, where he fell, having stumbled as he caught the ball. His catch was almost impossible, yet he made it. It was Georgia's one great play. After this the pass attack, because of rushing, was not effective. The Carolina linemen broke it up. Photo by J. T. Holloway.

Aerial Game Of Duke Beats Jackets, 20 to 0

By Jimmy Jones.

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 13.—With 30,000 voices demanding that justice be done with an iron heel, the Duke University Blue Devils turned loose 10 months of pent-up bitterness in a first-quarter touchdown assault here on this crisp October afternoon to break through, if belated, vengeance on the Georgia Tech football team for the loss of a trip to the Rose Bowl last December.

The vengeance thus satisfied is numerically chronicled in the score of 20 to 0, by which Tech was defeated. With all the fury and intensity of men who had waited almost a year for just such a moment, this 1934 Duke machine of Wallace Wade, acclaimed by a loyal homecoming day crowd, lost no time in tearing itself for the annihilation of the Georgians who spoiled an otherwise great season for them last year and upset all their plans for a coast trip.

The thousands of North Carolinians who followed the Duke team, victorious in nine straight games last year, to Atlanta, returned here today, augmented by many more thousands. And their cheering was that of a victory-mad throng as the Blue Devils swept down the field for two touchdowns in the first 10 minutes of play on the unerring passing of a sophomore sharpshooter named Clarence Parker.

The unerring toe of "Corky" Cornelius, who caught one of the touchdowns, added the two extra points and Tech was trailing 14-0 before the opening quarter was up.

A GREAT ARM. It was the great arm of Parker which really started Tech from the football game so early, although equally true fingers of an end named Wentz and halfback Cornelius must be given credit for two beautiful catches of the touchdown passes.

The first of these came with the lightning swift stroke of an eagle swooping upon its prey from high above.

Duke had gained the ball soon after the opening kick-off on Tech's 35-yard line when Jack Phillips fumbled and Terrell, the Duke right end, recovered.

Two backs by Alexander and Cornelius' eight-yard sprint around and placed it on the Tech 18. Then Parker, sophomore, faded back and sent a high, floating pass over toward SANFORD FIELD, ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 13.—Give the people bread and the circus. I think it was Caesar who said that. Or maybe it was Shakespeare. Someone said it. Or is alleged to have said it.

And Athens today was doing the job well, an old-fashioned circus with elephants and beautiful ladies and tigers and clowns and a street parade on the outskirts of the city and in the stadium a football circus with Mr. Harry Mehre hoping there were no clowns in his football cast.

Rus was in urbe today and Rus was going to the circus and getting plastered and buying ice cream cones and red balloons and barbecue sandwiches and such. I watched Rus in urbe buying the barbecue sandwiches for a long, long time. And he never seemed to mind that he was paying for about a half dozen slices of barbecued pig about what he gets for a whole pig on the hoof. I understand that after a farmer raises a hog he doesn't even get his overhead back unless he happens to have joined in with Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Rus in urbe was eating what was maybe one of his own pigs which he had lugged food to and carted off to town. Well, he was having a good time doing it. Which is what counts. Rus in urbe went off to the circus to drink pink lemonade and watched the beautiful equestriennes and the clowns and to buy peanuts for the elephants. I rather envied Rus in urbe as I trudged off to the stadium. After all a circus is a circus.

SPORTS IN OLD GEORGIA.

North Carolina and Georgia's teams are all spread out on the emerald turf below, kicking, passing and running about. The blue of the Carolina team at one end and the red shirts of Georgia at the other.

There are some of our best minds who object to football but I stick along with those who believe that things are getting better right along.

About the time the University of Georgia was getting started the favorite sports in the colony were log rollings with plenty of booze on hand; gander-pullings in which gander had its neck pulled off; shooting for turkeys and beef with the innocent pet getting itself all shot up until a merciful bullet happened to strike the vital spot.

Those were the more innocent amusements. Wrestling, in which gouging an eye was the chief object, was the delight of the sport-loving people. This sport was so prevalent that in 1787 the legislature made it a high crime "to cut out or disable the tongue, gouge out an eye, slit the nose or lips, bite off an ear or nose or in any other manner disfigure any member of the body." Oh, those were lovely parlor sports, those sports of the old pioneer days in Georgia and the other colonies. It is too bad about football being such a brutal sport.

I do wish the fussy old pedagogues would quit comparing us with the old barbaric days.

WHEN THE SHAD RAN IN THE OCONEE.

The history of the old university here, the oldest chartered state university in the nation, is intriguing always.

One reads in Dr. E. M. Coulter's great book that they selected this site for a number of reasons, one of them being that the shad came up the Oconee as far as Athens in great numbers and would provide food for

Petrels Break Moccasin Jinx To Win, 18-0

By Jack Troy.

CHAMBERLAIN FIELD, CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 13.—They promised to kill the old red rooster when she came. But she never showed up or at least the song still hinges on promises.

This afternoon on Chamberlain field, however, Oglethorpe's Stormy Petrels were coming around the mountain in the manner of will-charging Cossacks and there was nothing left to do but kill the old rooster. And all the trimmings as the University of Chattanooga's six-year mastery crumbled before a determined Oglethorpe offensive that pounded out three touchdowns to none. The final score being, therefore, 18 to 0 and Oglethorpe's third victory of the season under alumni Coach John Patrick.

All the brilliance of an Oglethorpe eleven working in perfect unison was injected into today's game and there never was any doubt after the first period as to the outcome.

PETRELS MURDEROUS.

The Petrels were in a murderous mood when they took the field for the opening kickoff. Captain Frank Mitnick led the charge. And with the assistance of Jack Purgear and Belton Clark he took the Gold and Black down to the 21-yard line where Oglethorpe lost the ball on downs as the quarter ended.

It was the end of the first quarter but only the beginning of Oglethorpe's drive. McCullough kicked off of bounds on his own 31-yard line or thereabouts. Six passes carried Tulane to Florida's 47. After an exchange of punts, Tulane drove from her own 35 to Florida's 35. On third down Chase passed to Moye, who ran 65 yards for a touchdown. Stoltz failed to convert. There was no further scoring in the third period.

In the final period, Florida reopened its passing attack. A long one, Chase to Beckwith, gained 50 yards to Tulane's 20. Mitnick intercepted a pass to Rogers on Tulane's 6. Brown intercepted another on Tulane's 19. Simons circled right end for 50 yards to Florida's 19, aided by a penalty. Rodriguez jabbed the line six times to score. Mitnick converted. The game ended as Tulane kicked off.

The Moccasin was sadly outplayed in the first half and Oglethorpe apparently had just started to fight. Oglethorpe seemed in a tight spot as the third quarter barely got under way. Ring got off a good kick and an Oglethorpe player blocked Perry from behind as the ball bounded out. It cost Oglethorpe 15 yards and set her back on the 5-yard line.

Here the resourceful Petrel team pulled the outstanding play of the game. There was no attempt to go into punt formation. Captain Frank

Tulane Beats Strong Florida Eleven, 28-12

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Tulane strengthened its opening bid for Southeastern conference championship honors here today by overcoming, 28 to 12, a Florida team which offered strong resistance.

Fifteen thousand fans saw the game, which was featured by spectacular passing and long runs. Florida fought grimly every inch of the way, and in the third period Moye, Gator right end, snatched Chase's pass and gobbled 65 yards for a touchdown.

The Green Wave opened its aerial attack early in the first period. After taking a punt in midfield, Thomas Chase to Moye, advanced the ball to Tulane's 11-yard line as the first period ended.

On the first play of the second period, W. Brown, Florida quarterback, spiraled around right end for a touchdown. Stark failed to kick goal. After gaining 32 yards on a pass, Mitnick raced 30 yards for a Tulane touchdown. Simons kicked goal. A few plays later Mitnick passed over the goal line from Florida's 15-yard line to Brownson for a touchdown. Mitnick kicked for the extra point.

The Gators renewed their threat in the third period by taking the kick-off on their 2-yard line and advancing on passes to Tulane's 3-yard line, where the Greenies took the ball on downs. Six passes carried Tulane to Florida's 47. After an exchange of punts, Tulane drove from her own 35 to Florida's 35. On third down Chase passed to Moye, who ran 65 yards for a touchdown. WARBURTON BRILLIANT.

Starting with the ball on his own 20-yard line, the western jack rabbit with the yellow hair ran and passed his way for 41 yards. Clements was in the open, clear and clear, when Nickick's speed brought him to earth. With just 15 seconds to go Warburton threw another pass to Clements, who scraped the end corner with his spikes as he crossed the line.

Warburton, Workins and Southern California were threatening again in the quarter, driving for the Pittsburgh goal, but the western attack was finally rolled back and then Munjaas dropped.

55,000 See Panthers Claw Trojans, 20-6

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 13.—The loud crash of football thrones and the splintering of sceptres go merrily along the road.

In the presence of 55,000 spectators Pitt's Panthers clawed and rushed their way through Southern California's Trojans to the eastern melody of 20 to 6.

In getting their long-delayed revenge for past annihilations, the Panthers also added two new chapters to football history.

For the first time since he struck Southern California, 10 years ago, Howard Jones today lost his second game in succession. At the same moment his Trojans lost first inter-sectional game to another team than Notre Dame.

The powerful looking, gigantic Trojans were outclassed a big part of the route by Pitt's prior speed and the deadly kicking of Miller Munjaas, the 190-pound Pitt quarterback. The flying feet of Larue Nickick, Weinbaugh, Weinstock and Munjaas ran rings and circles around the Trojans' tall, slow-footed ends who could not meet the Panther pace which happened to be top speed. While this was taking place the deadly toe of Munjaas on three occasions picked up over 60 yards of territory while Cotton Warburton and Howard were rushed into puny efforts that got nowhere and cost heavily.

TROJANS SLOW.

Howard Jones delivered a team of giants, men of might and brawn, but they lacked alertness and speed of foot. The faster Panther backs had them dazed and bewildered most of the way. It was not until Cotton Warburton arrived upon the scene that Southern California came back to life and action. Compared to most of his mates, baring only Workins, Warburton for at least a period looked to be a comet in the midst of an elephant herd.

In the first period Howard's fumble gave the ball to Pitt on the Trojan 20-yard line. Weinstock crashed over for the first Pitt touchdown a few plays later.

At this spot Warburton and Workins dashed upon the field amid Trojan cheers. But they were not enough to check the Panthers' charge.

In the second period the fleet Weinbaugh ran a kick back 31 yards and two plays later cut his way through the Trojans' defense for Pitt's second score.

A third Pitt touchdown was called back and then, in the face of what looked to be a rout, Warburton put on a flash that turned an impending tidal wave into a nip and tuck competition.

Warburton, Workins and Southern California were threatening again in the quarter, driving for the Pittsburgh goal, but the western attack was finally rolled back and then Munjaas dropped.

Tarheels Stop Red and Black Drives To Win

By Ralph McGill.

SANFORD FIELD, ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 13.—Georgia's red October sun went down on a broken football dream here this afternoon with Georgia leading and beaten, 14 to 0, by a hard-charging line of blue from North Carolina.

In the south's most stunning upset, the North Carolina Tarheels scored in the second and fourth quarters and stopped three Georgia drives—one which reached the 1-yard line, one which drove to the 8 and another which marched to the 9, and outplayed Georgia completely after the first quarter.

In the final analysis it was the charge of the Carolina line which wrecked a sluggish and fumbling Georgia eleven. It was a charge which never let up for four quarters. It was a coldly furious and relentless charge, vicious and low, which in the last half completely riddled the Georgia line and sent the red-clad forwards stumbling back into their own plays.

RIVER OF WOE.

All the great, winding stretch of the turbulent waters of the Oconee river will not carry away the woe that is Georgia's tonight. A harvest moon shines down, but it looks on desolation and sorrow.

Cr Grant, the best halfback, is injured, his shoulder dislocated. He will not play in the Tulane game Saturday nor in the Alabama game following, said the trainer tonight. And Glen Johnson, too, is injured. It is feared the fleet little halfback, whose work today was brilliant whenever the line gave him a chance, will not be able to start against Tulane.

It was a day when nothing could do the turbulent waters of the Oconee river was gone; when power was missing. They went fumblingly about their tasks and, while they fumbled, the relentless charge of the Tarheel line wore them down and left them impotent and defeated. They had courage but their guts were gone.

No one anticipated this charging wall of blue nor the wasp-like, stinging backs which came out of North Carolina geared to a fanatical pitch to play with an intense and berserk fury.

BETTER TEAM WON.

It was a better team which won today. At least it was the better team today. Georgia was never in the ball game. Even when they drove to the 8-yard line and first down; to the 1-yard line and first down; and again to the 9 and first down, they faced a force they could not override.

Notre Dame Uncorks Fast Attack To Win

By Paul Mickelson.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Hit with a quartet of quick-striking ball carriers, who gave every promise of duplicating the dazzling deeds of the immortal "Four Horsemen" of 1924, Elmer Layden's Notre Dame football machine rode out of the gridiron wilderness today with a decisive 18-to-7 conquest over Purdue.

The victory, witnessed by a record-equalling throng of 45,000 spectators, was scored within a space of 10 minutes in the second period when Coach Layden turned loose his quartet of destruction—spreading backs—George Melnikovich, Wallace Fromhart, Fred Carideo and Mike Layden, brother of the Irish mentor.

Before their lightning thrusts, through the air, around the wings and through the line, had subsided, they had scored three touchdowns but were unable to turn the job of defense over to the reserves for the remainder of the battle, which ended with a 60-yard Purdue touchdown march.

Melnikovich was the biggest battering ram in the Irish attack on the weary Boilermakers, who were weakened by the physical impossibility of putting their scoring acts, Duane Purvis and Jim Carter, on the field together. Big George started the scoring with a spectacular 60-yard dash and a few minutes later snatched one of Layden's long accurate passes for a 25-yard gain, which put him in position to score again.

Then, as the Boilermakers rallied, Carideo raced in, intercepted Purdue's pass on his own 25 and outflashed the entire enemy team with a beautiful 75-yard sprint down the sidelines to score.

Notre Dame reserves, playing most of the remainder of the game, gave a fine performance of safety play but were unable to withstand the final Purdue rally. Carter picked up 29 of the 66-yard drive, and went over with room to spare from the 2-yard stripe. Turrelli added the extra point from the placekicker.

MFR OF QUALITY GUT STRINGS

ALL-AMERICAN VIEWPOINT

BY FRED SINGTON

Following is a story by Fred Sington, former All-American football player at the University of Alabama, in which he gives you an inside slant on the game between Tech and Duke at Durham Saturday.

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 13.—Duke's largest squad since Wade's advent in 1931 and a homecoming crowd of 28,000 seemed to harbor a revenge spirit here this afternoon for last year's fiasco on the Tech flats. A large lumen Yellow Jacket charged about the field ferociously pursued by a Blue Devil, and as the game turned out, the Devil won the decision. Peculiarly enough, the Yellow Jacket lost its sting in the air where it should have been most powerful.

The play in this game was spectacular and continued so during the entire game. Duke won in a vicious well-timed offensive passing attack in the first half, just as they beat North Carolina last year. Duke's lead was never overcome, and the game ended 18-0.

Duke's attack was a barrage of spinners, fake spinners and short and long passes. The team used Wade's well-known style of offense with a single wingback and an unbalanced line.

Parker and Cornelius ran superbly behind a fighting line. Cornelius only played the first half, but how he played! He caught a touchdown pass for 35 yards from Parker. He threw one pass to Alexander for a gain and another to Parker for a gain. He was a back built into the lines of Suther, Alabama's 1930 All-Southern back. He weighs 180 pounds and is an extremely hard runner.

EARLY ATTACK WINS FOR NAVY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Supremacy was first established by the Navy to Maryland today, 16 to 13, before a crowd of 25,000.

The Middles rolled up all their talent in the first two touchdowns, then fought desperately to halt the Old Liners' wide end sweeps and spectacular passing game, which battered the Navy defense in the first period.

Maryland drove two touchdowns across in this rally and threatened again before the game ended. On the basis of yards gained and first downs, the losers were superior, running up 14 first downs to nine for Navy.

Navy scored midway in the initial period when, after a march was stopped on the 12-yard line, Slade Cutter, tackle, fell back and booted a field goal which in the end proved the margin of victory.

Later in the first quarter, Borries twisted and whirled 25 yards through the entire Maryland team for a touchdown. The score came on a 31-yard left-handed pass from Tommy King to Bob Mandelkorn. The latter took the toss on the 8-yard line and trotted across for the touchdown. Cutter's placement was wide.

Northwest Tigers Beat Y Juniors, 28-0

The Northwest Tigers defeated the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. Juniors, 28 to 0, Saturday afternoon on the Rose Bowl field. It was the opening game of the midweek schedule.

Bentley, with two touchdowns, led the way, with Cox and Hancock scoring the other. Cain, Cranford and Bentley played best for the winners, with Lipschut, Paradise and Boykin outstanding for the losers.

ner. This Cornelius was good in every department against Tech. His blocking was capable, enabling Parker once to make a long run. He also handled punts well.

Parker was second to none on this day. His kicking was wonderful to behold. Backed into the end zone on one occasion, he kicked out 82 yards (72 from the line of scrimmage). He threw and completed three passes, two of them for touchdowns. He ran hard and blocked well and he also intercepted two Tech passes. He is only a sophomore and destined to improve. His playing in the tail-back slot resembled that of Cain for the 1930 Crimson Tide.

Alexander played an alert defensive game. He recovered two fumbles. He intercepted passes. His tackling was good, too, but he excelled in his spin plays. He is a good, hard runner and quick on his feet. Tech's linemen being several times fooled to the extent that they tackled the wrong man in the backfield. He ran the team very well and executed Wade's attack to perfection.

Parker played a good game at end for Duke. He recovered several fumbles. He covered punts well and his recovery of Roberts' fumble gave Duke a scoring chance. He caught a pass for one touchdown. He backed out of the line and became a tough man to handle in Duke's secondary.

Durner played an exceptionally good game at tackle for Duke. He charged hard and tackled viciously, as well as covering punts extremely well. Tackling honors of the day, however, must go to Jack Dunlap, who backed out of the line to become a second fullback. He was to Duke what Peter Pund was to Georgia Tech in 1928. He tackled with a resounding vim, and also came out of the Roberts' faulty judgment got his team in a hole once when he elected to try a punt on third down deep inside his own 15-yard stripe.

Intercepted passes played a big part in Duke's offense, the third touchdown coming as a result of an intercepted pass and a long run by Cornelius.

An alert Duke secondary intercepted four Tech passes. Fumbles played havoc with Tech's chances for a running attack. Phillips' fumble and Ferrell's recovery led to Duke's first touchdown. Martin fumbled and lost the ball for Tech, and Roberts fumbled with a bruised hip. "Boss" Hamilton, who swung over from his regular halfback position, filled the shoes of Grayson to the satisfaction of all concerned and crashed over for the first two touchdowns.

Frank Alustria, regular quarterback, rounded up the scoring activities with a 47-yard sprint to goal after intercepting a pass by the rival quarterback, Potter.

ARMY SWAMPS DRAKE ELEVEN

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 13.—(AP)—With a varied running and overhead attack, the hard-charging Army football team today buried a heavy but cumbersome Drake eleven under a 48-to-0 landslide on Michie stadium field before 12,000 spectators who shivered in the nippy fall atmosphere.

After the Cadets had taken a 13-0 lead in the first quarter, Coach Gar Davidson seized the opportunity to give his reserves a trial and before the game was over practically every member of the squad of 39 saw at least one minute of action against the hapless and helpless Iowans, whose attack clicked but once in the entire game.

The contest was lopsided with the exception of a few minutes in the fourth quarter when a makeshift Army team was held for four downs on Drake's 5-yard line. It was the only time the Cadets gave a ragged exhibition.

Darlington Beats Talladega Hi, 26 to 0

ROME, Ga., Oct. 13.—The purple gridiron of Darlington school ran roughshod here today over a heavier Talladega (Ala.) High school eleven by the score of 26 to 0. Jimmy Leach, of Knoxville, Tenn., was the star for the fourth Darlington touchdown. Every substitute on the Tiger squad saw service during the fray.

BOWDOIN LOSES.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 13.—(UP)—Bowdoin defeated Bowdoin 13 to 0. Huntress worked a delayed spinner to score in the first period. Klinger skirted left and in the last period for another touchdown. Burton kicked the point.

INDIAN CARDED AT CENTER HILL

Old Chippewa Charlie, the Indian wrestler, will headline the Monday night wrestling card at the Center Hill arena on Bankhead avenue. He will meet Charley Norman.

In the semi-windup match, Whitley Patterson will tangle with Foy Rivers. This match, like the main event, promises much action.

Speedy Baker and Ambrose will meet in the short opening match following a wrestle royal in which five boys will tangle.

Purples Meet G. M. A. Thursday; Smithies Play Monroe Friday

SIX ATLANTA PREP ELEPHANTS PLAY THIS WEEK

Boys' High-Cadet Game at Ponce de Leon Opens Card.

By Roy White.

Boys' High, Tech High and G. M. A. will resume their Georgia Inter-scholastic Athletic Association wars and move another step nearer the 1934 championship in games this week at Ponce de Leon park. Two games here will feature a program of six, in which Atlanta's prep teams will be involved.

Boys' High and G. M. A. will open the week's activities in 7:45 o'clock Thursday night with Tech High and Monroe Aggies following at 8 o'clock Friday night.

Other games for the week are Fulton at Decatur, Friday night; Marist at Rome, Friday afternoon; Newnan and Russell at East Point Friday afternoon and Marietta at North Fulton Friday.

There will be little to choose between the Thursday and Friday night games at Ponce de Leon park. Both should rank with the best of the season, as a chance at the Georgia state championship will be at stake.

PURPLES, SMITHIES LEAD. Tech High and Boys' High are leading the parade at present with a string of victories and no defeats, with G. M. A. running second and Monroe trailing in third place.

Tech High's two-touchdown victory over Decatur Friday night was nothing spectacular and gives Monroe Aggies a better chance to throw a monkey wrench into the standings.

The Aggies lost a one-point decision Friday afternoon to G. M. A. at Monroe and that means plenty of trouble for Tech High next Friday night. The Aggies are on the uphill grade and will be hard to get along with Friday night.

G. M. A. is another team which will be tough to get along with this week. The Cadets were slow to get started, but after losing to Commercial in an upset, the Cadets came back strong to beat Russell High and Monroe on Saturday.

Boys' High has been rolling along, picking up momentum all along the way. The Purples will find G. M. A. no setup Thursday night, but with one of their strongest teams both offensively and defensively, Boys' High should get by the G. M. A. game without serious trouble.

DECATUR VS. FULTON. Decatur, with a new coach, Wendell Sullivan, is another of the teams which is picking up and playing better each week. The DeKalb team will meet Fulton High Friday night and should be another win for Decatur.

Marist will play Rome High in a non-conference game, but one which will give the Cadets plenty of trouble. Commercial has an open date, but efforts are being made to schedule some team for Friday afternoon.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON. G. M. A. and Boys' High at Ponce de Leon. Marist at Rome. Marietta at North Fulton.

FRIDAY NIGHT. Monroe and Tech High at Ponce de Leon. Fulton at Decatur.

S. M. U. STOPPED ASRICE WINS, 9-0.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Rice Owls, sensing a chance at their first Southwest conference football championship, cleared the initial hurdle at top speed today when they smothered the Southern Methodist University running attack and blanketed the Mustangs, 9 to 0.

The flying feet and the swaying hips of Bill Smith, immediately punted back but the boot traveled only to the 36-yard line where Wallace picked it up on the bounce. He raced toward the sideline and passed across the goal line. So well did he thread his way and so good was his teammate's blocking that not a hostile hand was laid on him. Sylvester was not in the game at that time and McCauley missed the try for extra points.

MICHIGAN BOWS TO CHICAGO, 27-0

By Charles W. Dunkley.

STAGG FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP)—There was gaiety on the midway tonight, for the University of Chicago football team rose up in all its might this afternoon and knocked the toppling Wolverines of Michigan off the peak of the Big Ten when they have been perched through four gridiron seasons. The score was 27 to 0.

There was nothing halfway about the Chicago triumph. Michigan went down beneath four touchdowns, two by Jay Berwanger and two by Ned Hartley, and three placekicks for extra points by Berwanger.

It was the largest margin by which Chicago ever has defeated Michigan, the largest score by which Michigan has lost since 1919, and the Wolverines' first defeat by a Western conference team since 1931.

Forward pass from Hartley to Baker set the stage for the first Chicago touchdown. Berwanger plunged across the goal on the first try in the second period.

With the Maroons leading by 6 to 0, Berwanger got off a sensational 40-yard run early in the second half, which netted two touchdowns, was led by Hartley. He was shaken loose for sprints of 30 yards, then 15, and then another 20, on a Chicago touchdown march which took the ball from the Maroons 35 across the Michigan goal line.

Hartley's second touchdown run was for 10 yards through left tackle and followed an intercepted pass while Michigan was trying vainly to get yardage during the waning minutes of the game.

THE LINEUP. MICHIGAN: E. Patterson, L. E. Patterson, C. Patterson, R. Patterson, T. Patterson, G. Patterson, B. Patterson, K. Patterson, P. Patterson, M. Patterson, D. Patterson, N. Patterson, H. Patterson, J. Patterson, I. Patterson, O. Patterson, S. Patterson, L. Patterson, C. Patterson, F. Patterson, V. Patterson, W. Patterson, Y. Patterson, Z. Patterson.

Chicago's 35-yard touchdown run gave the approximately 14,000 fans the greatest thrill. It came at the end of the first quarter after Witt's 15-yard kick had put the Maroons on the Mustang 34-yard line to give the Owls the upper hand for the first time in the contest.

Jack Rabbit Smith immediately punted back but the boot traveled only to the 36-yard line where Wallace picked it up on the bounce. He raced toward the sideline and passed across the goal line. So well did he thread his way and so good was his teammate's blocking that not a hostile hand was laid on him. Sylvester was not in the game at that time and McCauley missed the try for extra points.

Petrels Break Long Jinx in 18-0 Victory

By Jack Troy.

Mitrick was called. And how he answered will long be remembered up here in the Valley of the Broken Jinx.

MITRICK WINS RACE. Captain Mitrick took the ball and plunged over Willie Robinson's tackle. Hornsby, Moccasin safety man, was the only player in his path. So Mitrick took a wrinkle that fairly left a figure eight hanging in the air and sped on by the bewildered Hornsby, who is a 10 second man. Hornsby lit out in pursuit. But, wonder of wonders, he was gaining but little on Mitrick, who is a big, powerful fullback who has piano legs.

And it was not until Mitrick, cruising straight up the field with a stride that ate up the yard markers, reached the goal that got close as the 20-yard line until the very end of the game when an intercepted pass put the ball on the Petrel 15.

END OF SCORING. Oglethorpe ended the day's scoring on a spectacular pass that followed Ring's short punt from his six to the 35.

Jack Puryear fumbled but picked up the ball and ran wide for a one-yard gain. Farmer then sped 10 yards on a reverse.

The Petrels had done little passing up to this point. They had played the game fairly safe. Then Jack Puryear, who once made All-State prep club, had his "marathon" matches and it will be another round in which Bobby and his father will be teamed together against their rivals. Bradshaw still holds a slight edge in the "marathon" match.

Trophies and prizes for winners of all tournaments sponsored by the East Lake Club during the spring and summer season will be presented immediately following the dinner.

Although the dinner is primarily for the golfers, every member of the club is invited to be present at the "grand finale" of the golf season. Plates for those who do not participate in the golf tournament will be $1 each and reservations should be made at the club as soon as possible.

Bill Goodrich, with a net 50, won first prize Saturday afternoon in a blind golf tournament on the John A. White municipal course.

All remaining matches in the John A. White invitation tournament will be completed this afternoon.

The second round will open Monday and will continue all week.

EAST LAKE. Four players, J. J. McConneigh, C. Y. Smith, Wimberly Peters and E. R. Neely, shared first honors Saturday in the regular weekly blind golf tournament.

The winning score was 79.

Second place was well divided when J. C. Thompson, R. E. Richards, A. M. Perkinson, J. J. Longner, H. S.

Spectacular bowling was recorded on the tenpin alley last week. Kneuer, of A. L. Zachry Clothing Company, set a new season record of 264 for a single game in the Georgia Tenpin league.

Rex Morris, of Muench & Elsner, created additional excitement on the tenpin battle front with his massive 280 score for three games, not only being a season record for the City Tenpin league, but for fourth highest individual series of record for the city.

The Ladies' Commercial league, First National bank, Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Power Club are pushing individual averages up near par and should be hanging up new league records before the season is half gone, if present performances are to be taken as a barometer of what is to follow on the alleys when these women bowlers continue their smashing.

MICHIGAN STATE. EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Making a determined bid for national grid recognition, Michigan State today won a 13-to-0 intercollegiate victory over Carnegie Tech.

Belton Clark and Jack Puryear kicked well for the Petrels and kept pace with Ring and McCall, both of whom kicked well.

Those Petrels applied their blocks in the proper fashion today and really gave the backs a chance. So the mists closed around Chamberlain field as a shroud to the Chattanooga jinx and individual halos around the individual heads of Oglethorpe players victorious over Newberry, Citadel, and Chattanooga are now credited to youthful Coach John Patrick, and in recounting the one loss to Auburn, remember that the Petrels vastly outnumbered the Tigers and scored twice as many first downs. It is quite a coaching debut by the first Oglethorpe alumni leader in the school's history.

KLEIN AND PERRY. Klein, sophomore tackle, played a brilliant game in the Chattanooga line. He starred along with Captain Fred Perry, who played end on offense and tackle on defense. McCall, Ratigan, Hornsby and Ring stood out in the backfield. This was the first time in many, many years that Chattanooga had suffered such an overwhelming defeat.

He is a dependable guard if ever a coach had one.

European Tension Watched Closely As Result of Assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

By CHARLES F. SPEARE.

(Copyright, 1934, by The New American Newspaper Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The new familiar pattern of "jaw-bone" inflation was again injected into the speculative picture this week by the news that the king of Yugoslavia had been assassinated.

The trend of business this week has been one of speculation and uncertainty.

The government has seen the low point of return on its short and long-term obligations.

From now on it must meet buyer resistance by offering more attractive rates of interest.

Warm Springs 'Crystal' Sale Causes Arrest of Three Men Charged With Fraud Scheme Government Indicts Trio Who Capitalized on Name of Famous Georgia Resort.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 13.—(AP)—The United States district attorney here today announced that three men accused of operating a scheme to defraud by capitalizing on the name of Warm Springs in the sale of crystals are under arrest.

A. Edward Smith, assistant district attorney, said in one transaction 19,000 pounds of salts were purchased at 10 cents a pound and offered for sale as "crystals from the most famous springs in America" at $1 per pound.

The district attorney's office said that the three were indicted at Albany last week. The names were given as: Mallory H. Taylor Jr., under arrest in Atlanta; J. H. Hargis, DeKalb county, under arrest in Atlanta, but under $2,500 bond; and Walter C. Dunham, of Atlanta, in jail at Albany, Ga.

Conspiracy to violate the food and drug act is charged in the indictment, and there are a half-dozen counts showing transactions in various states of the Union. The government cities operations in Oklahoma, Michigan and California in the indictment.

Labels seized by the government show, Smith said, that the "Warm Springs Crystal Company" marketed "Warm Springs Crystal Compound."

The credit union movement throughout the United States was organized 30 years ago by Edward A. Filene, of Boston, Mass. At the last session of congress the Federal Credit Union law was passed, making it possible for any group of persons to organize a credit union. Mr. Filene financed the credit union movement through the Credit Union National Extension Bureau, of Boston, Mass., of which Roy F. Hergengren is executive secretary. This bureau will not be operated after March 1, 1935.

The law will be replaced by the Credit Union National Association, which will be more than three thousand credit unions throughout the country.

There are 65 credit unions in Georgia and about 30 were represented at the meeting Saturday.

The new officers of the league are: L. C. Rogers, Federal Employees Credit Union, president; M. W. Smith, Mutual Savings Credit Union, vice president; Ben Friedman, Atlanta Journal Credit Union, secretary; George M. Gentry, A. B. C. Credit Union, treasurer; Moses C. Davis, Atlanta Postal Credit Union, managing and national director.

Members of the board of directors are: T. R. McCallum, Seaboard Air Line Railway Credit Union, Savannah; T. N. Wingfield, Atlanta Railway Postal Credit Union; C. B. Barnes, Westinghouse Credit Union; and William O. Speer, Fulton County Teachers Credit Union.

It was announced the first meeting of the board of directors will be held November 1.

Thomas W. Doig, president of the Credit Union National Association, of Minneapolis, Minn., principal speaker at the meeting and told of the organization and its growth. Other speakers included R. E. Gormley, state superintendent of banks, who praised highly the individual unions of the state for their cooperation with the state banking department, and Dr. Daniel L. Armour, pastor of Patillo Memorial Methodist church.

In the 65 credit unions in Georgia, it was pointed out, there is a membership of more than 7,000 wage earners and assets of more than $100 million. The first credit union in the state was the Atlanta Postal Credit Union, which was organized in November, 1904, and is now the largest with a membership of 7,000 and assets of more than $100,000. The second was the A. B. C. Railway Employees Credit Union, now having a membership of 4,000 and assets of more than $300,000.

Roosevelt Will Speak Twice in Virginia

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt will deliver two addresses in Virginia within the coming week, one in Roanoke Friday, and the other in Williamsburg Saturday.

In Roanoke the president will dedicate a new veterans hospital and in Williamsburg he will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from the college of William and Mary.

and participate in the dedication of the new Duke of Gloucester school, nearly to its appearance as the principal thoroughfare of early American days.

Episcopalians Hit Oppression of Jews

ATLANTA CITY, N. J., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Resolutions condemning the oppression of Jews, urging support of the League of Decency drive against immoral motion pictures, and calling for government control of the munitions industry, came before the national convention of the Episcopalians today.

The house of delegates at the first triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church deferred action on these questions and sent to committee a resolution which would change the church's name to the American Episcopal church.

10,000 POUNDS PEAS PLANTED IN HANCOCK

SPARTA, Ga., Oct. 13.—The farmers of Hancock county have contracted with County Agent Leo Mercer for 10,000 pounds of Austrian peas which they will plant for winter cover crops. They have decided to fight soil erosion in this manner and also fertilize their land for better crop next year. The present short crop has revealed to many of them the necessity of building up their lands for better crops.

Much vetch and crimson clover will also be planted, it is said.

Tom Linder Studies Georgia Farm Problems While Waiting To Take Post as Commissioner of Agriculture on January 1

Tom Linder, who is to become commissioner of agriculture of Georgia January 1 shows he is a dirt farmer. In upper left-hand picture he is seen explaining the advantage of growing long-staple cotton to Henry H. McCord, left, and Luther Allgood. Upper right is a family group with Mr. and Mrs. Linder seated with their three children.

By LEO FARRELL.

Tom Linder is all set to take up where he left off on January 1, 1935. When Eugene Talmadge was commissioner of agriculture, Linder was his assistant and when he moved down the hall to the governor's office, Linder went along as executive secretary and right-hand man.

But after a year in the governor's office, Fodder Pullin' Tom, as they call him, tired of his duties and yearned to go back to the department of agriculture. He was doing fairly well as executive secretary but he had always been a farmer and he had worked on a farm in the Georgia hills. He was studying the results of the market bureau in Alabama and other southern states in which agriculture is a major industry.

"Alabama has real life blood in its market bureau and it is paying the farmers a thousand-fold," he declared. "The Georgia bureau of markets is 1 but already he is on the job, going about the state and making a first-hand study of day-to-day conditions on the farm."

"The first thing I'm going to try to do when I take office is to put new life in the bureau of markets," Commissioner-elect Linder said Saturday. "I have had in mind to do this for some time. It is a major industry of the state government which affects more people than does the market bureau. With it functioning properly the farmers of Georgia not only will get better prices for their products but they will find them much easier marketed and the burden of finding markets taken off of their hands."

RECORD GRAIN CROP PLANTED AT MOULTREE

MOULTREE, Ga., Oct. 13.—A record-breaking grain crop is being planted in the Moultrie section, seed dealers here state. For the first time wheat is being tried on a big scale in Colquitt county. Past experiments haven't been successful, but with land to spare because of the reduction in tobacco and cotton many farmers say they are going to take a chance on a wheat crop.

The right of way is being given to oats, rice and barley, all of which produce heavily in this section. This is the first time in several years that it has been possible to start the winter grains in October. The corn crop was planted in the last week-end but the ground in fine condition. During the past four years it was December before there was enough moisture to plant winter cover crops.

3 TEACHERS ARE ADDED TO MUSIC DEPARTMENT

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 13.—(UP)—Three new faculty members have been added to the staff of the University of Georgia music department, which began its seventh year with a 100 per cent increase in enrollment. Director Hugh Hodgson announced the addition of John Hoffman, Atlanta, as teacher of voice; Claire Harper, Atlanta, as teacher of violin, and Miss Edith Hodgson, Atlanta, as assistant teacher of voice.

A new course, "The English song" is being given this year by Hodgson and Prof. Roosevelt Walker, of the department of English. Ballads, carols and music of the 16th, 18th and 19th centuries will be studied.

Auto Club Head

ROME, Ga., Oct. 13.—A. N. Porter, plumber, has been appointed by City Manager Lanham as city plumber and sanitary inspector. City commission recently passed an ordinance providing for the combined office. The ordinance requires that permits must be obtained for all plumbing work and that the work must be inspected when completed.

TWO ATHENS PROJECTS EMPLOY 300 PERSONS

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 13.—More than 300 persons are employed by the soil erosion service and FERA canyons, the latter being opened on the agricultural college campus to cut western cows shipped into Georgia.

A. W. Simpson, of Washington, is supervisor of the canyons. Fifty cows will be slaughtered each day at the cannery, which is one of the most completely equipped in the state. It will be in operation at least six months, Simpson said.

Kiwanis Clubs of Georgia To Open Annual Convention In Columbus Next Thursday

Address of International President and Round of Entertainment To Feature Sessions.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Georgia Kiwanis will convene on Columbus Thursday for the opening session of their three-day annual convention.

Registration and golfing will occupy most of Thursday, but district trustees and club officers' dinners will be held at the Ralston hotel that night. Mark Smith, district governor, will preside at the trustees' dinner.

Business meetings and a round of entertainment featuring a military demonstration at Fort Benning and a pilgrimage to Warm Springs, Ga., home of President Roosevelt.

While the Kiwanians do not begin their business sessions until Friday morning, district trustees and officers will attend dinners at the Ralston hotel, convention headquarters, Thursday evening. Wives will attend the dinner, which begins at 7 o'clock.

An address by Dr. William J. Carrington, president of the Georgia Kiwanis Club, will feature the opening business session Friday morning at the auditorium in the old postoffice building. Delegates will be met by Henry C. Heinz, past president of the international organization.

Mayor H. C. Smith and Crawford will welcome the delegates to Columbus, while various delegates will reply. The annual message of District Governor Mark Smith, the reports of officers and discussions of Kiwanis objectives by the various club governors also are on the program.

The convention will close Saturday afternoon, when the pilgrimage to Warm Springs will be made.

DELEGATES ARE NAMED

FROM FORT VALLEY CLUB

FORT VALLEY, Ga., Oct. 13.—Delegates chosen from the Fort Valley Kiwanis Club to attend the convention in Columbus are W. G. Brinsden, W. E. Greene and A. C. Riley. Alternates are M. C. Mosley, C. C. Sizemore and J. G. Hillier.

The local Kiwanis programs have featured for the past few weeks a serial address on the "Constitution," by J. M. Mosley, of Byron, Peach county manager.

SYLVANIA METHODISTS TO DEDICATE CHURCH

SYLVANIA, Ga., Oct. 13.—The Methodist Episcopal church here is preparing for a large gathering on October 19 for the dedication of the new church-school building. Bishop A. Ainsworth will be present and will speak at the school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock October 19. The dedicatory service at the church will follow.

Every minister of the several denominations within Screven county has been urged to attend. The committee is planning to have the ministers sit on the platform with the bishop.

Miss Rebecca Overstreet is chairman of the music committee, which is planning to present to the congregation a large well-trained choir to lead the audience in song. Special numbers will be given by the choir.

The pastor, Rev. K. H. MacGregor, is inviting all the congregations in the county to attend the services.

AUTO INJURIES FATAL TO 6-YEAR-OLD CHILD

PELHAM, Ga., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Leroy Driskell, aged six, died Saturday at the Pelham hospital last night from injuries received when struck by an automobile driven by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Daddier, near the Pelham clinic. His chest was crushed.

Mr. and Mrs. Daddier narrowly escaped serious injury also when they swerved their car into a tree in an effort to avoid hitting the child.

TENNILLE RAILROAD TO BE DISCONTINUED

TENNILLE, Ga., Oct. 13.—The operation of trains on the Tennille branch of the Georgia and Florida railroad from here to Keyville will be discontinued after October 15, according to information received by D. D. McCall, local agent. This branch is 18 miles long and traverses Glascock, Jefferson, Burke and Washington counties and all of the towns along the route will be without railroad service except Sandersville. Tennille is served by three other railroads. It is understood that a star mail route, using motor vehicles, will be established as soon as the trains cease to operate.

LECTURES ARE PLANNED ON HOME ECONOMICS

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 13.—Arrangements for a series of district meetings of the Georgia Home Economics Society in conjunction with district meetings of the Georgia Education Association were announced here Saturday by Miss Susan Mathews, of the home economics department of the State College of Agriculture.

Miss Mathews and Miss Allie Mann, of Atlanta, will outline co-operative measures planned between the two associations and will make a roundtable discussion of the theme of the year's work. Contribution of the Home Economist in the Development of Home and Community Life in Georgia.

First of a series of meetings will be held at Milledgeville Monday, October 15. Others will be at Washington, October 16; Toccoa, October 17; Rome, October 22; Barnesville, October 23; Americus, October 25; Lyons, October 26; Waycross, October 30; Moultrie, November 1 and Atlanta, November 9.

Scouts To Check Babies For Mothers During Fair

MACON, Ga., Oct. 13.—(AP)—"Check your baby, lady!" That's what Macdonald Scouts will ask middle Georgia mothers at the Georgia state exposition here next week.

Trained Girl Scouts, under the direction of adult leaders, plan to maintain a free nursery on the fair grounds.

A tag bearing the child's name, its parents' names, address and telephone number will be attached to each little human bundle in order to avoid mixup.

Good Beef Comes From Bred Stock, Georgia Cattle Bulletin States

EXPERIMENT, Ga., Oct. 13.—Asserting that "an animal with inferior beef inheritance can never produce a prime carcass regardless of how much skill is spent in raising the animal and in attending it for slaughter," the Georgia experiment station urges Georgia growers to service their herds with only purebred bulls, in a bulletin issued under the authorship of F. R. Edwards and Z. A. Massey, of the department of animal husbandry at Experiment.

It has been estimated that 23,000,000 pounds of meat is imported into Georgia annually and that a large share of the demand could be met by Georgia-grown beef which the bulletin states can be produced more economically within the state.

At one time Georgia was among the foremost cattle raising states in the union and methods evolved here have been adopted in the western ranges. Cattle ticks and tick fever prevented the early growth of the industry here but during the past 20 years many recognized breeds have been imported and the number of cattle in the state, exclusive of the western stock, numbers approximately a quarter-million head. The tick trouble has been practically eliminated.

The bulletin, known as No. 184, or "Beef Production in Georgia," which may be had free from the station, gives details on breeds, breeding, care of the cow at nursing time, and the calf. The 60-page booklet is not a textbook on biology but furnishes practical assistance in selection of stock and tells of methods which will enable the farmer to realize the greatest profit from his investment.

Carnival Is Planned.

WEST POINT, Ga., Oct. 13.—Plans are being made by the West Point Woman's Club and the parent-teacher association for holding a Halloween carnival. The carnival will be held at the school building Friday evening, October 19. In addition to the regular carnival attractions, there will be a turkey dinner served in the school cafeteria.

Moves to Atlanta.

COVINGTON, Ga., Oct. 13.—Professor Count D. Gibson, teacher of geology at Georgia Tech, has moved to Atlanta, where he and his family will reside. Professor Gibson formerly was a teacher in the Covington schools and even after going to Tech continued his residence here, going forth and back each day.

Rome Plumbing Inspector.

ROME, Ga., Oct. 13.—A. N. Porter, plumber, has been appointed by City Manager Lanham as city plumber and sanitary inspector. City commission recently passed an ordinance providing for the combined office. The ordinance requires that permits must be obtained for all plumbing work and that the work must be inspected when completed.

Valdosta Postal Gains.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 13.—A 20 per cent increase in postal receipts for the third calendar quarter of the year shows the general business revival in Valdosta and that portion of south Georgia, of which this city is the financial center.

For July, August and September of 1933 the Valdosta postoffice reported receipts of $55,503.90, while for the same months of 1934 the receipts amounted to $66,960.19, an increase of $11,456.29. This increase in business is the result of the tobacco money, augmented by cash from general crops. Very little cotton has been sold in this section and so far cotton prices are not entering into business channels very generally.

ACWORTH, Ga., Oct. 13.—The current census report shows there were 718 bales of cotton ginned in Cobb county from the crop of 1934 prior to September 16, as compared with 675 bales to same date in 1933. The crop was planted earlier in the season and favorable weather conditions have accelerated the growth this year.

Fiddlers' Convention.

GRAVES, Ga., Oct. 13.—The south-west Georgia fiddlers' convention was held here last night, the occasion being sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association. Many noted musicians took part in the program.

was donated by Forrest Addison, the owner, for this purpose, and Professor J. Aubrey Reynolds, an experienced educator, has been placed in charge. The enrollment is expected to be increased to at least 75 before next year. Both men and women are eligible for the courses which runs from primary to high school grades.

NEGRO FAIR DISPLAYS MANY FARM PRODUCTS

FORT VALLEY, Ga., Oct. 13.—An exhibition of 40 varieties of Peach county farm products, consisting of canned goods, pickles, preserves, jellies and jams, is displayed here by the negro boys and girls of the 4-H clubs in this county.

The display is in the former public welfare room on Main street. In addition to the canned and preserved products, there are numerous dried farm products such as red, white and yellow corn; peas, peanuts, hay, potatoes, sugar cane and cured meats.

Baskets, rugs, quilts and many articles made and sewed during the fair and crafts department of the Fort Valley High and Industrial Negro school are features of the exhibition.

The baskets made of Peach county pine straw and fans made from corn sheaves attract especial attention.

The exhibit is displayed by the negro girls of the 4-H clubs are directed by Margaret Thomer, assistant to the farm agent, who arranges and has charge of the display.

OXFORD CLASS SHOWS BIG GAIN THIS FALL

OXFORD, Ga., Oct. 13.—There is an increase of 50 per cent in the freshman class at Emory, junior college here, with the opening of the fall semester. The extension remodeling that has been in progress on the college buildings is about completed.

Coach Barfield has planned for competitive sports, dividing the student body into three companies. The first football game will be played Saturday, October 13, at Oxford. The athletic director, is getting his gleeful and orchestra into line and the few and Phi Gamma literary societies were organized this week.

Lessar was re-elected vice president and Ernest Michael, secretary-treasurer. A new board of directors was elected comprising of Mr. Simon Michael, Mr. M. R. Morris, Mr. B. Charles Joel, A. Brooks, Mr. Abie Link, Jake Bernstein, Lee Morris and LeRoy Michael.

Six Prisoners Face Murder Count at Rome

ROME, Ga., Oct. 13.—One out of every ten prisoners held in Floyd county jail at the present time is charged with murder. There are 60 prisoners. Six are facing murder charges.

Three of the six are scheduled for trial before Judge James W. Maddox in Floyd superior court next week. Two others have been convicted and the other is held for adjoining "Chattahoochee" county.

One of those under conviction, a negro, has twice been sentenced to die and is now under a 30-day reprieve from Governor Talmadge. An appeal is pending in the case of the other, a white man.

Miss Cleckler Weds James L. Lawrence At November Rites

MENLO, Ga., Oct. 13.—Of interest is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Cleckler, of Menlo, of the engagement of their daughter, Hughie Marion, to James Etheridge Lawrence, of Chattanooga, Tenn., the marriage to be solemnized in November.

The bride-elect is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Cleckler, her only sister being Mrs. Alton H. Glasco, of Union Point, Ga. On her maternal side she is descended from the Penn. Marks and Bolton families of Virginia. Her mother was the former Miss Ouida Phillips, daughter of the late Colonel M. M. Phillips and Mrs. Phillips, of Acworth, Ga. Her paternal grandfather is the late Jefferson D. Cleckler, of Menlo, Ga.

Miss Cleckler is a graduate of Shorter College, Rome, Ga., having received her A. B. degree in 1933, and her M. S. B. degree in 1934. She was a member of the Epsilon Sigma Phi and throughout her college career she took an active part in the various phases of student life.

She is an accomplished violinist and during her years at Shorter she contributed much to Rome's social and cultural life with her music. She has recently returned from Oberlin, Ohio, where she did further graduate work in violin at the Oberlin Conservatory.

Mr. Lawrence is the son of Mrs. E. Lawrence, of Chattanooga, Ga., and the late S. D. Lawrence, formerly of Menlo, Ga. He is the brother of Mrs. E. D. Ralston, Mrs. A. B. Sewell, Mrs. Marie Doster, Mrs. J. T. W. Rogers, Miss Henrietta Lawrence and Mrs. Paul H. Williams, all of Chattanooga. He was graduated from Menlo High school and Locust Grove Military Academy. He later attended the University of Chattanooga. Mr. Lawrence is associated in business with his uncle, D. S. Etheridge.

In an Illustration
a $465 Ring
May Look Like
a $135 Ring

¶ If you want the whole story about what constitutes value in a diamond, you must look beyond the picture. An artist cannot illustrate comparative values in diamonds—they must be measured by quality, brilliance, character of workmanship and weight. There is no technique in illustrative art with which to depict these important elements of value.

¶ On the right, we illustrate a diamond at $135—and on the left, another at $465. Both are splendid rings for the money—but we are sorry that, in the drawing, one ring looks just as good as the other... while the actual dollar-value difference between the two is $330!

¶ The ring at $135 is white gold with one large diamond and twelve smaller diamonds. The one at $465 is solid platinum set with a perfect blue white stone, eighteen small and four baguette diamonds in the mounting. Unfortunately none of these differences can be photographed or drawn by an artist... so we must content ourselves and let our advertisements of $465 rings look like advertisements of $135 rings. But you can readily observe the difference when you see the rings!

¶ Our selection of diamonds is the most complete and distinctive in the south... regardless of what you pay, you will receive good value.

¶ May we repeat... do not judge any diamond ring by an illustration... for it is so much more than just a strip of metal set with diamonds. We invite you to come in and see the ring itself... and compare its value with that of other rings... then make your choice.

Saint Luke's Church Forms Setting For Barrett-Stover Wedding

Miss Mary Louise Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Barrett, became the bride of Fred W. Stover on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock at a beautiful ceremony taking place at Saint Luke's Episcopal church on Peachtree. The Rev. M. C. Liddell, of Corbin, Ky., performed the ring ceremony in the presence of friends and relatives.

Stately palms and Woodwardia fern banded the choir stalls and altar and tall floor baskets filled with gold chrysanthemums completed the decorations. Stately, seven-branched cathedral candelabra held white burning tapers. Large vases of gold chrysanthemums were placed on the altar.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mabelle Horton. The ushers were Remus C. Jones and Frank T. Barrett, brother of the bride, the groomsmen were Ernest L. Davis and Jerry R. Hopper.

Miss Kathleen Ruth Peebles, of Mooreville, Ala., and Atlanta, and Miss Grace Landrum, of Waleska, were bridesmaids. They were gown in floor-length dresses of gold satin trimmed in green and carried bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums.

Miss Louise Dorsey, of College Park, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore green satin made along princess lines with long sleeves and a graceful train. Her bouquet was of gold chrysanthemums. Otis Milner, of Rome, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. His suit was of white satin and he carried the ring on a gold and white satin pillow. Little Miss Ruby Branch, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore white net over a satin slip. She carried a basket woven of gold ribbon and filled with gold chrysanthemum petals. A tiny spray of lily of the valley and white satin ribbon was fastened to the handle of the basket.

The bride entered with her father, Paul S. Barrett, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Remus C. Barrett, brother of the bride. Lustrous white satin fashioned the bride's gown made along Parisian lines. The skirt was fitted at the hip line with a series of inverted pleats achieving graceful fullness in the front. The bodice boasted long, tight sleeves and formed points extending over the hands. The neckline was graced with applied lace which extended across the shoulders and formed the tops of the sleeves. A fan-shaped train of pleated satin added distinction to the handsome gown.

Her pleated tulle veil was caught to her soft blond tresses by sprays of valley lilies and fell in graceful folds forming a point at the waistline. She carried a prayer book covered with white satin adorned with a shower of valley lilies, ferns and narrow white satin ribbons.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Branch entertained at an informal reception immediately following the ceremony. The guests included the members of the bridal party, relatives and a few additional friends.

Following the reception the bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip to Miami, and Key West, Fla. The bride chose for traveling a becoming ensemble of black crepe trimmed with white satin. A shoulder spray of gardenias and valley lilies completed her costume. After October 22 they will be at home at their apartment at 940 Piedmont.

The club will help with the forget-me-not sale October 19.

State Garden Club Board Meets To Discuss Interesting Topics

At the meeting of the executive board of the Garden Club of Georgia on October 6 the Atlanta Garden Center, the principal topics of discussion were plans for the conservation program to be put on throughout the week of November 4 to 11, for the state garden club convention in Macon next April, and for financing the Garden Club of Georgia, the official organ of the Garden Club of Georgia, published in Rome by Mrs. Calder Williamson. Seventeen members of the board were in attendance from over the state, including Mrs. Thomas Hubbard McHatten, of Athens, state president of the garden club.

The conservation program is one of Mrs. McHatten's constructive projects as president of the garden club. Working in conjunction with Dr. Charles H. Herty, the distinguished Georgia chemist and financier who has done so much toward conserving the trees of his native state, the paper and pulp laboratory of Savannah, which has donated the paper, and Superintendent Collins, of the state department of education, the Garden Club of Georgia has issued a series of five lectures to each of 6,000 schools of the state of Georgia. These lectures are on the subject of the preservation of native flora. Each lecture takes up a different tree or plant which grows wild in the woods of Georgia, and stresses the importance of not destroying this natural source of beauty and wealth by breaking or pulling up the plants in gathering the flowers. One lecture is to be read each day during conservation week by the school teachers to their classes. Mrs. McHatten, in presenting her idea of a week to be devoted to the subject of conservation of native flora, said that the people to present these ideas to her were the school children—that mature citizens were already established in their habits of thought, and that it would be difficult to teach a respect for wild flowers to those who did not instinctively possess it. Conservation week is to be introduced by a proclamation of the governor in all the newspapers of the state on November 4.

The plans for the state garden club convention to be held in Macon next April were discussed and the date tentatively set, but it was decided to leave the exact time of meeting to the Bibb county federation. Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Horgan are co-chairmen in charge of arrangements.

Members of the board were urged to assist in obtaining subscriptions to Garden Gateways, and the chairman of publications was instructed to write to each club president throughout the state, asking that the clubs send complete lists of subscribers so that they may receive the October issue of the garden magazine.

Other matters of interest which came up before the meeting were the treasurer's report presented by Mrs. Richard Johnston, the efficient state treasurer, and plans for the garden pilgrimage sponsored by Mrs. L. G. Danglefield, which is to be inaugurated next spring.

After the business meeting at the garden center the members of the board were entertained by Mrs. Robert L. Cooney at luncheon in Mrs. McHatten's home at Mrs. Cooney's home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Miss Bivings Fetes Duo of Brides-Elect.

Miss Helen Bivings was hostess Saturday afternoon at tea at the Piedmont Driving Club honoring Miss Clara Jones and Miss Margaret Underwood, brides-elect. Miss Jones will wed Dr. J. L. Pittman on Tuesday, October 16, and Miss Underwood will become the bride of Dr. D. Henry Poer on October 30.

Pale pink roses, yellow roses and yellow snapdragons were effectively arranged in a long, low mound to center the decoration of the table, which was placed in a private room at the club. Crystal candelabra held lighted pink tapers and the mints and other table appointments reflected the chosen color motif. Covers were placed for the bridesmaids in the two wedding parties.

Miss Underwood was honored Saturday at the luncheon given at the Capital City Club by Mrs. Noel Park. Covers were placed for only members of Miss Underwood's wedding party.

Miss Van Horn Weds John C. Maben III In Baltimore, Md.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 13.—Marked by wide social interest in the south and east is the announcement made today by Mrs. Albert Cornelius Van Horn of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Margaret Van Horn, to John Campbell Maben III. The marriage was quietly solemnized on Friday evening, October 12, at 8 o'clock, at St. David's church in Baltimore.

The Rev. Dr. Taggart Steele, rector of St. David's, performed the impressive marriage service in the presence of relatives and close friends. Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of Mrs. Chapman Robinson.

Mr. Maben and his bride left for a wedding trip, the destination of which was not revealed. Upon their return they will take possession of their new home in Rowland Park, in Baltimore. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Van Horn and the late Mr. Van Horn, of New Orleans. She attended school in New Orleans and completed her education in Baltimore. She is exceedingly popular with the younger contingent, and following her marriage will be an attractive addition to the young married set.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell Maben Jr., of New York and Birmingham, Ala. His mother was formerly Miss Pauline Carter, of Atlanta and Carters, and was an admired figure in the social circles. He is the brother of Mrs. Edgar Silver, of Hewlett, L. I., formerly Miss Pauline Maben. His aunts are Mrs. Gray Zalsinski, Mrs. Samuel Barnett, Mrs. J. B. Horne, Mrs. Emmett Mitchell and Mrs. Colquitt Carter Sr., and his uncle is Sam Carter, of Carters.

Woman's Club Gives Program on Friday

Members of the Atlanta Woman's Club, given a club class by the club and others appreciative of travel and artistic entertainment are invited to enjoy Mrs. Edward G. Warner's travelogue and the Nancy Keeler dancers in orient on Friday afternoon, October 19, at 3:30 o'clock in the club auditorium.

These unusual slides, purchased in Japan by Mrs. Warner, present large, colorful pictures on the screen, depicting Japanese gardens, wistaria arbors and iris fields, affording strong appeal to garden lovers. The Chinese pictures show the great wall and other outstanding things characteristic of this old and interesting land.

Mrs. Warner is a fluent speaker and into this travelogue weaves many charming and historical events. Miss Nancy Keeler specialized in oriental dancing with the famous teacher, Kono, of New York. "The Lady Picking Mulberries" and the "Red Cherry Dance," "Miyako Odori," will be given by the Nancy Keeler dancers.

This presentation is being given under the auspices of the education department of the Atlanta Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Wharton O. Wilson is chairman, and an invitation is extended by Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Max E. Land, president. Tickets at 50 cents for adults or 25 cents for children are on sale at the Atlanta Woman's Club or they may be obtained from any member of the education department.

Lenox Park Garden Club Holds Meeting.

The members of the Lenox Park Garden Club met Wednesday at the Lenox Park field office for the October meeting. Mrs. Warren Clare, president, presided.

Mrs. Paul Whittier, chairman of the flower show, which was held recently, gave an enthusiastic report of the show. Mrs. Clare reported the work which was accomplished by the club during the month of September and outlined the general program for the ensuing month. She announced that Mrs. Paul Whittier has been appointed general chairman of house and grounds committee of Morningside school. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. J. H. Chapman for her accomplishment in beautifying two vacant lots on Rock Springs road.

The club will sponsor a bridge party October 30 at the home of Mrs. Jack Savage. Mrs. Julius Little and Mrs. Arthur Price were appointed chairmen of the committee.

Mrs. Zack Layfield read a splendid paper on fall flowers. Mrs. Layfield's garden was voted the most beautiful in Lenox Park in a recent contest. Mrs. Swannie Robinson, of Greenville, Tenn., guest of Mrs. Jack Savage, gave an interesting talk on pools. The club will be hostess at the garden center on Tuesday, October 23.

Atlanta Rainbow Assembly.

Atlanta Rainbow Assembly meets Saturday evening, October 20, in Joseph C. Greenfield Lodge room at Little Five Points. A practice will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the office of Foddrill Typewriter Company, 11 Forsyth street, N. W. Rainbow girls are urged to either send or bring jelly or preserves at this time for the Scottish Rite hospital. Following the practice of the officers the girls will go to the hospital and deliver their gifts.

The ways and means committee report the annual Rainbow dance for Atlanta Rainbow Assembly No. 5 will be held on Wednesday evening prior to Thanksgiving on November 28, at the Shrine mosque. Mrs. Peggy Holland is chairman of this committee.

Miss Mary Dell Irie, worthy advisor, requests members to be present in view of the attendance contest. Mrs. Geneva Foddrill is mother advisor, and R. Low Reynolds is chairman of the board of advisors. The Past Matrons' and Patrons' Association of Atlanta is the sponsoring body of this assembly.

Billy Beshers Feted.

Mrs. Valria Beshers entertained on Saturday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. R. Cox, honoring her son, Billy Beshers, in celebration of his seventh birthday anniversary. Mrs. V. Y. Makaslar, Mrs. Roscoe Speer and Mrs. Ruby Cox Townsend assisted in entertaining.

The Halloween motif was reflected in the colorful decorations. Contrasts and games were featured. Ralph Busby and Gordon Marion were awarded prizes. A frosted birthday cake centered the table. Favors in tones of yellow and black marked the places for the guests.

Miss Dora Aldred Weds Mr. Bruce At Druid Hills Baptist Church

Marked by beauty and dignity, the wedding of Miss Dora Frances Aldred and Charles Dixon Bruce, of Brunswick and Sea Island, was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Druid Hills Baptist church, in the presence of the immediate families, with Dr. Louis D. Newton officiating.

Mrs. Bruce's only attendant was Miss Margaret Jones, who wore a stunning gown of brown crepe trimmed with mink tails, a close-fitting brown hat, and harmonizing accessories. She wore a shoulder spray of talisman roses. Bridegroom's attendant, of Brunswick and Sea Island, acted as best man.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her father, Clarence Jefferson Aldred. Her exquisite blonde coloring was emphasized by her smart traveling suit of green woolen lavishly trimmed with brown dyed squirrel fur and worn with a close-fitting brown hat, and accessories in matching tones of brown. Completing her costume was her shoulder spray of bronze orchids.

Mrs. Bruce is a representative of prominent southern families, her mother having been the former Miss Ida Heath, of Warrenton, Ga. On her paternal side she is descended from the Adkins and Prichard families, who were identified with the early history of Augusta. She graduated from North Avenue Presbyterian school in Atlanta and attended Brenau College at Gainesville, where she was a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Edward Cecil Bruce and the late Mr. Bruce, of Brunswick and Sea Island. His mother was formerly Miss Lucy M. Dixon, of Thomasville. He attended Gwyn Academy in Brunswick, later graduating from the University of Georgia in the class of 1930, receiving his bachelor of science and commerce degree. He is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, of the Young Men's Club and the Cotillion Club of Brunswick, and is prominent in business and social circles there, filling the position of postmaster at Sea Island, in addition to having important real estate holdings in that section.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bruce left for a wedding trip to North Carolina. On their return they will visit the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Aldred, for a few days before leaving for Sea Island to make their future home.

Visiting Trio Is Welcomed By Atlantans

Kendallville, Ind., contributes a trio of interesting visitors to Atlanta's social colony, for Mr. and Mrs. E. E. McCray and their daughter, Miss Sarah McCray, arrived on Friday to visit Mrs. McCray's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, at the Biltmore apartments. The visitors are proving the incentive for a number of informal social affairs during their stay and entertainments in their honor will mark the social calendar for the coming weeks.

Atlantans feel an especial interest in Mrs. McCray, an erstwhile Atlantan. As the former Miss Lena Orr, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Orr, she was an admired figure in Georgia society and shared with her sister, Mrs. Miller, formerly Miss Alice Orr, an enviable place in southern social circles.

Her marriage to the attractive Mr. McCray was solemnized at a brilliant ceremony taking place at the Marlborough apartments, which occupied the site where the Doctors' building now stands. The white stone walls of the handsome new building built upon the site of the hospitable old home is a memorial to the late W. W. Orr, having been erected by his sisters, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. McCray.

Chestnut haired Miss McCray is a charming representative of her aristocratic lineage. She shares her mother's share in manner and inherits her hazel eyes and curly chestnut hair from her father. She attended Northwestern College in Chicago, Ill., and took a special course at the University of Southern England, at Exeter, south of London. She is a devotee of golf and plays often at the Glenview Club near Chicago, at the Fort Wayne Country Club, and on the links near her home in Kendallville. Mrs. McCray is also fond of golf and plays with her daughter. Among her cultural interests she includes her literary club.

Particular significance is attached to the stunning colored photograph of Miss Evelyn Cameron Watts, published in the November issue of the Pictorial Review, because of Miss Watts' relationship to a group of prominent Atlantans, Albert Thornton, Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, Austell Thornton and Mrs. John Grant Jr., who are her cousins. The photograph adorns a full page advertisement for a popular brand of cigarettes and depicts Miss Watts wearing a bottle-green crepe evening gown, graced with a tiny cape fashioned of the iridescent feathers of the tropical lophophore bird. A smart flame-colored velvet bow, caught to the front of the cape, forms a brilliant note of color. The photograph reveals Miss Watts' lovely profile with her high forehead, finely moulded nose and chin and her lovely flashing smile. Her slender hands are encased in long suede gloves and she holds a lighted cigaret gracefully. She is the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dorsey Watts, of New York and Baltimore, Md. During the World War, before America's entrance, Mr. and Mrs. Watts lived in Atlanta while Mr. Watts supervised the erection of the Connally building. Miss Watts' mother is the former Miss Ido-

Mrs. Mixsell Is Important Fall Visitor

Listed among the important fall visitors in Atlanta is Mrs. Edwin Mixsell, of Bethlehem, Pa., who is the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Kline, at their home, Bellemonde, on Peachtree Battle avenue. This popular young matron is receiving a cordial welcome from her Atlanta friends made during former visits here.

During this week Mrs. Mixsell will be honor guest at a number of informal parties, among which is the luncheon at which Mrs. Charles Kessnich will be hostess on Tuesday at the Capital City Club. On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Porter will be hosts at a dinner party in compliment to Mrs. Mixsell at their home on Tuxedo road. Thursday Mrs. Harold Ebersole will honor this visitor with a bridge-luncheon and on Friday Mrs. John Smith entertains in her honor at the Piedmont Driving Club.

This afternoon at 5 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Kline will entertain 50 friends at an appetit party in compliment to their niece and Robert McWade Jr., son of the well-known motion picture actor, Robert McWade, who arrived Saturday to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Kline.

INTERESTING FIGURES IN MILITARY CIRCLES

Mrs. Thomas H. Jones

Miss Sarah Elizabeth Bare

Mrs. C. Barron Woods

Mrs. Cranford D. Warden

Mrs. John B. Chester

Mrs. Gilbert Marshall

A SEXTET of attractive members of the military contingent adorn today's feature page. Mrs. Jones is the wife of Major Jones, new commanding officer of the military unit at Georgia Tech, and they have taken a house on Chatham road. Miss Bare's engagement to William Ryland Swain, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is announced today by her parents, Brigadier General Walter E. Bare and Mrs. Bare. Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Warden and Mrs. Chester are charming recent additions to the garrison personnel at Fort McPherson. Mrs. Marshall, the wife of

Miss Bare Weds W. R. Swain In November

Marked by widespread social interest in military and civilian circles is the announcement made today by Brigadier General Walter E. Bare and Mrs. Bare of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Bare, to William Ryland Swain, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The marriage will be solemnized at a brilliant ceremony taking place in November.

Miss Bare, the only daughter of General Bare and Mrs. Bare, attended Howard College in Birmingham, Ala., where she was a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority. After establishing her residence in Atlanta with her parents, she was enrolled at Agnes Scott College and completed her education at Arlington Hall in Washington, D. C. While attending Arlington Hall she was elected May queen by the student body. Miss Bare is exceedingly popular with the younger contingent and following her marriage she will be a charming addition to the young matron ranks of society.

The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Swain, of Calhoun. He attended Georgia Tech and was a member of the Chi Psi fraternity. He was graduated from Brooks and Kelly flying schools in San Antonio, Texas, and is associated with the American Airlines in Cincinnati.

Essig-Morris Wedding Is Quiet Event

Miss Irene Miller Essig, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Henry Essig, became the bride of Thomas Miller Morris, formerly of Augusta, at a quiet afternoon ceremony, beautifully solemnized at 4:30 o'clock Saturday at the North Avenue Presbyterian church. Only members of the immediate families and a few close friends assembled to witness the service, which was read by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn.

A simple arrangement of palms and ferns, combined with giant bronze-shaded dahlias, formed the decorations in the church. The rear of the choir loft was massed with tropical foliage of palms and ferns, forming a rich background for the floor standards filled with bronze dahlias. Cathedral candles supported in brass candelabra supplied the illumination for the service.

Miss Emily Parmelee, organist of the church, rendered a program of nuptial music preceding and during the taking of the vows.

The ushers included John Meacham and Chris Essig, Jr., brother of the bride. The bride's only attendant was Miss Anne Dickenson, who acted as maid of honor, and she was given in marriage by her father, Christian Henry Essig. Henry Morris, of Augusta, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Miss Dickenson was smartly gowned in pale blue tulle and crepe, fashioned on long graceful lines, and featuring the high neckline. Her hat was a becoming turban of brown velvet, and completing her costume was an arm bouquet of golden souvenir roses, bronze snapdragons, coral and peach geberas, tied with bronze-tinted ribbons.

The striking brunet beauty of the bride was emphasized by her gown of golden brown chiffon velvet, which was untrimmed except for a jabot lined with gold satin and shoulder clips studded with rhinestones. Her brown velvet hat featured a narrow brim, and her ensemble was completed by a graceful arm bouquet of tallisman roses, showered with valley lilies, and tied with bronze ribbons.

Mrs. Essig, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in French blue satin, worn with a black hat. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of Johanna Hill roses and valley lilies. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Ralph Milledge Morris, of Augusta, chose for the occasion black velvet trimmed in silver, and a black hat to match. A shoulder spray of Johanna Hill roses and valley lilies completed her costume.

Mr. Morris and his bride left for an extensive wedding journey in the east, and upon their return will reside with the bride's parents at their home at 145 Lakeview avenue. Mrs. Morris chose for traveling an ensemble of dark blue plaid woolen, combining a one-piece dress with a hip-length coat. Red buttons and a red belt formed the only trimming. Her hat was a small blue felt offset with a red feather, and other accessories were of dark blue.

The guests from a distance who attended the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Milledge Morris, of Augusta, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Morris, of Raleigh, N. C.; Henry Morris, of Augusta; R. M. Morris Jr., of Gainesville, and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Youngblood, of Augusta.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Hoover To Attend Girl Scout Convention

Atlanta Girl Scout Council has appointed Mrs. Russell Bellman and Mrs. Lee Ashcraft as its official delegates to the twentieth National Girl Scout convention in Boston, October 24, 25, 26, according to the statement of Mrs. Albert Adams, commissioner. "It is expected that this convention will be the largest and most impressive in the history of the Girl Scout movement," states Mrs. Arthur I. Harris, chairman of the Juliette Low regional committee, who has just returned from New York. Over 1,500 delegates are registered from the United States, Canada, Hawaii and Porto Rico.

Mrs. Bellman has recently been appointed a member of the national nominating committee, and will represent the southeastern states when this committee meets in Boston. Highlights of Atlanta Girl Scout accomplishments during the past year will be included in the report given by Mrs. Lee Ashcraft to the national board, of which she is a member, at a luncheon meeting at which the board members will be the guests of Mrs. Nicholas Brady, of New York city. "The convention offers training and inspiration to all the adult members of the organization," stated Mrs. Albert Adams in urging a large representation from the local unit. In addition to the regular business sessions, there will be many events to add color and recreation to the meeting. An old-fashioned New England clam-bake and the Harvard-Dartmouth football game and the closing banquet will be some of the attractions which the delegates anticipate.

Dinner-Dance Will Assemble Military Set at Officers' Club

FORT McPHERSON, Ga., Oct. 13. Highlighting the social calendar in military circles is the dinner-dance to be given on Friday evening at the Officers' Club with Colonel Arthur Tasker and Mrs. Tasker, Major Burton Lewis and Mrs. Lewis, Captain Selman Myers and Mrs. Myers, Captain C. Miss Baker's Poem Included in Anthology.

Atlantans feel a pardonable pride in the literary recognition recently accorded Miss Barbara Baker, gifted young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Baker. Her poem, "April Away," will be included in the 1934 issue of "Anthology of Magazine Verse," to be published at an early date by the Paebur Company, of Fifth avenue, New York city, according to a recent letter from the publisher.

The poem, which is as fresh and gay as a spring day, first appeared in the book review column of The Constitution, and it formed one of the valued contributions to the March-April edition of "Bozart and Contemporary Verse," edited by Dr. W. F. Melton.

Miss Baker, who is well known in local literary circles, wrote the poem at the age of 18 while a student at New York University. It was a cold and misty April first, when overcame by the nostalgia that so often besets a freshman, that she sat at her window and penned the lovely lines from her vivid memories of April in the south.

The poem served as a composition in her journalistic course. Miss Baker began her literary career while a student at Girls' High school, where she served as editor of the weekly publication, High Times. Subsequent honors heaped upon her included a ten-dollar prize offered by the Atlanta Advertising Club for her essay entitled "Why Be Truthful in Business?" U. D. C. scholarship and speakers' medals, and the ready writers' medal offered by the fifth congressional district. Since finishing school she has been a member of the editorial staff of The Constitution, and has served as vice president of the Georgia Scholastic Press Association. A recent tribute was her selection as corresponding secretary of the Atlanta Writers' Club.

Junior League Girls Aid Day Nurseries.

Junior League members are ever ready to lend a helping hand to any worthy project. Especially when the health of undernourished children is concerned, is this socially prominent group keen to render aid. Added to the countless number of Junior League activities, from which humanity benefits daily, is the gymnasium class formed at the Sheltering Arms. Three days each week Junior League members will help to make little weak bodies strong and healthy through corrective exercises.

The discovery for this recreational need was made by Miss Lucy Marvin Adams, well-known gymnasium instructor, who spent much time during her summer vacation making corrective exercise experiments with the children of the Sheltering Arms. Unable to continue her work at the day nurseries, Miss Adams offered to train Junior League members who would carry on the much needed work.

A group of Junior Leaguers will gather at Miss Adams' studio to learn the methods for correct exercises to give the little inmates of this worthy institution that care for children whose mothers are earning a livelihood at near-by industrial centers. Armed with a thorough knowledge of their duties, and charts provided by Miss Adams, these enthusiastic young women will begin their work at the Sheltering Arms at an early date. Those volunteering their services for this important and beneficial work are Mesdames John O. Chiles, Francis Gilbert, Joël Hunter Jr., Richard Hull, Frank Boston and Misses Elizabeth Thompson and Mimi Fleming.

Youthful Group To Give Scholarship.

Success is sure to crown the efforts of that youthful group of sub-debs who are giving all of their spare hours from school and study to raising $150 to provide a scholarship for some worthy mountain boy or girl at Tallulah Falls school. Beginning yesterday this group, known as the Junior Circle for Tallulah Falls school, began an active drive toward their goal. They are appealing to their friends

Club to spend the morning playing "Sammy," prior to luncheon served in the ballroom. Among enthusiastic participants in the new game were Mesdames

Charles Loridans, Percy Baker, James Speas, Cecil Walkley, Calvin Prescott, C. S. Posberg, Frank Stevens and Clarence Coppedge.

Woman's Auxiliary Plans Flower Show

Garden division of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Railway Mail Association will hold a flower show on Thursday, October 25, at the home of Mrs. G. C. Barrow, 1457 North Morningside drive, N. E. The show will be open from 2 to 5 o'clock. Any member of the club may exhibit in the show provided the flowers have been grown in her own garden. Entries must be made from 9 until 12 o'clock. Only one entry in each division of a class will be accepted from an exhibitor. A sweepstakes prize will be awarded for the most outstanding exhibit in the show. Exhibits may be removed after 5 o'clock. Mesdames E. P. Crenshaw, Chester Martin and Walter Lamb will judge.

Classes will include chrysanthemums in single specimen entries and groups in all varieties and colors. Dahlias, in tones of red, white, pink, lavender, yellow, bronze and additional colors will be displayed. Roses, in all colors, annuals including zinnias, marigolds, verbenas, cosmos, petunias and additional flowers will form interesting exhibits.

There will be classes in perennials, exhibits in bowls, baskets and vases. Artistic arrangements will include yellow and white flowers, red and white, pink and blue, blue and yellow. Wild flowers, pansies, arrangements and shrubs will be shown. Scrapbooks will be on display and an unclassified table will prove of interest.

Charming Secretary of Debutante Club

Grace Scarborough

Poise and initiative, coupled with a charming personality and gracious manner, are qualities which make Miss Maude Thompson, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thompson, an ideal choice for secretary of the 1934-35 Debutante Club. Possessing brown eyes and wavy blond hair, Miss Thompson wears smart costumes which offset to advantage her distinctive coloring. During the summer this deb usually spends most of her time at the summer home of her parents at Lakemont, where she may be seen daily at the wheel of her speed boat or swimming in the lake. The date for Miss Thompson's formal debut has not yet been announced, but she will be complimented at numerous social affairs during the season. Sketched by Grace Scarborough from a photograph by Nebbett.

Women Voters' Tea Planned for Oct. 19

League of Women Voters entertains at the monthly tea at league headquarters on Friday, October 19, from 3:30 to 5 o'clock. Miss Sally Fanny Glean-ton will preside. The department of government and economic welfare has charge of the program. Under the new set up of the departments of the league, living costs and women in industry, which used to be separate committees are now included in this department. There will be three 10-minute talks about legislative measures relating to economic welfare. All league members and their friends are invited to be present at these monthly teas where the work of the league, both local and national, is reviewed.

Squad leaders and members of their committees who are working on the membership drive will meet Friday at 3 o'clock at league headquarters with the leaders, Mrs. J. O. Sanders and Mrs. Sinclair Jacobs. This meeting immediately precedes the monthly tea. Reports will be heard and the prize which has been donated by the Whitehall Regenstein store will be awarded to the squad leader who brings in the most new members. This is the second week that Regenstein's has given the prize and the rivalry has been keen among the 15 squads to win it. Squad leaders who will act as hostesses for the meeting are Mesdames L. M. Ahern, Alfred Bailey, W. F. Caldwell and Miss Sally Fanny Glean-ton.

FEDERATED CHURCH WOMEN OF GEORGIA

Cathedral Groups
Co-ordinate Work

Representatives from every woman's organization in the cathedral of St. Philip met with Dean Raimundo de Ovies and Mrs. A. H. Sterne, diocesan president of the Woman's Auxiliary, in the chapter house, and voted to have one organization, the name to be chosen later, which would direct the activities of the various groups under it, and co-ordinate the work.

Dean de Ovies, through power invested in him at this meeting, has appointed the following officers:

for one year, succeeding officers to be elected by the organization: Mrs. G. A. Bland, president; Miss Lucinda Snook, vice president; Mrs. H. Frank West, treasurer; Miss Edith Pierce, recording secretary; Mrs. D. H. Havens, corresponding secretary; Mrs. B. H. Wagnon, religious educational secretary; Mrs. Earnest McCullough, social service chairman; Mrs. E. D. Bland, united thank offering custodian. This year will appoint a devotional and prayer partnership chairman and a publicity chairman at its first meeting the first week in November. This new organization will go into effect January 1, 1935.

Methodist Meetings Are of Interest.
W. M. S. of Trinity Methodist church met recently at the church with Mr. E. A. Hartsock, president, presiding. The principal speaker was Miss Bert Winter, secretary of rural work for the women of the North Georgia conference. Miss Winter's work reaches 27 churches through the W. M. S., Epworth League, church school and Daily Vacation Bible schools. Training personnel for responsibility was the keynote of her talk.

Mr. Luther Bridgers sang, "Out of Trouble With Your Lord," accompanied by Mrs. Bridgers. A well deserved tribute was paid Mrs. Leila Leppard, member of Circle No. 3, when the circle presented her a life membership certificate.

The ways and means committee announced the silver tea to be held October 23 at the home of Mrs. W. A.

Gregg, 430 Capitol avenue, to which members of the church and their friends are invited. Mrs. John A. Manget told of the tea to be held at Wesley House, 342 Richardson street, S. W., October 16. This will be in the nature of an "open house."

The Sunday school auditorium presented a picture of beauty for the meeting in its abundance of dahlias and other fall flowers, furnished by Mrs. T. B. Black and Mrs. J. W. Eckels.

odist church met recently at the home of Mrs. A. F. Campbell with Mesdames R. W. Freer and Charles E. Smith as co-hostesses. Mesdames Henry Atkins, Mamie Campbell and Emma Campbell assisted in entertaining the 35 members and visitors present.

ent. Mrs. J. J. Rivers, chairman, presided. The guest speaker, Rev. Fred L. Glisson, pastor of the church, presented a devotional on the joy of hearing, seeing and following Christ. Mesdames Rivers, Hinton and Camp spoke in behalf of the benevolences of the church and it was voted to make a special contribution of $30 to conference claims. For stewardship, Mrs. W. P. Streater discussed Christian influence and fellowship, and sang "Beautiful Garden of Prayer" with Mrs. C. C. Berry at the piano. Mrs.

C. D. Beeland read "The Tapestry Weaver." Mrs. Henry Naab read Mrs. Mary Read's "Good Tidings" and appreciation of what the circle meant to her. From the board of stewards, acknowledgement was made of the circle's donation of $15 worth of kitchen utensils. Two quilts completed for the orphans' home were displayed. As a birthday greeting to a beloved member, Mrs. Rivers presented a basket of gorgeous dahlias to Mrs. Charles Tillman with the love and best wishes of the circle. Mrs. H. S. Harward,

The W. M. S., of Inman Park M. E. church, met recently at the church. Mrs. J. A. Campoamor, president, presided. All officers gave very interest-

Mrs. J. I. Allman reported that 16 members attended the accredited class in missions, held at First M. E. church. The Young Women's circle had charge of the program. The leaflet for this month was "The Rural

GEORGIA STATE FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

Organized in 1896—Membership 30,000—Joined General Federation in 1896—Motto: "Wisdom, Justice, Moderation"—Club Flower: Cherokee Rose

PRESIDENT: Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens; first vice president, Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville; second vice president, Mrs. A. B. Conger, Jr., of Bainbridge; recording secretary, Mrs. Morriea Bryan, of Jefferson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Rufus Turner, of Athens; treasurer, Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas; parliamentarian, Mrs. Howard McCall, of Atlanta; editor, Mrs. Bessie Shaw, of Washington, D. C.

W. J. Gholston, of Comer; Georgia Federation headquarters, Parlor E, Henry Grady hotel, Atlanta, Telephone Main 2173; national headquarters, 1734 N. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

DISTRICT PRESIDENTS: First, Mrs. M. G. Girardeau, of Claxton; second, Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge; third, Mrs. Ivey Melton, of Dawson; fourth, Mrs. J. A. Corry, of Zebulon; fifth, Mrs. P. J. McGovern, of Avondale Estates; sixth, Mrs. L. I. Wasebaum, of Macon; seventh, Mrs. W. A. Hill, of Calhoun; eighth, Mrs. R. G. Dickinson, of Homerville; ninth, Mrs. John O. Braselton, of Braselton; tenth, Mrs. Walter Armstrong, of Crawford; Mrs. Harvie Jordan, state publicity chairman, Parlor E, Henry Grady hotel.

Mrs. Corry, of Barnesville, Named To Head Fourth District Clubs

Mrs. J. A. Corry, of Barnesville, was elected president of the Fourth District Federation of Women's Clubs at the meeting held at the clubhouse in Barnesville Thursday, October 11. Other officers are first vice president, Mrs. R. M. Mobley, of Covington; second vice president, Mrs. Hugh McCullough, West Point; recording secretary, Mrs. R. A. Sloan, Warm Springs; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. A. Collier, of Barnesville; treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Griffin, Manchester; parliamentarian, Mrs. W. E. H. Seary, Griffin.

The meeting, which was attended by more than 100 clubwomen from over the district, was one of the most interesting ever held here. Mrs. Hartford Green, of Zebulon, retiring president, presided, and Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, Georgia representative in the general federation, Mrs. Fort Land, Atlanta, field superintendent of federal education; Dr. P. Mims, of the state department of public welfare; Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville, first vice president of Georgia federation; Mrs. H. M. Bird, of Bowdon, chairman of Tallulah Falls school committee; Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, Georgia representative in the general federation; Mrs. W. E. H. Seary, of Griffin, and others.

Mrs. Green's message to the club was timely and informative. The keynote of the convention was "Progress Through Leadership," and Mrs. Green stressed the importance of electing to office women who are capable of doing the work of the clubs, who have attended club institutes and who are wholeheartedly in accord with the president's program.

Mrs. Green presented with a beautiful federation pin by Mrs. J. A. Corry from the district, as a token of love and appreciation of her faithful and untiring work during her administration. Mrs. Ritchie in her address stressed the importance of citizenship; of the new order; of the great challenge which is before us; of the need for a vital part in this new order. She spoke of problems facing clubwomen and of their responsibility to them, pointing out the financial aid from the federal government for adult education, and urging the clubwomen to aid in every possible way these programs for education.

Mrs. Gholston stressed the value of the general federation, and urged members to take advantage of the many aids the federation offers in the way of papers for programs, information and others.

Mrs. L. A. Collier requested clubs to pay their part toward Ella F. White Memorial fund, and during the meeting Mrs. F. White fund for extension, and Mrs. Albert Hill, first vice president, reports 11 clubs federated since April, 1933. These are not all per capita paying clubs, which are the only ones holding membership in the general federation. Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the general federation, says: "We shall continue the membership drive in the extension department this third year of this administration and if every member would get just one new member, we would be able to register the result; but what a report we would have at Detroit."

"The time of the campaign this year will extend from March 1, 1934, to March 1, 1935. The campaign will be conducted by the chairman of Georgia's zone, Mrs. W. W. Slayden, unless she has them by the following May 1. There are many prizes offered by Mrs. Poole, one for the greatest straight membership increase; the other for the greatest percentage of increase in membership. Every new member in every club belonging to the general federation counts; losses must be taken out. Let's go with this contest with a will. Last year we made fine progress, this year we shall venture further and we shall win."

With the slogan, "Be a member! Get a member!" not only to keep the membership enrolled, but to win back clubs and club members that have withdrawn, having the aim, "members for every club," Mrs. Poole presented the state and general federations. If women make their clubs fine enough and really care and are willing to do a little personal work, they can interest many other women, but to do that, the club must be worthwhile and one that meets the challenges of today. Georgia Federation has a good spirit in its record for this year. Appreciation goes to the fine past chairmen in the districts and a welcome is extended to the incoming leaders of club extension who are asked to keep the state chairman informed and to write her for suggestions and co-operation.

Mrs. Green announced following committees: Nominating, Mrs. H. M. Bird, chairman; Mrs. J. E. Howard, F. L. Adams, A. J. Perryman; courtesy, Mrs. W. E. H. Seary, chairman; Mrs. Grady Langford.

Mrs. Green presented at noon by a committee from the Barnesville Woman's Club, of which Mrs. A. H. English is president, Mrs. S. Bateson serving as chairman. Music was furnished by a chorus from the Three Arts Club who sang "Gypsy Love Song" and a piano duo by Lewis Collier and Helen Howard.

Mrs. Frank A. Dennis, chairman of art programs, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, in her message to clubwomen says: "There has never been so great a need to be educated for leisure as now. With the shortened working hours and enforced 'time on our hands' there is the problem in every community of 'what shall I do to fill the time?' is a great challenge to thinking clubwomen to do community programs which will give wholesome recreation and stimulate youth. The program shall reach a large number of people in proportion to the size of your community. (2) They shall interest and stimulate. (3) They be creative in purpose so much the better, but development of appreciation of all arts is important. Even before a great genius could flow there must be a mind, a heart, a soul, enough to stimulate, inspire and appreciate."

"Here are a few simple suggestions which may be enlarged to fit your needs: 1.—A harvest festival with a Halloween idea. Tell the story of 'Murder in the Rue Morgue,' by Poe. Read the 'Legend of Sleepy Hollow,' by Washington Irving. Have a story-telling contest of original ghost stories. 2.—A Thanksgiving song service. Have a great community sing using the fine old hymns, appropriate poetry and the story of the 'First Thanksgiving,' which may be told in costume. 3.—At Christmas time encourage the lighting of candles in the windows. Organize groups to sing carols along the streets. A lighted living tree gives joy to many throughout the holiday season. Sponsor a Christmas pageant. 4.—During the winter months organize men and women into reading clubs; share books and meet together to discuss them. Have a story hour on some old evening read Whittier's 'Snow-Bound.' 5.—Sponsor whistling, mandolin and drawing contests. 6.—Sponsor a contest of original verse and story-writing contests."

At the meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hillmore hotel, Friday, October 12, the tribute was paid to the late Catherine Poyas Walker, by Mrs. W. L. Ballenger, memorial chairman.

Only very recently there has come to our beloved past president, Mrs. R. Murdoch Walker, a deep sorrow, and heartfelt sympathy prompts her co-workers to pause during this busy day to pay tribute to the abiding worth of her daughter, Catherine, who died on the second of August. Mrs. Murdoch Walker and her wife, Emily Raveland, of Charleston, S. C., and besides her mother, is survived by a brother, Raveland Walker, and two sisters, Mrs. Howell Caldwell and Murdoch Walker.

Happy were those who enjoyed Catherine's companionship, for there were no reservations in her love and she had that modest, beautiful manner which is the prerogative of a person of innate refinement.

"She was a modest worker, retiring, tolerant, unselfish, as all noble natures are. She cheerfully used her gifts for others, and was known and admired for her successful library work after graduating from the Carnegie library school in the class of 1913."

Jones, Jake Baskin, Charlie Cobb, Scrapbook, Mrs. Griffin Roberts, chairman; Mrs. J. B. Farham.

With the slogan, "Be a member! Get a member!" not only to keep the membership enrolled, but to win back clubs and club members that have withdrawn, having the aim, "members for every club," Mrs. Poole presented the state and general federations. If women make their clubs fine enough and really care and are willing to do a little personal work, they can interest many other women, but to do that, the club must be worthwhile and one that meets the challenges of today. Georgia Federation has a good spirit in its record for this year. Appreciation goes to the fine past chairmen in the districts and a welcome is extended to the incoming leaders of club extension who are asked to keep the state chairman informed and to write her for suggestions and co-operation.

Mrs. Green announced following committees: Nominating, Mrs. H. M. Bird, chairman; Mrs. J. E. Howard, F. L. Adams, A. J. Perryman; courtesy, Mrs. W. E. H. Seary, chairman; Mrs. Grady Langford.

Mrs. Green presented at noon by a committee from the Barnesville Woman's Club, of which Mrs. A. H. English is president, Mrs. S. Bateson serving as chairman. Music was furnished by a chorus from the Three Arts Club who sang "Gypsy Love Song" and a piano duo by Lewis Collier and Helen Howard.

Mrs. Frank A. Dennis, chairman of art programs, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, in her message to clubwomen says: "There has never been so great a need to be educated for leisure as now. With the shortened working hours and enforced 'time on our hands' there is the problem in every community of 'what shall I do to fill the time?' is a great challenge to thinking clubwomen to do community programs which will give wholesome recreation and stimulate youth. The program shall reach a large number of people in proportion to the size of your community. (2) They shall interest and stimulate. (3) They be creative in purpose so much the better, but development of appreciation of all arts is important. Even before a great genius could flow there must be a mind, a heart, a soul, enough to stimulate, inspire and appreciate."

"Here are a few simple suggestions which may be enlarged to fit your needs: 1.—A harvest festival with a Halloween idea. Tell the story of 'Murder in the Rue Morgue,' by Poe. Read the 'Legend of Sleepy Hollow,' by Washington Irving. Have a story-telling contest of original ghost stories. 2.—A Thanksgiving song service. Have a great community sing using the fine old hymns, appropriate poetry and the story of the 'First Thanksgiving,' which may be told in costume. 3.—At Christmas time encourage the lighting of candles in the windows. Organize groups to sing carols along the streets. A lighted living tree gives joy to many throughout the holiday season. Sponsor a Christmas pageant. 4.—During the winter months organize men and women into reading clubs; share books and meet together to discuss them. Have a story hour on some old evening read Whittier's 'Snow-Bound.' 5.—Sponsor whistling, mandolin and drawing contests. 6.—Sponsor a contest of original verse and story-writing contests."

At the meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hillmore hotel, Friday, October 12, the tribute was paid to the late Catherine Poyas Walker, by Mrs. W. L. Ballenger, memorial chairman.

Only very recently there has come to our beloved past president, Mrs. R. Murdoch Walker, a deep sorrow, and heartfelt sympathy prompts her co-workers to pause during this busy day to pay tribute to the abiding worth of her daughter, Catherine, who died on the second of August. Mrs. Murdoch Walker and her wife, Emily Raveland, of Charleston, S. C., and besides her mother, is survived by a brother, Raveland Walker, and two sisters, Mrs. Howell Caldwell and Murdoch Walker.

Happy were those who enjoyed Catherine's companionship, for there were no reservations in her love and she had that modest, beautiful manner which is the prerogative of a person of innate refinement.

"She was a modest worker, retiring, tolerant, unselfish, as all noble natures are. She cheerfully used her gifts for others, and was known and admired for her successful library work after graduating from the Carnegie library school in the class of 1913."

"At the Carnegie library, she was reference librarian until 1915 when

Mrs. L. A. Collier requested clubs to pay their part toward Ella F. White Memorial fund, and during the meeting Mrs. F. White fund for extension, and Mrs. Albert Hill, first vice president, reports 11 clubs federated since April, 1933. These are not all per capita paying clubs, which are the only ones holding membership in the general federation. Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the general federation, says: "We shall continue the membership drive in the extension department this third year of this administration and if every member would get just one new member, we would be able to register the result; but what a report we would have at Detroit."

"The time of the campaign this year will extend from March 1, 1934, to March 1, 1935. The campaign will be conducted by the chairman of Georgia's zone, Mrs. W. W. Slayden, unless she has them by the following May 1. There are many prizes offered by Mrs. Poole, one for the greatest straight membership increase; the other for the greatest percentage of increase in membership. Every new member in every club belonging to the general federation counts; losses must be taken out. Let's go with this contest with a will. Last year we made fine progress, this year we shall venture further and we shall win."

With the slogan, "Be a member! Get a member!" not only to keep the membership enrolled, but to win back clubs and club members that have withdrawn, having the aim, "members for every club," Mrs. Poole presented the state and general federations. If women make their clubs fine enough and really care and are willing to do a little personal work, they can interest many other women, but to do that, the club must be worthwhile and one that meets the challenges of today. Georgia Federation has a good spirit in its record for this year. HIGH THI FLO

5th District Medical Auxiliary To Hear Dr. Tinsley R. Harrison

Mrs. Olin S. Coker, president of the Fifth District Medical Auxiliary, announces the fall meeting for Thursday, October 18, at the Academy of Medicine, 38 Prescott street. The Fifth District Medical Society and the auxiliary will have supper together at 6:30 o'clock at the Academy of Medicine, after which each organization will hold a business meeting.

The auxiliary will hold its program preceding the business meeting and immediately after supper, so physician speakers may attend the medical society. The program is as follows: Welcome by Mrs. S. Coker; response by Mrs. H. G. Ansley, of Decatur; greetings by Dr. James A. Paulin, president-elect of the Medical Association of Georgia and professor of clinical medicine at Emory University, who will introduce Dr. Tinsley R. Harrison, associate professor of medicine at Vanderbilt University, who will speak on "Facts and Fancies About the Heart." Dr. Clarence L. Ayres, of Toccoa, president of the Medical Association of Georgia, will address the auxiliary on the subject of "The Auxiliary Program." Mrs. John Ervin Penland, of Waycross, president of the woman's auxiliary to the Medical Association of Georgia, will discuss methods of fulfilling auxiliary objectives.

During the business meeting reports will be given on membership by Mrs. Earnest R. Harris, of Windsor, president-elect, woman's auxiliary Medical Association of Georgia, and by the state chairman, who are: Legislation, by Mrs. Dan V. Sage, of Atlanta; health films by Mrs. George M. Murray, of Atlanta; Mrs. Hulet H. Ansley, president of Fulton county auxiliary, and Mrs. H. G. Ansley, president of DeKalb county, will report for their auxiliaries.

Among prominent auxiliary members expected are: Mrs. J. Bonar White, third vice president of the American Medical Association and president-elect of the woman's auxiliary to the Southern Medical Association; Mrs. John Ervin Penland, Waycross, president of the woman's auxiliary to the Medical Association of Georgia; Mrs. Ernest R. Harris, Windsor, president-elect of the woman's auxiliary Medical Association of Georgia; Mrs. Marvin F. Haygood, Alto, historian of the state auxiliary, and Mrs. Mather M. McCord, of Rome, state parliamentarian; Mrs. James N. Brawner, Mrs. C. W. Roberts, Mrs. Marion Benson, past presidents of the state auxiliary; Mrs. L. Ayers, wife of the president of the Medical Association of Georgia.

Wives and widows of members of the Fifth District Medical Society are eligible for membership and an invitation is extended to attend this meeting. The purpose of the auxiliary is to extend authentic health education to lay organizations; to supply informed speakers of health subjects, and health materials and to assist the medical society in entertaining the district.

Printed pamphlets on maternal and infant welfare, cancer of the breast, uterus, stomach and brief mimeographed papers of 15 health topics, a list of valuable health films to show children and adults, a list of social hygiene reading are available, free, by addressing Mrs. Olin S. Coker, 348 S. Peachtree road, N. E., Atlanta.

Interesting posters may be borrowed. Included in the brief health talks are: posture, cosmetic facts, fallacies, mental hygiene, social hygiene, immunizations, personal hygiene, sight conservation, dental defects and corrections.

THE FABULOUS FINDS AND ADVENTURES OF WILLIAM LA VARRE AND HIS LOVELY WIFE

Today's installment of this great story appearing on Page 4 of The Constitution Magazine tells of the arrival at the "golden city of the jungle," an unexpected arrest, a celebration, and the homeward journey.

SCENE: THE OCEAN ISLE AMUSEMENT PARK, WHERE DICK TRACY AND CHIEF BRANDON HAVE TRAILED LU AND MORTIMER AND ARE ABOUT TO CLOSE IN ON THEM WHEN . . .

THIS IS ONE TIME I BEAT YOU TO THE DRAW, BRIGHT EYES, EH?

BUT WHAT'S THIS? SUDDENLY, AS TRACY AND THE CHIEF STAND HELPLESS BEFORE THE MENACING MUZZLES OF THE .22 RIFLES . . . FROM THE TOP OF A NEARBY FERRIS WHEEL TWO PIERCING SHOTS RING OUT

LOOK OUT, LU!

OW!

GRAB HER CHIEF! I'VE GOT THIS ONE!

PAT! YOU'VE TURNED THE TRICK! YOU'VE PROBABLY SAVED OUR LIVES - AND YOU'VE MADE THE CAPTURE OF THESE TWO POSSIBLE. HOW DID YOU HAPPEN TO BE ON THAT FERRIS WHEEL AND WHERE DID YOU GET YOUR DOPE?

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU, TRACY, AND I TAKE PRIDE IN DOING IT. YOU REMEMBER WE RAIDED THE HANGOUT OF THESE TWO A FEW DAYS AGO AND FOUND THEM GONE - BUT DISCOVERED A PAIR OF MORTIMER'S TROUSERS IN A CLOSET.

WITHOUT SAYING ANYTHING TO YOU I EXAMINED THOSE TROUSERS AND FOUND SOME DUST AND FINE DIRT PARTICLES IN THE CUFFS OF THE TROUSER LEGS. WELL, I ANALYZED THAT DIRT UNDER A MICROSCOPE.

I FOUND THAT THAT DIRT CONSISTED OF A CERTAIN TYPE OF SAND AND SHELL FRAGMENTS PECULIAR TO THE SEA SHORE. THAT LED ME TO BELIEVE LU AND MORTIMER WERE SPENDING SOME OF THEIR TIME NEAR THE OCEAN.

I CAME TO THIS PLACE AND SURE ENOUGH I SPOTTED LU AND MORTIMER ENTERING THIS SHOOTING GALLERY. I TOOK A POSITION ON THAT NEARBY FERRIS WHEEL WHERE I COULD KEEP MY EYE ON THINGS. . . AND THEN YOU AND THE CHIEF SHOWED UP.

OH NO YOU DON'T. "RED" ALMUS! STOP WHERE YOU ARE - OR YOU'RE A DEAD MAN!

THIS IS "RED" ALMUS - PROPRIETOR OF THE SHOOTING GALLERY. HE'S BEEN IN CAHOOTS WITH LU AND MORTIMER. THEY'VE BEEN ABLE TO BUY THEIR GUNS AND AMMUNITION THROUGH HIM BECAUSE OF HIS PROFESSIONAL CONNECTIONS.

PAT, THERE'S NOTHING I CAN SAY! YOUR ACHIEVEMENT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

TRACY, MY ADVICE TO YOU IS TO DO A LITTLE MORE STUDYING IN SCIENTIFIC CRIME DETECTION.

WHAT A NIGHT. THE ICEMAN'S BALL DIDN'T BREAK UP TILL 3 A.M. - THIS 20 POUNDS FEELS LIKE A TON.

MR. HOULIHAN, LOOKS LIKE THAT BALL LAST NIGHT WORE YOU OUT. THIS OUGHT TO SET YOU UP.

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

A STRANGE FOE

WHEN HIS FRIEND BOHGDU THE APE WAS ATTACKED BY THE MYSTERIOUS WARRIORS, TARZAN PLUNGED RECKLESSLY TO HIS AID.

QUICKLY HE LAID HOLD OF TWO MEN WHO HAD SEIZED BOHGDU. HE RAISED THEM HIGH, ONE IN EACH HAND, AND HURLED THEM INTO THE RANKS OF THE ENEMY.

THE TRIBESMEN WERE AMAZED AT THIS DISPLAY OF SUPERHUMAN STRENGTH. IN THE SUN-LIGHT THEY NOW SAW TARZAN CLEARLY FOR THE FIRST TIME.

SUDDENLY, WITH PIERCING WAILES, THEY FELL TO THE GROUND IN FEARFUL WORSHIP FOR THEY BELIEVED THAT TARZAN WAS SOME STRANGE WHITE GOD.

THEN THE TREMBLING WARRIORS ROSE AND INVITED TARZAN TO FOLLOW THEM. THE APE-MAN TURNED TO BOHGDU AND SPOKE CALMLY.

"I SHALL GO WITH THEM AND SEE WHAT LIES AHEAD. YOU GO TO THE OTHERS AND WATCH OVER THEM!" BOHGDU LEAPED TO A TREE AND VANISHED SKYWARD.

THE APE HURRIED TO PRINCESS MIHRAMA AND THE SAILORS. BY SIGNS HE CONVEYED TO THEM THAT THEY MUST STAY HIDDEN UNTIL TARZAN RETURNED.

TARZAN WAS ESCORTED TO THE VILLAGE, THE LIKE OF WHICH HE HAD NOT SEEN BEFORE. AND THE PEOPLE SURGED FORTH TO PAY HIM HOMAGE AS A GOD.

HE WAS LED THEN TO A GREAT HOUSE, AND THROUGH A GOLDEN DOORWAY ENCRUSTED WITH RICH AND DAZZLING GEMS.

THE APE-MAN FOUND HIMSELF IN A DARK ROOM. THROUGH A HOLE IN THE ROOF, A RAY OF LIGHT STREAMED DOWN AND ILLUMINATED A THRONE OF JEWELLED IVORY.

"WHO ARE YOU?" THE STRANGE MAN DEMANDED IN A SNARLING VOICE. FROM THE TONE OF THE CHALLENGE, TARZAN KNEW HE WAS FACING A RUTHLESS ENEMY!

The Tragic Half-Hour Finale to a Secret Suburban Romance

Underneath the Charming Roof, Human Passions Were a-Boiling—and a Husband's Double Killing Ended the Intrigue of the Dashing Sportsman and the Wife Who Hated Housework

A PEACEFUL, pretty suburb—just like the suburbs you drive through on leaving any American city, probably thinking to yourself: "How peaceful—how idyllic! Nothing ever happens in a suburb!"

Park Hill, three miles outside of Little Rock, Arkansas. A charming section of $5,000 and $10,000 homes, with colored shingles, nice gardens, garages clad with vines. Nothing disturbing ever happened in Park Hill. Then—

There came the blazing half-hour of passion, tragedy, revelation, which peaceful Park Hill will never forget.

In a cream-brick dwelling on Sheridan Road—a modern dream-house, with gay-hued roof, a big adorable chimney, mullioned windows and a broad lawn with shrubs and trees—lived the Thomases—a young suburban couple. R. B. Thomas, at 32, commuted daily to his business in Little Rock. A little man, with thinning, prematurely grayish hair. His pretty, vital wife, 26-year-old Gladys Berry Thomas, was a college graduate. She did the housework and was seen wearing dainty house-dresses when the groceryman called. Their youngster, six-year-old Mary Helen, played in the big yard when she wasn't at her grandparents'.

It looked perfect. But underneath the Thomas roof, savage human passions were a-boiling. Her well-sheltered life hadn't satisfied Gladys. She was in love.

And not with her husband—the man who had fascinated Gladys was a rather sporty figure, handsome Horace Steele, who ran a pool hall and cigar counter near Main Street in the city. Steele was the gay man-about-town. He was married.

Gladys and "Tommy," as everyone called the couple, had quarreled all about Steele. Park Hill didn't suspect—but things were at the breaking-point.

At first they'd all been friends. Then, twice, according to "Tommy," he'd come home and found Steele and his wife together—in his house. Once he'd returned from a trip and Steele had run out of the back door as he entered at the front. There were awful quarrels about that. Reproaches, declarations of independence, promises. The promises weren't kept.

Then Gladys vanished for four days. "Tommy,"

Handsome Horace Steele, the Slain Little Rock, Arkansas, Sportsman.

"I LOVED HER SO!"

Thus, Again and Again, Sobbed R. B. Thomas, the Little Husband with Thinning Hair, Whom Everyone Called "Tommy"—He Killed His Wife and Steele, Then Surrendered.

"JUST A SERVANT" So Gladys Thomas, Young, Vital and Adventurous, Regarded Her Life in Her Humdrum Suburban Home—and the Escapes She Found Were Two: Clandestine Love, and Death from a Bullet.

frantly, finally had gone to Steele's home to find him absent, too. Mrs. Steele gave him Steele's car number, and after a wild search, "Tommy" found the car—at the King Tut auto-camp on the Hot Springs highway. Entering a cabin, he found his wife and the sporting man.

"I wanted to kill them," he later told the coroner. But Gladys returned home. More quarrels—promises—bitterness—under the pretty roof.

Finally Gladys sat down and wrote a letter, telling her side of it. Here were the despairing words: "I hate to do this, but there is a limit to what I can take. I have done my best, have tried to make it as easy as I can for you. You haven't cared a damn about me only as a servant, and I haven't been appreciated for that."

So I am leaving you for good. Will spend my $20 for a divorce—what I have been saving it for. Probably will surprise you, but even though I seemed to enjoy your unkindness and ungratefulness, I hate you beyond words. You needn't worry about me doing you dirt; I will promise you I won't, but if you ever lay hands on me again I'll go to the limit. See if you can find someone else to fill my place—ingrate."

The coroner found that letter—afterwards. A quiet Wednesday afternoon. Gladys had left home. Mary Helen was at her grandmother's. "Tommy" had located his wife, registered under a false name at a hotel. Watching, he saw her on a street corner—talking to Steele. "Tommy" stepped up. He took Gladys back home. "You promised to stay away from him," he said, and she replied: "I've changed my mind."

A brief quarrel, then "Tommy" left the house. Maybe Gladys thought he'd gone to his office, but he was only out in the backyard, in the shrubbery. Apparently, the moment he left, Gladys disrobed. Then a whim seized her and she picked up the phone—it was on the window-sill, visible from the backyard. She phoned Steele.

Employees at his end of the wire heard him say: "But I'm married and you're married, and this is likely to get us into trouble."

"Tommy" overheard Gladys phoning. He charged into the house. Underneath the cushion of a chair in the living room was a gun which he'd hidden during a previous quarrel—to keep her from getting it, he said. He grabbed it, rushed into the dainty bedroom and fired—once. She fell.

In his rage, "Tommy" tore the phone loose from the wall.

Then, leaping into his car, he drove like mad to Main Street, Little Rock. Steele was behind the cigar-counter in the pool hall as "Tommy" walked in.

"Hi, Tommy," he said jovially.

The answer was a fusillade of bullets. The first shot pierced Steele's right wrist, entered his chest. The second, pierced his left wrist, also entering his chest. Steele had the strength to run, and fled out into the street, followed by the frenzied husband, who fired as he ran. A third shot struck Steele's leg, a fourth his right hip, a fifth pierced his back.

Five bullets—seven wounds. Steele tottered into a building and collapsed near the elevator. When the ambulance came, he said:

SHE PHONED HER LOVER

And "Tommy," Gladys' Husband, Crouching in the Shrubby of the Suburban Garden, Saw Her Nude Figure Against the Windowpane and Overheard What She Was Saying to Handsome Horace Steele.

"Tommy Thomas shot me. He shot me in my cigar store, because I had been going around with his wife. Please call my wife." Then he died.

And "Tommy" himself? He quietly drove to the county jail, entered, laid his revolver on the desk and said: "I've shot my wife and killed a man and I want to surrender. Send an ambulance to my home."

When he learned his wife was dead, he collapsed and became hysterical. "I loved her so!" he cried, over and over again. Gladys hadn't died at once; she'd managed to crawl into an adjoining room and turn on the electric fan. "Tommy" faces a double-murder charge.

And they say nothing ever happens in suburban life.

By JAMES ASWELL

BROADWAY Interlude: The letter, addressed to a byliner who had been tapping out a series on that ancient shocker, "the white slave traffic," was a thin scrawl.

In part it said: "As you walk up Riverside Drive near 162nd Street on Tuesday afternoon about 2:30, sit down next to the girl in brown on the second bench and say: 'I have a strange story to tell you.' She will repeat this after you."

So I accompanied the reporter who, half fascinated by the prospect of adventure and half businesslike in the desire to dig out a yarn, engaged a taxi for the non-stop flight to 162nd Street. The actual addressee for whom the epistle had been intended couldn't go—or else, being older, he knew that adventure only shows its face to taxi drivers and house detectives, never to newspapermen.

We came near the appointed spot and parked our cab to wait. My friend walked up the drive and I followed at a discreet distance. After all (I told myself hopefully) it might be a frame-up.

A tough-looking man in a battered limousine drew in sharply at the curb and beckoned to me. Ho, things were looking up! I sidled over.

"How do you get to the Fort Lee ferry, mister?" he demanded. I told him, crossly, and walked on.

Meanwhile, up ahead, my friend had located the girl in brown, not on the second bench, it is true, but on the third. It was plainly she. He sat beside her and this, he revealed afterwards, was the exchange which took place:

"Hello," he said, low. "I have a strange story to tell you."

The girl in brown focused on him the batteries of her incredulous, icily contemptuous eyes. She snapped:

"I have a strange story to tell you. See that copper walking towards us down there? Well, he doesn't like little half-baked sheiks like you who try to get fresh with honest nursemaids!"

We hastened back to our cab and my friend's epidermis was no pinker than mine. So goes adventure along Broadway's outer battlements.

CHARM.

There they were, sitting at the same table: a man and a woman who have been credited with respective corners on what can only be vaguely described as sex-appeal. Harry Richman and Peggy Hopkins Joyce.

I had met Harry (and he had promptly donned the mental gloves with which all acting folk deal with minions of the press). And I had seen Peggy at close range at various first nights and elsewhere. But it was something to spot the two of them in the same party. Naturally, I ogled them all evening, hoping to learn something. How did they do it? If I absorbed anything of the technique of First String Lovers, it was this:

The young lady whom Mr. Richman was escorting languished virtually unnoticed at his side except for an occasional flashing smile from him. She was rapt. So I gathered that Harry was playing a sort of bank shot to her heart.

Peggy, adopting exactly the opposite method, was talking gravely and industriously to the gentleman beside her. About what? Why, naturally, about the gentleman himself; and you can imagine that he wasn't missing a word.

Later I was introduced to Peggy by a friend, and she began to talk at once and enthusiastically about something of mine she had read in a magazine, while retaining, quite unconsciously and for the sake of emphasis, a gentle grip on my hand I came away with the impression that Peggy was a charming and acute lady.

the same party. Naturally, I ogled them all evening, hoping to learn something. How did they do it? If I absorbed anything of the technique of First String Lovers, it was this:

So, if the episode has any meaning it points the following lessons in love for boys and girls: if you are a boy, pay no attention directly to your innamorata if you would panic her—make your courtship a three-cushion cuing. But if you are a girl fascinate your man with the most absorbing subject on earth: himself.

ODDS AND END-PIECES.

(Idiosyncrasies to you!) Doug Fairbanks' new film, "The Private Life of Don Juan," bounces up the repertory once flicked from Dr. Copeland—the famous "Copey" of Yale, teacher of dramaturgy. An excited sophomore rushed up to him and asked: "Aren't you fascinated by the private life of Lord Byron, Dr. Copeland?" To which he replied: "My dear boy, Lord Byron has had no private life these many years."

Gertrude Mayer, who used to be one of the star exhibits of the Paris designing salons, now conducts a mannequin school of her own in Manhattan. She is a svelte, serious lady and she reveals that her school is now over-run with debutantes for whom the snoring of likely husbands is no longer the old casual business. She crisps: "A girl learns to toddle by the time she's a year old, but most of them never learn to walk. The 'puppet gait' ruins more romances for girls than any tendency to concoct cast-iron biscuits. At least hubby doesn't find out about the cooking until it's too late, but the first thing he sees is her walk."

A girl friend of Edith Roark, the professional beauty, reveals this snapshot of Broadway etiquette. Edith had just been introduced to a gentleman, with whom she had a cold bottle and a bird. Later she confided that she didn't like the fellow. "He's a cheapskate," she summed up. "How do you know?" she was asked. "It was obvious. I saw him give the waiter a tip." "But why shouldn't he tip the waiter?" "He should," Edith explained, "but it was a big tip and he let me see him give it."

A Broadway physician explains that the reason most operatic stars are hefty is that they must wait until after the performance to eat—and then, being good boys and girls, they habitually go to bed, a procedure which promotes averdupois. Grace Moore, the warbling lady, reduced twenty pounds for her role in "One Night of Love."

CARRYING ON Dorothy Stone, Daughter of Fren, Made a Hit In Her Own Right In "As Thousands Cheer." She Is Slated for Stardom.

ANDY certainly shoots off his mouth a lot, but because the old boy says the things that most of us say, or would like to say, it isn't hard to like him—particularly when he is involved in humorous situations with such entertaining individuals as Min, Uncle Bim, Tilda and the others. Don't miss THE GUMPS daily and Sunday in THE CONSTITUTION.

WHAT WAS JUSTICE IN THIS CASE?

Popular Co-Ed Dies Under Train; A Tramp Confesses; Was It Suicide or Murder?

By PETER LEVINS.

THE Missouri Pacific passenger train making the night run to Little Rock, Ark., had just gathered full speed two miles north of El Dorado. Engineer S. A. Jones and Fireman W. O. Carter were peering into the twilight illuminated by the headlight. The train sped alongside a string of box cars on a siding.

Suddenly both saw a human form hurtle from the open door of a box car. The body struck the edge of the main line track directly in front of the locomotive. It was a woman, and undoubtedly alive, for the horrified trainmen saw her crawling onto the rails. Engineer Jones grabbed for the emergency brake but the body was ground beneath the wheels before the train could be halted. Engineer and fireman raced back to the spot. A terrible sight met their gaze.

The victim, a beautiful, stylishly dressed girl, had been cut to pieces by the wheels. Head, arms and legs had been severed. A hurried examination of the clothing failed to reveal any marks of identification. In view of what they had seen, the trainmen assumed that the girl had deliberately thrown herself into the path of the speeding train.

Before the passengers, many of them students of Magnolia Agricultural and Mechanical College, were allowed to leave the train, the body was placed on the train and left at Smackover, the next stop, ten miles north of the scene. The Union county authorities at El Dorado were notified.

None Could Identify The Mangled Corpse.

Many persons viewed the remains that night, but the victim's features had been so badly mangled that none could identify her. It was not until the following morning, when Coroner T. E. Barton opened the inquest, that the girl was definitely identified as Miss Jackie Ruth Youngblood, 19, a senior at Magnolia A. and M. College.

The news was a shock to all of south Arkansas. Miss Youngblood had been an exceedingly popular girl. Left an orphan when a small child, she had been reared by her uncle, A. D. Dulaney, state commissioner of insurance, in Little Rock. She had entered the high school section of the college in 1928, and so well liked was she that in 1929 she was elected queen of the college homecoming. During her senior year she was serving as cheer leader and assistant editor of the yearbook.

Upon hearing the testimony of Engineer Jones and Fireman Carter that the girl apparently had leaped from the box car into the path of the passenger train, Coroner Barton immediately returned a verdict of suicide and then began to look for the motive. He gathered some puzzling information.

In a telephone conversation with C. A. Overstreet, president of the college, the coroner learned that Miss Youngblood had left school Thursday, the day before her death, after being reprimanded for a minor infraction of college rules. She and three other students had incurred the displeasure of the college authorities by having dates. She had been suspended until she agreed to sign a pledge that she would not again violate the college rules.

Fellow students supplied the information that Miss Youngblood had spent Thursday night with a chum, Miss Ida Verne Crisp, at the little town of Emerson, and that she had passed through Magnolia Friday on her way to El Dorado to catch a train to her home in Little Rock.

Her uncle stated that she had intended to spend the Easter vacation in his home and that she was supposed to have been a passenger on the train under which she died. He said he could not believe that she had committed suicide.

The co-ed's baggage was found to have been checked by her at the bus station and she had last been seen walking along the railroad tracks, apparently idling away the time while waiting for the train.

Had she walked the two miles to the spot where she died? Had some sudden depression taken possession of her, some terrible impulse which drove her to die under the train carrying so many of her friends?

Chief of Police W. W. Cross, of El Dorado, and Constable John Daniels made a careful examination of the death scene. All they found was a purse in the box car from which the girl had supposedly leaped. They began a systematic questioning of all persons who might have seen her. This soon unearthed a startling piece of information.

A colored employee of the railroad told the officers that he had been walking along the tracks just a few minutes before the train passed and that he had seen a man and girl in the box car. He had not seen them clearly, he admitted, but he was sure the girl had not been alone and that her companion was a man.

Now the investigators began to comb the hobo "jungles" along the railroad right-of-way. Presently they found a man who aroused their suspicions. He gave his name as Irvin Eddington, 38, a native of Leeper, Mo., who had been in California for several months and then taken to tramping around the country.

Eddington at first denied any knowledge of the young woman's death, then suddenly surprised the officers by saying: "If you're looking for that man that assaulted and killed that girl in the box car, I'm him."

"Just tell us what happened," said Chief Cross.

"I saw the girl walking along the tracks with a purse in her hands," he related, "so I left the campfire and slipped along behind the box cars until I met her. I tried to grab her purse and she slapped me. Then I grabbed her and dragged her into one of the cars. She put up a terrific struggle until I found a rock in the car and hit her on the head."

"I assaulted her and then I heard a train coming. She was regaining consciousness, so I dragged her to the door and just as the train was nearly opposite the car I threw her on the tracks. She tried to crawl, but went right under the train instead of away from it."

Eddington volunteered to accompany the officers to the death spot. He led them to the car from which the girl's body had been hurled into the path of the train. He found the rock with which he had knocked her unconscious. According to the officers, he re-enacted minute details of everything that had happened.

Prosecuting Attorney Joe Joiner immediately filed first-degree murder charges against Eddington. Coroner Barton, who had already concluded that it was a case of suicide, visited the prisoner in his cell and afterward declared "that man is just an imbecile who is confessing a crime for publicity."

Thus the county officials—and later the inhabitants of all that region—became divided into two camps, one for suicide and the other for murder.

Coroner Barton appeared to have quite a few circumstances to substantiate his belief. He pointed out that Miss Youngblood had removed her name from the baggage she had checked at the bus station, and that her name had been torn from a handkerchief left in her purse in the box car. Why, he asked, had she done this and then walked two miles up the railroad tracks, if not to commit suicide?

"Moreover," stated Barton, "a physician has examined the body and reported that she had not been assaulted. This fellow Eddington is mentally and physically weak and doesn't know what he is saying. There has been no crime committed. The girl killed herself because of trouble at school."

Student Friends Say It Was Not Suicide.

"Nonsense!" said the girl's uncle.

Prosecutor Joiner, insisting it was murder, cited the fact that Eddington had led the officers to the scene and re-enacted logical details. Also there was the story of the railroad employee who said he had seen Miss Youngblood with a man.

"Even if she did want to end her life," the prosecutor added, "does it stand to reason that she would have chosen such a horrible manner as that of leaping into the path of a train?"

This argument hardly strengthened his theory, since persons in a suicidal frame of mind as a rule select the most effective means at hand. Very probably the girl had no gun and no poison. She could have waited until she reached home and killed herself with gas but, assuming it was suicide, then it is likely she did not want to face her uncle, or anybody.

Her fellow students were emphatic in their insistence that she did not take her own life. They, too, advanced a weak argument by asserting she was "not the type" that would seek death as the way out of a difficulty.

Investigators looked for some other stronger motive. They questioned Ben Curtis, her best boy friend, but he said there had been no break in their relations. He could advance no reason as to why she might have committed suicide.

While officials debated the two theories, the railroad company held a special investigation in El Dorado on March 29. The verdict was suicide.

But the murder theory could not be suppressed. When Chief of Police Cross learned that a hobo had attempted to entice a 4-year-old girl into the woods on the pretense that he would help her find some Easter eggs, he announced that this might lead to more clues of murder. He therefore ordered that the hobo jungles be cleared out and every suspicious character held for investigation.

"Crazy Tramp" Has Ten-Year-Old Mind.

Circuit Judge L. S. Britt ordered a special session of the Union county grand jury for Wednesday, March 30, to investigate the case. By this time the rift between Coroner Barton and Prosecutor Joiner had widened. Joiner declared that the coroner had returned his suicide verdict without even visiting the scene of the girl's death and had based his decision only upon an examination of the body and the testimony of the train crew.

Barton retaliated by declaring that the county was just wasting money investigating a confession made by a crazy tramp.

The grand jury immediately returned a first-degree murder indictment against Eddington and Judge Britt set his trial for April 6. F. E. Stein, Wayne Jewell and Clyde Speer were appointed as defense counsel.

Judge Britt then appointed a committee composed of Dr. F. O. Mahoney, city health officer, and Drs. J. B. Wharton and R. E. Rowland to test the sanity of Eddington. Dr. Mahoney reported back to the court that his examination revealed that Eddington had the mind of a 10-year-old child.

"I wouldn't call him insane, but I could be sure of his actions if he were excited or frightened. Normally, he knows right from wrong," the city health officer stated. The other physicians declined to reveal their opinions before the trial.

Meanwhile, the difference of opinion between the county officials spread to the two officers who had arrested Eddington and first heard his confession. Constable Daniels declared on the eve of the trial that he was thoroughly convinced that Eddington had nothing to do with the death of Miss Youngblood. Chief of Police Cross remained convinced that Eddington was guilty.

Bringing further complication was a new story told by Eddington after a conference with his three state-appointed attorneys.

First, he started changing his detailed account of the girl's death, and then flatly denied that he had any part in the tragedy. He declared that he had been in Winfield, La., on the night Miss Youngblood died under the train and that he did not reach El Dorado until 5 o'clock Saturday morning, hours after the tragedy. He said he had caught a ride on a freight train from Winfield and that all he knew about the girl's death was what he had heard after reaching El Dorado early Saturday morning.

This was the status of affairs when Eddington was brought to trial before Judge Britt in circuit court on the morning of April 6. Prosecutor Joiner succeeded in introducing Eddington's confession after a strenuous objection by the defense. Eddington's attorneys contended that the confession had been made under duress. Chief of Police Cross and other officers testified that Eddington had volunteered the information that he had thrown Miss Youngblood in the path of the train.

Defense attorneys declared that evidence would show that Miss Youngblood committed suicide, that Eddington's mentality nullified the worth of any confession made by him and that it would be shown that the defendant was in Winfield, La., at the time of the girl's death.

Engineer Jones and Fireman Carter testified that they saw Miss Youngblood leap from the box car and then deliberately crawl into the path of the train.

In further support of the suicide theory, defense attorneys presented Buck King, father of a co-ed friend of Miss Youngblood. King testified that he had taken Miss Youngblood and several other co-eds for a ride with his daughter only a few days before the tragedy. As the conversation turned to the disciplining of Miss Youngblood, King quoted her as saying:

"I'll die before I will sign that pledge not to have dates. You may never see me again."

President Overstreet, of Magnolia A. and M. College, testified as to the infraction of the college rules by Miss Youngblood, and declared that he had suspended her from school until she would agree to pledge herself not to have any more dates in violation of the school rules. The college president described the victim of the tragedy as being above-normal mentally, and as "absolutely fearless."

President C. A. Overstreet of Magnolia A. and M. College had suspended Miss Youngblood for having dates on the campus. The defense contended that brooding over her suspension caused the college senior to hurl herself in front of the train. Her family and fellow students ridiculed the idea she committed suicide over such a "trivial affair."

The late Jackie Ruth Youngblood, 19-year-old student of Magnolia Agricultural and Mechanical College at Magnolia, Ark., who died under the wheels of a Missouri Pacific passenger train. Miss Youngblood, most popular girl in the college, is shown in her role as "Homecoming Queen" in 1929.

W. B. King, driver of the bus on which Miss Youngblood had made the trip from the home of her girl friend at Emerson, through Magnolia, and then on to El Dorado, testified that the girl "acted strange and looked sad" during the entire trip.

King said that a young man had met Miss Youngblood at Magnolia and, after talking to her for a few minutes, had asked him (King) not to take her away.

"Take her down the road about a hundred yards from the station and let her out, we want to keep her here," King quoted the unnamed youth as saying.

Puzzling Evidence Supports Both Sides.

The bus driver also told of hearing Miss Crisp, at whose home in Emerson Miss Youngblood had spent Thursday night, plead with the girl to promise that she would come back to see her again.

Dr. J. B. Wharton, member of the sanity committee appointed by Judge Britt, testified that Eddington's mentality was that of a child, and that when frightened he might confess anything suggested to him.

The defense closed with testimony tending to prove that Eddington was in Winfield on the ill-fated day and did not reach El Dorado until the following morning.

This alibi was attacked vigorously by Prosecuting Attorney Joiner in the state rebuttal testimony. First, the prosecutor presented Glover Jones, brakeman on the freight train which Eddington contended he had made the trip from Winfield to El Dorado.

Jones testified that he had observed every hobo on his train and that he was positive that Eddington was not aboard. And then to shatter the alibi further Prosecutor Joiner offered the testimony of three Salvation Army workers in El Dorado.

Mrs. L. Daniels and her two associates in the charity work testified that Eddington had been in El Dorado several days prior to the tragedy and that he had been fed by them at noon on the day of Miss Youngblood's death.

The jury was confronted with a puzzling array of evidence supporting the theories of murder and suicide. They knew that Eddington had led the officers directly to the scene of the girl's death and had shown a clear knowledge of the details when he made his confession. They had heard close friends of Miss Youngblood contend that she never would have ended her own life, while they had heard others declare that she had expressed suicidal intentions.

Supporting the suicide theory, the jurors had the testimony of the train crew that the girl leaped from the box car and crawled into the path of the train. Her name had been removed from her baggage and handkerchief.

Eddington's confession that he had assaulted the girl was in direct opposition to the findings of physicians. His alibi of not being in El Dorado at the time of the tragedy was disputed by reliable state witnesses.

Twenty minutes after receiving the case late on April 7, the jury filed back into the courtroom with the verdict. They found Eddington not guilty. The courtroom crowd cheered the verdict.

Eddington showed no emotion upon hearing the jury grant him freedom instead of condemning him to the death chair as the state had demanded.

"I knew it was a lot of hooey all the time," Eddington commented as he ambled out of the courtroom.

Why Haiti Calls Chief Money Unit the Gourde

From the earliest days all the countries of the Caribbean, including Haiti, used the Spanish dollar, or peso. About the middle of the 16th century the Spanish ran short of silver and so debased their dollars that they were mostly lead, and hence practically valueless.

Then vast quantities of silver came from Mexico and Peru, and the Dons reformed their currency. To distinguish the good new dollars from the worthless old ones, the Spanish mints marked each of them with the words "peso—Gordo." Gordo is an adjective and means solid, substantial.

In Haiti the natives knew that the new dollars were good dollars, but they did not know what the Spanish words sounded harsh to their ears; so, in referring to the coins, they frenchified "peso-gordo" into "piastre-gourde."

Later they dropped the piastre from the hyphenated combination and when the first silver Haitian coins were minted they were inscribed simply as "gourdes," which they have remained ever since.

Fabulous Finds and Adventures When a Treasure-Hunter

ORDEAL BY WATER

Although Mrs. William LaVarre, wife of the explorer, seems to be having a good time, the truth is she was facing peril in a jungle river when this photo was taken. Later the rubber boat leaked. She and her husband had to take to an Indian canoe.

CIVILIZATION, an unexpected encounter with the Brazilian authorities, the golden city of the jungle—and home! That is the story William LaVarre, author and explorer, tells today in this, the final account of the adventures that befell him and his wife in their search for diamonds in British Guiana, South America.

By WILLIAM LA VARRE.

Author of "Up the Marañon for Diamonds"

THE world of white men and women, of civilized customs and restrictions, was reaching out for us as our motor launch brought Alice and me toward the Rio Negro River.

We were now encountering many little settlements of rubber gatherers. At one of them Alice was entertained with a demonstration of how to utilize rubber direct from the trees. As an example, the natives showed her how to make a pair of rubber gloves for herself.

First, they blazed the trees. The rubber juice dripped into large gourds. The juice was thick, like pasty milk. Then it was poured into a drum. After that they took a big wooden paddle or blade, dipped it into the fluid mass and held it over a smoky fire.

Since the smoke was acidulous, it dried the alkaline-like rubber fluid. This process was repeated time after time until what was once a molten mass was now a piece of rubber shaped like the paddle or blade.

That gave Alice an inspiration. She turned to me and said: "Well, why can't I put my hand in the raw milk, then put it over the fire and make a glove?" I translated her question to our host. He smiled and said: "Why not, señor?" or words to that effect. So Alice proceeded to dip her hand into the drum of rubber "juice." She brought out her hand coated with white sticky stuff.

"It will never work," she laughed.

BUT she was told to hold her hand over the rising smoke from the open fire. She did so until the fluid on her hand dried. She was told to do it again and again. After less than 20 minutes she found that upon her hand was a thick glove, easily and surprisingly removable. That glove—or two of them, really—is among her jungle souvenirs.

Well, we didn't stop there. We both proceeded to dip our hats into the drums, then hold them over the smoke. We repeated this several times and eventually we had waterproof hats! Then we even went so far as to dip our shirts into the fluid, hold them over the smoke, repeat the process until we had waterproof shirts. As simple as that!

And it was a good thing, too. The rainy season was coming on and, believe me, the various rubber goods we had improvised for ourselves protected us in a way we had not anticipated. For rain in that part of Brazil is one of the fiercest of elements.

We proceeded on our way until we reached the Rio Negro. An official in charge of a wireless station operated by the Brazilian Government questioned Alice and me closely. He was highly suspicious for some reason we did not know at the time. Since he couldn't read or speak English it was difficult for us to explain the purpose of our expedition.

Finally I did succeed in explaining that we had just come through the jungles all the way from Georgetown. That seemed to make him more suspicious than ever. No white man ever had gone through those jungles—therefore, the official was convinced we were trying to deceive him. He demanded to see our passports, although he couldn't read English. He also wanted me to open my sealed cases, but I refused. Reluctantly he allowed us to go on.

Finally we boarded a little flat-bottomed steamer which comes up once a month from Manaos to take on rubber. To be on that little boat, no matter how pretentious it might be, was like a return to the heart of civilization. We were given a nice room and, more important, some ice water for the first time in nine months.

In spite of these conveniences, however, Alice and I could not help expressing some regrets as the boat moved down the Rio Negro, on its way to Manaos. The great adventure was over at last. For months we had tasted adventure that ranged from the deadly cannibal fish to the Indian "code of vengeance"; we had penetrated into places never before seen by white men, into a lost world of strange animals and stranger natives; we had fought through treacherous rivers, picked up from jungle streams small diamonds that promised richer treasure.

Mrs. LaVarre and her pet wild boar. During her jungle trip, the daring explorers made friends with many wild animals, bringing some of them home with her.

JOURNEY'S END

The little flat-bottomed steamer plying the Amazon that took the LaVarres out of the jungles into civilization.

There had been times when Alice and I anxiously looked forward to this very moment, when we would be on a steamer bound for civilization. But now we had a curious nostalgia for the jungles again.

Ahead lay golden Manaos. As the days passed, Alice amused herself by shooting alligators from the boat. It is a sport indulged in by many travelers between Manaos and the rubber country, as the boat passes over the treacherous alligator-filled waters of the Rio Negro.

Soon we came into the muddy waters of the mighty Amazon itself. And then we could see far ahead a white skyscraper, at least eight stories high, rising out of a green world. It was as incongruous and amazing a spectacle as we had yet beheld. There we were, a thousand miles up the Amazon, gazing upon a perfectly "civilized" skyscraper standing in the midst of the jungle!

HOME AGAIN!

All the problems of civilization arose when Mr. and Mrs. LaVarre arrived in New York, but they had many proud trophies of their jungle experiences to display. In this photo a Customs Officer is inspecting some of them.

Georgetown ten months before, now civilization and all its sights and sounds seemed only vaguely familiar. We could hear chimes from the cathedral. Then a great, deep horn from the big steamer tied up at the dock boomed.

At long last Manaos broke fully upon us in all its jungle splendor and color. We could see people in the streets, dressed in the usual habiliments of civilization, moving about. There were white women in fine clothes. There was convinced that they contained ammunition, rifles and other wartime paraphernalia.

It seems that the reason for all this nervousness and suspicion was due to rumors of a coming revolution. Now I recalled that several months before, in Georgetown, I had heard that the Amazon was brewing a Pan-American revolution that, once the spark caught fire, might overshadow anything yet seen in South American warfare.

I had been warned to be careful before leaving. Uncensored word had been received in Georgetown that gunboats, airplanes and approximately 10,000 Brazilian Federal soldiers were gathering at Manaus, the jungle citadel.
I also was advised that at any moment internal rebellion, on the part of the States of Amazonas and Para threatened to throw the whole Brazilian nation into armed conflict.

Regardless of whether the reader may have learned of this situation from his newspaper, it existed just the same. Keep in mind that the "State of Amazonas" embraced the 2,000-mile Amazon valley, with tributaries reaching far north and south into exceptionally fertile agricultural lands and unopened areas rich in mineral possibilities.

The Amazonian territory had, for some time, been at odds with the southern Federal Government of Rio de Janeiro over taxes and other critical matters. Thus it needed only a little tinder to set off the first cannon that might well culminate in a new and independent government in South America to be called Amazonia. That situation still obtains today and, while this is primarily a story of adventure, I cannot but point to the significant political phases we encountered.

THE general restlessness in the Amazon country had penetrated to Georgetown, British Guiana, sometime before our expedition started.
You will recall that earlier in our trip considerable wonder, if not suspicion, was cast upon our steel boxes, tightly sealed, which we refused to open. Those boxes, of course, contained only various supplies, trophies, mineralogical specimens, and I did not care to have them tampered with.

But it so happens that officials had become suspicious enough to believe they contained ammunition and rifles. That explained the lack of good will on the part of the official at the wireless station.

Since there were rumors of a revolution, he must have been convinced that we were a part of it. At any rate, he wirelessly to Manaus and informed the officials there that an American revolutionist, accompanied by his wife, was preparing to enter Manaos and start trouble.

That is why we found ourselves in the police station.
All sorts of Brazilian digni-taries came in and looked us over. They were very kind, especially when I showed them my diplomatic passport.
Then they received a wireless from the United States consul at Para, at the mouth of the Amazon, assuring them that I was not a revolutionist.

After that they became humble and so very sorry!
But Alice still was extremely angry. She felt that it all had been so stupid. She turned to the police chief and said:

"Do you suppose that if my husband were going to start a revolution he would have brought along his wife?"

The police chief scratched his chin.

"Well," he said in badly

Such was the nickname of this Toucan, another pet of Mrs. La Varre's. His ap-

When the next boat was due to sail for Para we were so informed. It was a regretful moment as we boarded that steamer, for it meant that even Manaos, the last touch, the last breath of the jungle was to be behind us.

Eight days later we arrived at Para and then boarded a tramp steamer, bound for the United States.

As it sailed north, Alice looked at me and sighed. "I liked everything we left," she sighed.
"But I'm also going to like returning up there to New York—I need a new permanent wave!"

It was a bright day as the South American shore receded from our view. Then it passed beyond the horizon. Behind us now lay the dark jungle world of terror and thrills.

Ahead of us was New York—and home.

From "Icones Biblicae," Swiss Etcher Matthew Merian's Chronological Story of the Bible, Published in 1625, in Germany

No. 107.—"The Army Sent to Dothan." Capture Elisha Is Smitten With Blindness."—Elisha refused Naaman's gift, after healing him of the leprosy. But Gehazi, Elisha's servant, followed Naaman and, using his master's name begged for gifts. When he returned to Elisha the prophet declared that Gehazi should receive the leprosy of which Naaman had been healed, and Gehazi went out from his master's presence a leper as white as snow. The sons of the prophets departed for the banks of Jordan, accompanied by Elisha, to build themselves a house. One of the men dropped his iron ax head in the water, and Elisha caused it to swim until the owner pulled it from the water. Then the king of Syria commenced to war on the king of Israel, and Elisha revealed to the latter the plans of the invading enemy, so that the king of Israel was able to save himself from capture and death. The king of Syria heard from his servants that his movements had been revealed to Israel by Elisha he was angry. And he said, Go and spy there. He sent his servants to spy on Elisha, and they hid themselves in a vineyard. And he is Dothan. Therefore sent he thither horses, and chariots, and a great host; and they came by night, and compassed the city about. And when the servant of the man of God was risen early, and gone forth, behold, a host compassed the city both with horses and chariots. And his servant said unto him, Alas, my master! how shall we do? And he answered, Fear not: for they that be with us are more than they that be with them. And Elisha prayed, and said, Lord, I pray thee, open his eyes, that he may see. And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man, and he saw; and behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha. And when they came down to the Jordan, Elisha said unto the young man, Take thy staff, and stand upon it. And when he had done so, he cast his staff into the Jordan. And he smote them with blindness according to the word of Elisha." II Kings, vi, 13-18. Elisha then led the Syrians into Samaria, where, by prayer, he restored their sight, and sent them away in peace.

129. 103—"The Keeper of the Gate Killed in the Rush of the Crowd." There was a great famine in Samaria, and the lack of food caused at least one woman to eat her own son. The King of Israel held Elisha responsible and sent a messenger to slay him, but Elisha had the door closed against the emissary. Elisha then prophesied plenty and cheapness in Samaria. Four lepers, who ventured into the camp of the Syrian army, returned to the city of Israel with tidings of the flight of the Syrians. At first the Israelites thought the Syrians had laid a trap for them, but when they saw that the king's chariots and horses, and the king's army, were fleeing, they were glad to think that the kings of the Hittites and the Egyptians had joined the Israelites against them. Therefore, the king's chariots and horses; and the king sent after the host of the Syrians saying, go and see. And they went after into Jordan; and said, All the way was full of garments and vessels, which the Syrians had cast away in their haste. And the messengers returned and told the king. And the king said, I will send you to see. And the messengers said, We saw fine flour and gold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, according to the word of the Lord. And the king pointed to the gate, saying, Who will open the gate for us? And the people of the gate; and the people trode upon him in the gate, and he died, as the man of God had said, who spake when the king came down to him. And it came to pass as the man of God had spoken to the king, saying, two measures of barley for a shekel, and a measure of fine flour and gold for a shekel, tomorrow about this time in the gate of Samaria; And that lord answered the man of God, and said, now, behold, if the Lord should multiply abundance in heaven, and send a famine, and a famine should come upon the land, and the people should not eat thereof. And so it fell out upon him; for the people trode upon him in the gate, and he died." II Kings, vii. 14-20.

No. 109.—Proud Jezebel Is Thrown from a Window.—During the famine the Shunammite woman, whose son Elisha had raised from the dead, went to dwell in the land of the Philistines by Elisha's advice. After seven years she returned, and the king of Israel received her again into his land she had previously owned after Gehazi, Elisha's servant, had told the king about the miracle his master had performed in raising that woman's son. Hazael then came to Elisha at Damascus with a present from Ben-hadad, king of Syria, who was ill. Elisha prophesied that Ben-hadad would die, and went because he foresaw the evil that Hazael would do to the children of Israel. Upon his return to Syria, Hazael told Ben-hadad and took his throne. The reign of Ben-hadad during this period is recorded in II Kings, viii, and the incident of the div in the field of Naboth is mentioned in I Kings, xxi. After the death of Jezebel, the king of Judah is mentioned in II Kings, ix. Elisha sent a young prophet with instructions to anoint Jehu, son of Jehoshaphat, king over Israel; and when he arrived at Jezreel, the ceremony and prophesied that Jehu should wipe out the house of Ahab and that the dogs should eat Jezebel, Ahab's wife, he fled, Jehu, acknowledged king by the soldiers, killed Jehoram in the field of Naboth and slew Ahaziah, whose servants buried him in a field at Jerusalem. "And when Jehu was come to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it; and she painted her face, and tired her head, and looked out at a window. And when he passed by, she said, 'Why do I see so many chariots?' And he lifted up his face to the window, and said, 'Who is on my side?' 'Who.' And there looked out to him two or three eunuchs.' And he said, 'Thou art a whore, O Israel; they threw her down; and some of her blood was sprinkled on the wall and on the horses; and he trode her under foot.' II Kings, ix, 30-33.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

GENERALLY speaking, bridge is not a game for slow thinkers. In the play of the hand, particularly on the defense, a great many quick decisions have to be made, as to hesitate before playing a card will either give valuable information away to the Declarer or unethically aid one's partner.

In the bidding, however, it is very often best to take a little time. In certain situations it will neither aid the opponents nor unfairly assist the partner if the bid is not made instantaneously. In the hand below, for instance, South was faced with a choice. He had just heard a vulnerable opponent, who was known to be a very sound player, doubled at a very boldly reached four-club contract. On the other hand, he saw by inspecting his own holding that the chances were good that he could make it. He and his partner could score a small slam. A decision had to be made as to whether the bidding of this slam or the penalty against vulnerable opponents would offer the greater plus score. South finally decided to pass the bid in his own defense, despite the fact that his own hand seemed more suitable for offensive play.

opening bid but a sure club trick, quite properly doubles. He expects a reasonably good penalty and sees very little hope of a slam despite his partner's forcing bid.

—South, despite his tempting holding, decides to abide by his partner's judgment. Even though he knows West to be a sound bidder, he reasons that a 500-point set is almost certain. A 400 set, of course, is a 400-400 quite possible. The 900-point set is about as good as the bidding and making of a non-vulnerable small slam. A 500 set would be only a small loss. And a 1400 set would be a definite gain. In addition, South is not absolutely certain that West is a laydown, as from the bidding a bad break can be expected.

Against the four-club contract North opened the heart ace. Seeing the singleton in Dummy, he knew that he must attempt to put his partner in for a lead through the opponents' trumps, as for him to lead trumps himself would automatically give up a trick. Not being absolutely certain as to how to put his partner in, he chose the spade queen as the safest lead. With seven cards of that suit in Dummy, it seemed most unlikely that this lead would sacrifice a trick.

South quite properly overtook the spade queen with the king and led a club. From this point on the Declarer was helpless. He eventually had to lose four more heart tricks and a club trick and went down four tricks or 1,400 points.

It so happens that despite the bad diamond division North and South could have fulfilled a slam contract in that suit by careful play. In fact, the 400-point set was definitely better, and even had the defense slipped slightly or the cards been distributed a little differently, a 900-point set would have resulted.

To digress from the technical field of bids and plays, I heard a little story recently about some master players who went to a tournament in the city of the World's Fair that is so interesting as a commentary on the genus bridge expert that I think it is worth repeating.

These experts, desirous of seeing all the sights in the limited time at their disposal before the tournament, struggled start of the tournament, struggled gallantly through the various exhibits, rushing here and there at a great pace. The day was hot and humid, and the spectators, headed their and perspiration beaded their brows and made them generally uncomfortable, and finally, from sheer exhaustion, they paused near the General Motors Exhibition building to rest. The Chicago climate happened to choose this moment to play one of its queer two minutes the temperature dropped some 23 degrees. This being a brand new experience to the native New Yorkers, the group fell into a spirited discussion as to what had caused it, and finally decided to ask an attendant who was standing near by if he could venture any explanation.

Oh, yes, he told them calmly, he knew what had happened. General Motors was making its daily trial of its new outdoor cooling system. Didn't it work well?

Falling for this, hook-line and sinker, and having only the most unpleasant recollection of the tense period in other parts of the grounds, the experts remained near the General Motors building for a long period, in order fully to enjoy the unnatural coolness. Perhaps if another rapid change had brought back the heat of the day just as they were finally released, their belief in the wonders of science would have remained with them forever. But their later experience of Chicago weather, together with a talk with another informant who was more truthful than the general motors attendant, eventually enabled them to become acquainted with the truth.
